HOW COLLECTION OF CAMPAIGN FUND IS PROGRESSING

Former Mayor Kiel Says He Has Raised $25,000 and Would Like About $20,000 More.

MILLER'S MANAGER WITHHOLDS FIGURES

Mayor Says He Has Placed No Limit and His Rumored Success Worries Rival's Supporters.

With the municipal primary election less than two weeks away, a Post-Dispatch reporter yesterday sought to ascertain what progress had been made by the Kiel and Miller finance committees in soliciting contributions for the campaign funds of the two candidates for the Republican mayoralty nomination.

Former Mayor Kiel readily responded that his committee had raised to date approximately $25,000 and would like about $20,000 more. Neither Mayor Miller nor his campaign manager, Isaac A. Hedges, would state what amount had been obtained by the Miller committee, and no limit has been placed by Mayor Miller on his fund.

Kiel Cuts Givers.

Kiel made it known that 14 contributions of $500 to $2000 had been received by his committee, these subscriptions totaling $11,850, as follows:

Bert Boaz, Kiel's partner in the contracting business, $2000; the Building Trades Council, former Appellate Judges Charles H. Daues, Philip H. Brockman, former president of the Police Board; William Sacks, Aaron Waldheim, furniture merchant, and Harry Scullin, steel manufacturer who sometimes votes the Democratic ticket, $1000 each; M. Weil, $800; Circuit Clerk Schmoll, $550; Martin J. Collins, president of the Graham Paper Co., and a Democrat; J. L. Hemp, manufacturer; C. H. Hunsaker, Ben S. Lang, Kiel's campaign treasurer, and Alfred L. Kiel, a plumber and the candidate's brother, $500 each.

The amount raised for Kiel, plus the additional sum he would like, is not large for such a campaign, by comparison with others of the past, when large sums have been spent for the mayoralty.

Miller's Fund.

On the other hand, Kiel workers have had disturbing reports of the success of the Miller committee in getting contributions. It is known that the Miller committee's budget contemplates large expenditures for advertising and other promotion expenses and one report in political circles is that $100 will be available for each of the 670 precincts to get out the Miller vote on primary day, March 8.

The most active campaign fund solicitor for Miller is Lon Harlow, vice president of the Southern Surety Co. He first established quarters in a suite at Hotel Jefferson, later transferred to a suite at Hotel Statler, where, as has been told in the Post-Dispatch, he was in conference with contractors having municipal contracts for jobs paid out of general revenue, from extensive bond issue funds and by special taxes against property owners.

Harlow has said he would give $1000 to the Miller fund. While none of the contractors will state the amount of their contributions to this fund, a number have admitted to friends that they have made "substantial contributions" in an effort to retain the Mayor in office.

Promises Personal Accounting.

Mayor Miller has stated he will account for his personal expenditures. There has been no announcement as to whether an accounting will be made of his committee's primary expenses. Candidates have interpreted the State law on this subject as not applicable to primaries. There is no record at the Recorder's office, where such accounts are filed, of the expenses and receipts of Miller's committee for the primary four years ago, his manager, then "Bob" Kratky, having stated the records were stolen from a safe in his office.

Candidates, as the law has been interpreted, may not spend personally more than $3380 each for the mayoralty in an election. Sections 5031 and 5044 of the Revised Statutes require candidates and their committees to file sworn expense accounts with the Recorder after the election. Some lawyers hold that the term "election" as used in these statutes does not apply to a primary.

Elections in St. Louis are usually decided in the primary, because of the heavy Republican majority.

Philip H. Brockman, chairman of Kiel's Finance Committee, who

Col. Lindbergh on His Way To Mexico to See Fiancee

Flyer Lands at Eagle Pass, Tex., to Spend Night, After Announcing Flight to Los Angeles.

By the Associated Press.

EAGLE PASS, Tex., Feb. 23.—Suspicions which Col. Charles A. Lindbergh left behind when he took off from Abilene, were verified when the flyer came to earth at Eagle Pass on the Texas-Mexico border tonight and announced that he was on his way to Mexico City. He landed at 7:30 p. m., and said he would take off at daybreak tomorrow for the Mexican capital.

Asked if he intended to marry his fiancee, Miss Anne Morrow, while in Mexico City, the flyer preserved silence.

The first intimation that Lindbergh was to lay aside his inspection of a coast-to-coast route for his company, National Air Transport, Inc., came at Abilene this afternoon when, after failing to record his destination, the flyer headed his plane southward instead of in a westerly direction. Airport officers at Van Nuys, Cal., previously had announced receipt of a telegram from the aviator which stated he proposed to land there tonight.

More than a hundred persons were on hand for his landing here.

After being shown to a hotel, Lindbergh made arrangements to obtain a passport to Mexico. He then retired to his room and asked not to be disturbed until morning. He said his Travelair monoplane was functioning perfectly.

RADIO FANS HEAR BYRD MESSAGE FROM ANTARCTIC

KDKA at Pittsburg Re-Broadcasts Original Signals Followed by a Translation of the Code.

By the Associated Press.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Feb. 24 (Sunday).—For the first time in the history of radio broadcasting, a message direct from the Antarctic was given to the radio audience of the world early today.

After establishing two-way radio communication with the Byrd Antarctic expedition, radio station KDKA here picked up a message in code, sent by Commander Richard E. Byrd, rebroadcast the original signals, followed by an English translation of the wireless code.

The rebroadcast followed a special program put on the air by KDKA each week for the Byrd expedition and for the people of the Far North.

Commander Byrd, in his message addressed to George Wendt, Canadian Westinghouse Co., Montreal Canada, said:

"We have been having 24 hours of daylight since arrival, but in a few days now the sun will sink below the horizon and in another two months total darkness will set in.

"This is going to be the most trying period of our stay down here. We are all looking forward in anticipation to the continuance of your weekly broadcasts, with all hands grouped around the loud speaker listening to the voice of KDKA. You can't imagine how much this is going to help us over the rough spots of the long winter night.

"Best wishes to all our friends at home."

New Ice Drives Byrd Ship Out of Bay of Whales.

STEAMSHIP ELEANOR BOLLING, Feb. 24. (Sunday)—The Bolling, 900 miles south of New Zealand is proceeding on schedule which would land us at Little America, March 2 or 3 provided today's fair weather conditions continue. We have just intercepted a news dispatch at sea from the "City of New York" to the New York Times saying that new ice freezing over Bay of Whales has driven them out. We have tow lines and all emergency equipment on board the Bolling, and are proceeding south under forced draught until we pick up the "City of New York." Whalers south of us are standing by and they report no cause for alarm.

SENATE AGREES ON EARLIER SESSIONS TO SPEED WORK

Indications Are That Vare Will Be Given Time to Present His Own Arguments.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—Earlier sessions of the Senate were agreed upon today to speed work on the rapidly congesting legislative calendar as final adjournment on March 4 nears. The Senate consented to a proposal by Senator Curtis of Kansas, the Republican leader, to meet at 11 o'clock hereafter instead of at noon. Several night sessions also are in prospect for next week.

The Senate already has agreed to have a night session Monday to take up the bill for the reapportionment of the House of Representatives.

The report against the seating of Senator-elect Vare of Pennsylvania will be brought up Monday by Senator Reed of Missouri, but there are indications that the Senate is in a mood to defer the case and give Vare an opportunity to recover and take advantage of the offer extended to him by the Senate to present his argument personally.

TWO U. S. CITIZENS REPORTED SLAIN IN BATTLE IN MEXICO

Captors Said to Have Stabbed Mining Engineers to Death When Fighting Federal Troops.

By the Associated Press.

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 23.—Newspaper dispatches from Guanajuato tonight said that J. M. Underwood and C. C. Aisthorpe, mining engineers from the United States, were killed last night while Federal troops were engaged in a battle with their kidnapers.

The band of 25 or 30 men which took the two Americans from their quarters at the Bustos mines Thursday night were said by the correspondent of El Universal to have been overtaken by military police commanded by Maj. Salome Araujo Friday evening. A battle followed in which five of the bandits were killed, as well as an alleged Catholic priest named Lozano, who was said to have accompanied them.

Maj. Araujo was quoted as reporting that in pursuit of the bandits after their dispersal the troops came upon the bodies of the engineers a short distance from where the conflict took place. Their bodies bore wounds indicating that they had been stabbed to death.

The leader of the bandits was said to be a former miner named Padron, who on several other occasions had extorted money from United States mining companies in that region by similar tactics. The kidnapers destroyed the telephone instruments in the raided mining camp, which is about 20 miles from the city of Guanajuato. They stole two rifles but left untouched numerous valuable articles. The bandits demanded a ransom of $7500 for their captives.

Although the first newspaper dispatches telling of the kidnaping of the men was received more than 24 hours ago, the United States Embassy tonight was without official confirmation of either the kidnaping or the killings. Request was made today of the Mexican authorities to investigate the matter.

Press reports were that the engineers were to be buried this afternoon in Guanajuato.

Morrow Says Bodies of Engineers Are in Guanajuato Hospital.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—Ambassador Morrow telegraphed the State Department from Mexico City today giving the press reports of the killing of the two Americans, and said the bodies were in the American Hospital at Guanajuato. He said he had asked Consul William W. Early at San Luis Potosi to investigate the murders and report to the State Department.

The message said the American military attache, Col. Alexander J. MacNabb Jr., had conferred with the President of Mexico and his Chief of Staff and found them without information on the killings. They assured him immediate steps would be taken to ascertain the facts and capture the bandits if the facts are as reported in the press.

The home address of J. M. Underwood, one of the slain men is given as 1881 Mortin avenue, Pasadena, Cal. No record was found of C. C. Aisthorpe, the other man killed.

Mail Pilot Sets Speed Record.

CHICAGO, Feb. 23.—Flying at an average speed of 172 miles an hour, Ruben Wagner set a new record for the Omaha-Chicago air mail route today—2 hours and 30 minutes for 430 miles. Wagner left Omaha at 1:50 a. m. with 1600 pounds of mail, skipped the stops at Des Moines and Iowa City and arrived in Chicago at 4:20 a. m., an hour ahead of time.

SALOONKEEPER MYSTERIOUSLY SHOT AND BEATEN

John Leinendecker, Found Wounded at 2034 South Second St., Asserts He Didn't See Assailant.

POLICE DISCOVER TWO REVOLVERS

Wife Questioned by Officers—Victim Declares He was Struck Down on Entering Barroom.

John Leinendecker, 37 years old, was found shot twice and seriously wounded in the rear of his saloon at 2034 South Second street, early last night.

Police found two revolvers, one of them recently discharged, in a basket in the kitchen of the saloon, and took the saloon keeper's wife, Mrs. Leinendecker, to the Soulard Street Police Station for questioning. She denied knowledge of the shooting, and was released on $2500 bond.

Leinendecker said that as he entered the barroom through a narrow passage beside the icebox, after a brief absence from the place, someone struck him over the left eye, knocked him to the floor, and as he lay there, fired two shots at him, one of which entered the left groin and the other the right hip. He said he did not see his assailant and did not hear a word spoken during the assault.

At first he had said, police Capt. Kirk reported, that a man, fairly well dressed, walked into the saloon, drew a pistol, said, "I'm going to shoot you," and then fired two shots. Capt. Kirk said Leinendecker asserted he did not know the man who had shot him, and knew of no reason for the shooting.

Mrs. Leinendecker told police that she was out at the time of the shooting and returned to the saloon to find her husband lying on the floor, wounded. She called neighbors who took him to City Hospital.

Leinendecker's daughter, Marie, 17 years old, told the police she was in their home, above the saloon, and heard two reports which might have been shots, but did not investigate. She also was placed under bond of $2500.

STATIC ELECTRICITY CAUSES FLARE ABOUT PIKES PEAK

Lights at First Sent Aviators in Search of Possible Stranded Hikers.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo., Feb. 23.—Static electricity, which charges the atmosphere of the higher mountain peaks when storms are brewing, has appeared on Pikes Peak in the manifestation of ghostly flares about the summit at night.

So brilliant have the lights become that airplanes were sent to observe the slopes and summit to see if the flares could have been caused by stranded hikers. A thorough aerial search of the mountain, however, disclosed no trace of human beings and the static electricity theory has been generally accepted.

The display was first noted Wednesday night and it occurred again Thursday night. Last night the flares were seen near the Summit House. Observers said they bore a marked resemblance of "St. Elmo's fire," often observed at sea and held a good omen by superstitious sailors.

WALES WATCHES SADLY AT AUCTION OF 12 MOUNTS

Prince's Stable Brings $20,000; He Is Giving Up Sport for Official Duties.

LONDON, Feb. 23.—The Prince of Wales sat sadly in the salesroom at Leicester today and watched the auctioning of his 12 hunters for the total sum of about $20,000.

The highest price was paid for his favorite, Miss Muffit, a little bay mare, which went for $3500. A woman, believed to be an American, made the winning bid of $1790 for Lady Doon. The purchaser was identified only as "Mrs. Adamson, a member of the Quorn Hunt."

The heir to the throne watched pensively from a window above the auctioneer's box. The auctioneer frequently consulted with his royal client. After the last mount had been led away, the Prince lingered, talking with Mrs. Adamson.

"We all realize," said the auctioneer before the sale began, "the deep regret the Prince must feel, although he is making a patriotic sacrifice in giving up his favorite sport. It must go to his heart."

The sale was necessary with the increased burden of official duties now on the shoulders of the heir since the illness of his father, King George.

SENATE REVERSES SELF ON MARINES IN NICARAGUA

Decision for Recall Reconsidered After President Sends Word It Reflects on His Policy.

BILL FOR CRUISER FUNDS IS PASSED

Dill Opposes Nicaraguan Canal Survey — Says It Will Be Excuse for Further Presence of Troops.

By CHARLES G. ROSS,
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—The Marines will stay in Nicaragua as long as the incoming President may see fit.

Reconsidering its action of yesterday, when it adopted the Dill amendment to the Navy appropriation bill by a vote of 38 to 30, the Senate this afternoon killed the amendment by 48 to 32.

The amendment provided that "no part of this appropriation shall be used to maintain Marines in Nicaragua or to transport Marines to or from Nicaragua, except in cases of emergency arising hereafter endangering life or property or both of American citizens."

The effect of its adoption and final approval would have been to compel the withdrawal of the Marine contingent now in Nicaragua prior to the end of the current fiscal year, June 30, next.

Offered by Dill (Dem) of Washington, who has been a constant opponent of the American military intervention in Nicaragua, the amendment was put through late yesterday by a combination of Democrats and independent Republicans.

Senator Hale (Rep.) of Maine, in charge of the bill was caught unprepared, at a time when many of the Republican regulars had left the chamber for the evening.

Jones Changes His Mind.

The action was taken while the bill was still being considered in committee of the whole. Hale immediately served notice that he would seek reconsideration when the measure came before the Senate for final action. The word went forth for all Republicans stalwarts to be on hand today, and they responded in sufficient numbers to vote down the amendment by a decisive margin. President Coolidge was reported to have sent word to the capitol this morning that he considered last night's decision a reflection on his foreign policy.

Jones of Washington, the Republican whip, who voted for the amendment yesterday, announced just before the final vote that after thinking over the question, he decided that the Senate could trust the incoming administration to do the wise and patriotic thing. Therefore he changed his vote.

Senator Borah, Chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, as on yesterday, voted for the amendment. The two Missouri Senators voted against it.

Shorn of the Dill amendment, and carrying funds for an immediate start on the 15 cruiser program, the bill was then passed by a viva vote and the Edge resolution for a survey of the Nicaraguan canal route became the unfinished business of the Senate.

Dill Opposes Canal Survey.

Dill has announced his opposition to the canal survey on the ground that it would furnish a further excuse for the presence of the Marines in Nicaragua. Edge has said that he has the votes to pass his resolution if he can bring it to a decision.

Heflin of Alabama broke into the Navy bill debate with another diatribe against the Catholic Church and a renewed demand that the Senate take action against the flying of the "Catholic flag," as he calls it, above the American flag on battleships.

His amendment to this effect was beaten when the cruiser bill was up, only 10 Senators voting in its favor. He sought today to attach the same amendment to the appropriation bill and was able to muster only six votes besides his own—those of Black (Dem.) of Alabama, Brookhart (Rep.) of Iowa, Sheppard (Dem.) of Texas, Trammell (Dem.) of Florida, Harris (Dem.) of Georgia and Mayfield (Dem.) of Texas.

Thomas (Dem.), Oklahoma, who supported Heflin before, did not vote today. Hale (Rep.), Maine, and Swanson (Dem.), Virginia, changed their previous votes to the negative side.

NON-STOP CANADA-TO-CUBA FLIGHT MADE BY HALDEMAN

Ruth Elder's Former Pilot Lands Near Havana 12 Hours and 56 Minutes After Leaving Windsor.

By the Associated Press.

HAVANA, Feb. 23.—George Haldemand today made a nonstop airplane flight from Canada to Cuba. In taking off from the Walkerville Airport, near Windsor, Ontario, at 3:49 a. m., the wheels of his airplane were deep in the snow. He set them down less than 13 hours later on the tropical soil of Cuba.

Haldeman, accompanied by James F. Hayden, mechanic, on his southward flight passed Cincinnati, Atlanta, Tampa at 1:12 p. m. and Key West at 3:35 p. m. His charted course of 1404 miles was flown in 12 hours and 56 minutes.

Haldeman succeeded where Leonard Flo of Ann Arbor, Mich., failed twice, once because of fog and once because of illness. Haldeman, who was pilot for Ruth Elder in her unsuccessful attempt to cross the Atlantic, showed no sign of fatigue from his long flight.

He said that the trip had been uneventful, with excellent flying conditions throughout. A favorable tail wind on the last 800 miles enabled him to increase his speed His landing here was made perfectly before newspaper men and aviators of the Cuban army who had awaited his arrival. The flight was over before many of the Havana afternoon papers were on the streets, and therefore the general public was unaware that a new endurance airplane flight was in the making.

The aviator extended his flight to Cuba as a "sporting venture" when business called him to several Florida cities.

Unless Haldeman decides to accept an invitation to fly to Santiago de Cuba tomorrow for a visit, he will take off for St. Petersburg, Fla., at about noon. He remarked that his plane on landing had "enough gas to take us back to St. Petersburg tonight if we had thought of it in time." Eighty of the original 252 gallons were still in the ship's tanks.

James R. Cormack, Trade Commissioner of Canada, was among those who congratulated the flier here on his flight.

Haldeman would be unable in any case to pay a long visit here, for within a fortnight he is scheduled to start a flight to Argentina to deliver a plane to the Government.

COLD FORCES CLOSING OF FAMOUS VIENNA CAFES

Many Forced to Quit Temporarily With Custom Cut So Low They Can't Meet Bills.

By the Associated Press.

VIENNA, Feb. 23.—Some of Vienna's oldest and most famous restaurants and cafes were forced to close today because the prevailing cold wave has not allowed them a sufficient patronage and revenue even to pay taxes.

Historic hostelries like the Dominikaner Keller, known to thousands of American tourists as the place where Napoleon's troops in 1805 regaled themselves with the finest of wines, bade the public temporary farewell today after an uninterrupted life of more than 600 years.

Formerly a monastery, this cafe is one of the landmarks of the Austrian capital.

PATROLMAN ATTACKED; TWO SUSPECTS ESCAPE

William A. Sievers Suffers Scalp Wounds After Arresting Armed Pair.

After he had captured two armed men whom he suspected of robbery, last midnight, Patrolman William A. Sievers of the Wyoming street police station was knocked unconscious by one of the men and both escaped.

Sievers fired a single shot in the air as the men departed after striking him on the head with his own club, and then sat on a curbstone until a passing motorist took him to City Hospital, where he was treated for lacerations of the scalp.

At the hospital he said he had been taking a short cut through Benton Park in South St. Louis, when he saw two men standing in the shadow of a park building. He drew his revolver, he said, and took a pistol from one of the men and a revolver from the other. He then forced them to walk to a police call box at McNair avenue and Arsenal street, where he called the station for a patrol.

To use the tlephone, her said, he leaned his club against a post, and one of the men picked it up and struck him with it. E. J. Huesmann, 1917 South Twelfth boulevard, who passed the place ten minutes later, took Sievers to the hospital. The policeman is 54 years old, and lives at 4808 Missouri avnue. He has been on the force 21 years.

CAPT. MANNING, DESPITE GALES, BRINGS SHIP HOME ON TIME

Banquets and Hero Worshiping Worst Part of Trip, He Says—Fried Greets Him.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—Capt. Harry Manning, chief of the lifeboat crew that saved the men of the Italian freighter Florida, brought the United States liner America home on time today after one of her stormiest winter voyages. All the way from Bremen the ship bucked gales, fog and snow and she docked with a coat of ice.

Capt. Manning secretly observed his thirty-second birthday on the trip Jan. 31. "I didn't want any fuss," he said. The worst part of the trip, Manning said, was the banquets and hero worshiping he had to undergo aboard ship and on the other side.

Manning was acting as captain during Capt. George Fried's tour of Eastern cities. Capt. Fried met his chief officer at the pier.

TWO ARMED MEN GET $250 IN HOLDUP OF DRUG STORE

Robbers Make Clerk of Pharmacy at 6955 Gravois Road, Lie on Floor.

Two armed men obtained $250 in a holdup of a drug store at 6955 Gravois road at 11 o'clock last night.

John Merle, a clerk, was made to lie on the floor where he was guarded by one of the men while the other ransacked two cash registers. Ambrose Bryant is proprietor of the store.

HOUSE BEATS $24,000,000 ENFORCEMENT FUND AGAIN

Democrats Though Losing on Points Force First Night Meeting of Session and Delay Final Action.

SHOUTS AND CHEERS INTERRUPT DEBATE

Minority Hopes to Compel Record Vote on Dry Clause Tomorrow by Motion to Recommit.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—After an all day wrangle over prohibition in which the Republicans clung stubbornly to the budget recommendations and beat back every attempt of the Democrats to increase the $2,727,000 for enforcement, the House adjourned tonight without a final vote on the second deficiency bill.

Democrats indicated that when the $191,000,000 measure comes up on Monday a motion would be made to recommit the bill to the House Appropriations Committee for the purpose of incorporating the $24,000,000 prohibition amendment that led to the death in conference of the first deficiency bill.

Since the $24,000,000 enforcement proposal was first presented to Congress by Senator Harris (Dem.), Georgia, the House Democrats have been seeking an opportunity to vote rirectly on the item. A motion to send the measure back to the committee they expect will force a record vote.

Several Democrats have said privately that if they could obtain a direct roll call vote on the item that it would muster more support than it has heretofore received in the House.

Although the Democrats were beaten in every attempt to increase the amount for enforcement today, they talked so often and so long that they defeated the plan of administration leaders to complete action on the measure today.

Big Fund Beaten 134 to 71.

By a vote of 134 to 71, the House rejected a new move from the Demcoratic side to appropriate $24,000,000 for prohibition law enforcement instead of the $2,700,000 suggested by President Coolidge upon the recommendation of the Treasury.

Immediately after this, an amendment by Representative Wood (Rep.), Indiana, to provide $1,719,654 for this purpose was accepted. This proposal was one of a series of amendments offered by administration supporters. The purpose of the series of amendments was to incorporate at proper places in the measure parts of the $2,700,000 to be allotted to various agencies charged with enforcement of the dry law.

The controversy over the $24,000,000 proposal was revived by Representative Bankhead (Dem.), Alabama. He and other Democrats have been dissatisfied with plans of administration leaders to let the first deficiency bill carrying such an amount die in the hands of a conference committee and he sought this opportunity to obtain another vote on the proposal.

Bankhead lost after a brief but sharp debate.

Other Amendments Fail.

The House also rejected a proposal by Representative La Guardia (Rep.), New York, to provide $300,000,000 for prohibition enforcement.

Representative Fish (Rep.), New York, also was unsuccessful in an effort to include additional funds in the measure for narcotic law enforcement.

The debate led to some of the most turbulent scenes the House has witnessed this session.

While some members shouted and cheered, Representative Green (Dem.), Florida, denounced the administration and Republicans generally. He was so persistent in talking after a motion to end debate had been put that the chairman threatened to report him to the Speaker for misconduct.

Democrats Delay Action.

While the Bankhead amendment was disposed of in a comparatively short time, the discussion over other items was one of the most protracted in the House this session. Democrats took a lead in the talking and seemed in no disposition to help administration leaders hurry matters along.

As evidence of an apparent lack of interest by Democrats to hurry proceedings, Bankhead twice insisted that a House clerk read every word of the 200-page deficiency measure. Usually one complete

SMALL HOPE FOR REFORM PROGRAM IN LEGISLATURE

Budget and Central Purchasing Bureau Likely to Get Through, but Not Much Else.

SPECIAL SESSION IN 1930 SUGGESTED

Survey Could Prepare Measure to Consolidate Departments to Be Acted On at That Time.

By CURTIS A. BETTS,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 23.—Except for budget and central purchasing laws, only makeshift legislation is looked for from the present Legislature to meet the demands for progressive legislation on economic subjects. It appears more and more that a comprehensive program for consolidation of State departments in the interests of economy and for adequate financing of the educational and eleemosynary institutions can come only after an exhaustive survey to be made after the Legislature adjourns.

A special session of the Legislature, probably next January, is under consideration to handle this, the State's biggest problem. Taken up in that way it would not be involved in the log-rolling of the regular session.

Budget Bill in Preparation.

The joint committee of the Senate and House, chosen at the request of Gov. Caulfield, to prepare bills for a budget system, for a central purchasing department and for consolidation of related departments, is giving the subjects careful study and within two weeks, probably, will have the bills ready for introduction.

It is to be expected that a bill changing the name of the State Tax Commission to the Department of Revenue and Taxation, will be produced by this committee.

It is planned to include in this department the budget, the central purchasing agent and the collection of the income, inheritance and corporation franchise taxes. It is proposed to make the three commissioners who will head the department, the makers of the budget, to have the central purchasing agent appointed by the Governor, but subject to the supervision of the commissioners, and also subject to removal by them.

Consolidation Plans Nebulous.

As to consolidation of departments little progress toward solution is looked for from the committee. There probably will be some consolidations attempted in a bill it will recommend, but members of the committee frankly admit their inability to work out an adequate program in the time at their disposal.

Whether the Bales-Elmer-Young taxation bill, increasing the income and corporation franchise taxes 50 per cent and increasing the property tax from 5 to 8 cents on the $100 valuation, will be passed is a question which cannot be answered at this time, though there undoubtedly is strong sentiment for it in both houses. But if it is passed it will be only a temporary expedient and cannot be expected to provide the funds needed for new buildings at the State University and the eleemosynary institutions, and to finance adequately the public school system.

Seemingly it is realized that the new buildings needed at the institutions can come only through a bond issue, but submission of a $25,000,000 bond issue is not included in the present plans of the leaders of either house.

Survey After the Session.

But with the temporary needs taken care of, it is on the program to pass a measure creating a commission to make an exhaustive survey of all State activities. This was suggested by Gov. Caulfield in his inaugural message and the Senate leaders are disposed to provide the machinery.

It is the intention to include in the bill a requirement that the commission report its recommendations to the Governor not later than Nov. 1. This would give him time to consider them in detail and to call a special session of the Legislature in January to pass the legislation necessary to put the recommendations into effect. The proposal for a bond issue could be expected to be included in the recommendations.

To Plan Business Meeting.

Plans for a conference of leading business executives of the Mississippi Valley which the Chamber of Commerce proposes to call in April will be discussed at a meeting of business men at Hotel Statler Wednesday noon. The proposed meeting, to be known as the Mississippi Valley Manufacturers' and Wholesalers' Conference, will be the first of its sort ever held here. Discussions of merchandising, distribution, style and design will be features of the meeting.

FUND FOR PRESIDENTS' RETREAT RULED OUT

Item of $48,000 Struck Out of Deficiency Bill as New Legislation.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
201-205 Kellogg Building.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—The $48,000 appropriation for the remodeling of the abandoned Weather Bureau Station at Mount Weather, Va., into a country retreat for Presidents was stricken from the second deficiency bill in the House today on a point of order raised by Representative L. H. LaGuardia (Rep.), of New York.

La Guardia contended that the provision authorizing the transfer of the property from the Department of Agriculture to the office of Public Buildings and Parks was new legislation and had no place in an appropriation bill. He was sustained by the presiding officer, Representative F. R. Lehlbach (Rep.), of New Jersey after Representative Will R. Wood (Rep.), of Indiana, acting chairman of the committee, admitted that the point of order was well taken.

Although President Coolidge's recommendation was subject to a point of order in the House, parliamentary experts stated today that it could probably be inserted into the bill by the Senate. In such cases, when the provision is brought back to the House, it is not subject to objection.

If the Senate refuses to amend the appropriation bill with the President's recommendation it is possible that the Fess resolution providing for a commission to make a survey of sites available for a presidential country retreat will be offered as an amendment.

Representative LaGuardia and Representative Thomas L. Blanton (Dem.), of Texas, contended for recognition to object to the President's recommendation. A few minutes before, Blanton made a successful point of order against the proposal to increase the number of presidential secretaries from one to three. Wood admitted that this also was new legislation.

SENATE PASSES BILL DIVIDING EIGHTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—The Senate this afternoon passed and sent to the President the House bill dividing the present Eighth judicial circuit, which includes Missouri, into two circuits. The new circuit will be known as the Tenth, and it will include the states of Wyoming, Utah, Colorado, Kansas, New Mexico and Oklahoma. Remaining in the Eighth circuit will be Missouri, North and South Dakota, Nebraska, Minnesota, Iowa and Arkansas.

The states in the Tenth circuit were grouped because of their common interest in mining.

Representative C. L. Dyer (Rep.) of St. Louis is supporting Judge C. B. Faris for promotion from the Federal District Judgeship in Eastern Missouri to one of the new circuit judgeships. Judge Faris, a Democrat, was appointed to his present post by President Wilson.

pennant and its use in the American navy, written by the chief chaplain of the navy, was read into the record in answer to Heflin's attack. The writer explained that the flag, a white triangle bearing a blue Latin (not Roman) cross, was "not the copyrighted production of any denomination," but had been used in the navy by Protestant ministers long before the appointment of the first Catholic chaplain.

It was flown at the peak of a ship, he said, while divine services were being held on board, in recognition of the supremacy of God over all. The idea of the flag was borrowed, he continued, with other old customs, from the British navy, and he hoped that the Senate would not vote to change the regulation covering its use.

After the vote had been taken Heflin launched another characteristic attack on the Catholic Church. The same influences which "had put the rosary on the dollar bills of the United States," he shouted, were responsible for the defeat of his amendment.

Reed Turns His Back.

Laughter on the floor and in galleries greeted the frenzied remarks of the Senator. Reed of Missouri deliberately shifted his chair so as to present an insulting back to Heflin.

Bingham (Rep.), Connecticut, observed that whenever the chaplain of the Senate opened a session, the Vice President stepped down to a lower level on the rostrum. He wanted to know whether Heflin would try to change that custom.

The remark provoked another roaring torrent of words from the Alabama solon, and later, after he had been ruled out of order, he added another 10 minutes to his time by proposing an amendment to $100,000 to an appropriation item. Senators refrained from replying to him lest he break out again.

How Senators Voted.

The roll call today follows:

For withdrawal of marines: Republican—Blaine, Borah, Brookhart, Capper, Frazier, McMaster, Norris and Nye. Total—8.

Democrats — Barkley, Black, Bratton, Caraway, Dill, Gerry, Glass, Harris, Harrison, Heflin, King, McKellar, Mayfield, Neely, Overman, Pittman, Robinson of Arkansas, Sheppard, Simmons, Swanson, Trammell, Walsh of Massachusetts, Walsh of Montana and Wheeler. Total—24. Grand total—32.

Against withdrawal: Republicans—Bingham, Burton, Couzens, Curtis, Dale, Deneen, Edge, Fess, Glenn, Goff, Gould, Greene, Hale, Hastings, Johnson, Jones, McNary, Metcalf, Moses, Norbeck, Oddie, Phipps, Reed of Pennsylvania, Robinson of Indiana, Sackett, Schall, Shortridge, Smoot, Steiwer, Thomas of Idaho, Vandenberg, Warren, Waterman and Watson. Total—34.

Democrats — Ashurst, Bayard, Blease, Broussard, Bruce, Hawes, Kendrick, Ransdell, Reed of Missouri, Steck, Smith, Tydings, Tyson and Wagner. Total—14. Grand total—48.

LENROOT AND GLASSIE IN DOUBT

Senate Subcommittee Fails to Agree on Appointments.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—Some doubts were expressed today over the prospects for confirmation of either former Senator Irvine L. Lenroot of Wisconsin, to be a member of the Court of Customs Appeals, or of Henry H. Glassie, to be a member of the District of Columbia Supreme Court, after a second meeting of the Senate Judiciary Subcommittee considering the nominations failed today to reach a decision.

The nomination of Lenroot and of Glassie, a Marylander and a former Democratic member of the Tariff Commission, will be placed before the whole committee Monday, however.

BROOKHART TELLS HOOVER OF INQUIRY INTO PATRONAGE

Convinced "Fall-Daugherty Scheme" of Distributing Federal Plums Is Over Forever.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—A revision of the method of handling Federal patronage during the Hoover administration was predicted today by Senator Brookhart (Rep.), Iowa, after a conference with the President-elect. The Iowan, who is chairman of a Senate committee investigating patronage distribution in Southern States, called on Hoover to acquaint him with the work accomplished to date by the committee and of the disclosures it had made.

"I am convinced," Brookhart said, "that the Daugherty and Fall scheme of patronage is over forever. I am convinced that the Hoover administration will be honest in this respect as it will be in all others."

Expects Shake-Up in Three States.

Brookhart spent more than an hour with the President-elect. In speaking of the committee's work the Senator said he did not want to prejudge the situation before the investigation was completed and all evidence sifted. He added, however, that he thought that the situation in Mississippi, Georgia and South Carolina would require a shake-up which he was confident would take place in the next administration.

Fortified by his exchange of views with Hoover, Brookhart said the Senate investigation would be carried into other States from which complaints regarding patronage distribution had been received, on Feb. 28. R. B. Creager, National Republican Committeeman from Texas, will appear before the committee.

Furthermore, under authority of a special Senate resolution, Brookhart declared the committee would sit in the interval between the present and the special session of Congress.

Talked Over Farm Relief.

The agricultural situation which will figure prominently in the special session also was minutely covered in the conference. The Iowa Senator said the name of Thomas D. Campbell of Montana had been mentioned in his conversation with the President-elect as a possible Secretary of Agriculture. Brookhart declared he personally would not be very much in favor of such a selection. Campbell had an engagement with Hoover late in the day.

As for Hoover's intentions regarding agricultural relief, Brookhart repeated that he felt sure that the President-elect had already formulated a concrete and workable plan which he would issue at the proper time and which would carry out all his campaign promises.

All aspects of the special session were exhaustively discussed by Hoover and Brookhart. Brookhart said that it would certainly be convened at the earliest possible time, which would probably be nearer April 8 than April 15.

Hugh Gibson Luncheon Guest.

Hugh Gibson, American Ambassador to Belgium, was Hoover's luncheon guest. Gibson is a warm friend of the President-elect, the two having been associated in Belgian relief work. The Ambassador's name has been frequently mentioned as a possibility for the Secretaryship of State. Gibson was called to this country to confer with the administration regarding American policies in the forthcoming preparatory disarmament conference in Geneva on April 15 to which he will be the chief delegate for the United States. He saw President Coolidge today.

Hoover's Friends Confident About Five Cabinet Selections.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—President-elect Hoover's week of conferences here has given the volunteer Cabinet builders little real satisfaction, although it has served to increase the confidence of some politicians that their guesses as to some of the Cabinet posts have been correct.

Without guaranteeing to have any puncture-proof information, some of the best situated of Hoover's friends here are putting the following in the class of assured elections:

Secretary of State—Henry L. Stimson, New York.

Secretary of the Treasury—Andrew W. Mellon, Pennsylvania.

Postmaster-General — Walter F. Brown, Ohio.

Secretary of the Navy—Charles Francis Adams, Massachusetts.

Secretary of the Interior—Ray Lyman Wilbur, California.

In the same indefinite way, many politicians are convinced that advantage for three other Cabinet places lies thus:

Attorney-General—Silas Strawn, Illinois.

Secretary of Agriculture—A. J. Glover, Wisconsin.

Secretary of Labor—W. N. Doak, Virginia.

Much speculation, turning on varied rumors, continues to surround the remaining two places, the secretaryship of War and the secretaryship of Commerce.

HOUSE COMMITTEE ENDS HEARINGS ON NEW TARIFF ACT

More Than 300 Witnesses Appeared With Agriculture and Free List Drawing Most.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—After seven weeks of arduous labor, the House Ways and Means Committee completed hearings late tonight on all the 15 sections of the tariff act relating to rates and the free list. Only the administrative provisions of the law remain to be considered before it begins writing a new bill, and these will be taken up next week.

Aside from the agricultural schedule, the free list, which was under discussion four days and three nights, drew the most witnesses. More than 300 appeared to ask for removal from or retention of scores of commodities on the non-dutiable list.

The committee tonight heard pleas for duties on crude petroleum and petroleum products and on long staple cotton.

Representatives Hastings (Dem.) and Howard (Dem.), Oklahoma, urged protection against increasing imports of foreign oils.

The former placed in the record a set of resolutions adopted by the Independent Oil and Gas Association of Oklahoma Feb. 14, in which a duty of $1 a barrel on crude oil was urged. Foreign oil, the resolution set forth, was moving to the American seaboard markets at low water rates compared with high rail rates paid by domestic producers. They said imports were running one-quarter of a million barrels a day while larger amounts of domestic oil were entering storage.

Decreases Use of Coal.

Imports of fuel oils, largely from Mexico and South America, the resolutions declared, caused a decrease in coal consumption last year of 20,000,000 tons compared with 1927.

Representative Howard has a bill pending for a duty of $1 a barrel on crude oil, but he said he would leave it to the committee to decide what rate they thought best. The present price of oil, he said, was about half of what it was two years ago and was brought about by overproduction and importations. Many independent operators have been ruined, he declared.

Howard cited reports showing 500,000,000 barrels of oil in storage in this country today and said there was enough to last 100 years, yet there were imports of 79,000,000 barrels last year. The imports came largely from Mexico, Venezula and Colombia, he said, adding that the greatest potential danger was from Venezuela.

Representative Rainey (Dem.), Illinois, asked why the American Petroleum Institute had not recommended a tariff on oil in its general relief program. Howard said the oil interests were split on the subject of a tariff and that since the institute membership was made up of all sides of the question it could not come forward with such a proposal.

Plea for Cotton Duty.

Representative Whittington, (Dem.) Miss., renewed his plea for a duty on long staple cotton.

Opposition to proposals for excepting scientific instruments from duty when they are for use by educational institutions was voiced by Maj. R. W. Pinger, of the War Department, John I. Tierney, of the Manufacturing Chemists' Association, and Dr. Harvey L. Ott, of the Scientific Apparatus Makers of America.

Pinger said such a provision would endanger the American industry, which was essential in time of war, because educational institutions offer a big market for these products.

A. H. GEHNER WILL FILED

The will of Albert H. Gehner, real estate operator, who died Feb. 20, was filed in Probate Court yesterday. He left $1000 each to his mother, Mrs. Minna Gehner, and sister, Mrs. Pauline Mesker; $5000 each to a cousin, Fred W. Gehner, and Phillip J. Ebenhoh, and the residue of his estate to his widow, Mrs. Helen B. Gehner, 4498 Lindell boulevard.

She, with the Mississippi Valley Trust Co., was named as co-executor. No estimate of the value of the property was made.

DENIES MUSEUM OFFERED TO BUY DISPUTED PICTURE

J. C. Nichols, Former Head of Kansas City Institute, Makes Deposition in $500,000 Libel Suit.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Feb. 23.—The question was, did J. C. Nichols, as president of the Kansas City Art Institute in 1920, offer to buy the picture, "La Belle Feronniere" for $250,000, or for any amount of money? No. Did he say later the purchase depended upon whether it was a real Leonardo da Vinci painting? No. Did he say that until Sir Joseph Duveen's denunciation of the picture as not a real Da Vinci was proved untrue, he couldn't buy it? No.

Those significant "Noes" from Mr. Nichols today may settle the lawsuit over "La Belle." They probably will, some lawyers say. They may prove that Mrs. Andree Lardoux Hahn of Junction City, Kan., owner of the picture, has no case in law against Duveen, the English art expert and merchant.

The denials came from Nichols in the office of Jerome Walsh, lawyer, in the Commerce Building. The trial of the suit against Duveen is on in New York, but the deposition taken here today may be the most important testimony of all. It was important enough, at any rate, so that five lawyers, three from New York, were at the Walsh office today.

Nichols Said to Be Interested.

The complaint of Mrs. Hahn was that Duveen prevented the sale of the picture at a big price, by saying it was not a real da Vinci, at the time the picture was about to be sold. The would-be purchaser, so Conrad Hug, Kansas City art merchant, testified at the trial, was Nichols, for the Art Institute here.

The lawyer from New York sent here by Duveen was Walter H. Pollack. He put these questions to Nichols, and the answers follow in sequence:

"Did you have certain talks with Mr. Hug in the summer of 1920 about a picture known as 'La Belle Feronniere,' said to have been painted by Leonardo da Vinci?" "Yes."

"Did you say to Mr. Hug in terms or substance that the Kansas City Art Institute would buy that picture?" "No, I didn't say that."

"Did you ever say that if the picture was proved to be by Da Vinci that the institute would buy it?" "No."

Denies He Promised to Buy.

"Did you ever say that if Sir Joseph Duveen would retract his statement about the picture not being a Da Vinci, that the institute would buy it?" "No."

"Did you ever say the institute would buy the picture for a quarter million dollars?" "No."

"Did you ever say it would buy for any amount?" "No."

"As a matter of fact, did the Kansas City Art Institute in 1920 have property equaling a quarter million dollars in value?" "No."

The cross-examination, it should be mentioned, will be held later, with Robert Burns, New York lawyer, and R. R. Brewster of Kansas City present to interrogate for the Hahn-Hug side. A Kansas City lawyer, Cyrus Crane, also was present for Duveen. His third lawyer was Thomas Brody of New York.

Some more questions by Pollack established that the Art Institute in 1920 did not own the building it occupied, that it owned 12 paintings valued by Nichols at not more than $15,000, that the annual income of the Institute might have been $60,000 and virtually all of that went into expenses, that the balance in the bank never was more than $20,000 and that sometimes it was overdrawn, that there was a $20,000 debt from moving from downtown into the building on the South Side. In short, that the Institute did not have resources to buy a $250,000 picture.

Bought No Pictures for Museum.

"Did you ever buy any kind of a picture for the Institute?" Pollack wanted to know. "Were you ever instructed by the trustees to buy one?" And Nichols answered "No" to each question.

Photostatic copies of the Kansas City Star of June 18, 19 and 21, 1920, containing stories of "La Belle" arriving here, of it being called not an original by the director and curator at the Louvre in Paris, where another "La Belle" rests, and of Hug persisting that it was a Da Vinci in the face of these denials, were shown by Pollack in an effort to fix the date of the Hug-Nichols conversation.

Moreover, did Nichols read the New York World at that time, particularly the issue containing the story from Duveen denying the Hahn "La Belle" was original? No. Then the name of Duveen might never have been mentioned in the talks with Hug? No, it wasn't, that Nichols could recollect, although it was possible Hug mentioned the name and Nichols didn't notice.

As these important denials were brought out, Mrs. Hug, the wife of the art dealer, who is in New York at the trial, and Conrad Hug Jr., their son, sat in the Walsh office and listened. They made no comment.

JOINS DEMAND FOR OIL INQUIRY

Assistant Counsel Says There Is Basis for Salt Creek Investigation.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—Fuel was added to the fire in the Senate Lands Committee over the proposal of Chairman Nye to continue investigation of the Salt Creek, Wyo., oil field leases today with support of the proposition by Russell MacFarland, its assistant counsel.

Pending further examination of MacFarland, the Committee again deferred a vote on the Nye resolution, and another meeting was called for Tuesday. Strong opposition to the resolution has developed with some of the Democrats joining in this attack. Thomas Sterling, counsel of the Committee, recently reported the leases valid. His assistant, MacFarland, however, today informed the Committee in executive session that he could see some basis for further inquiry.

5-YEAR-OLD BOY KILLED BY TRUCK, CHAUFFEUR HELD

Virgil Hancock Jr., 1045 Graham St., Run Down at Clayton and Tamm, Dies Three Hours Later.

Virgil Hancock Jr., 5-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Hancock, 1045 Graham street, died at 6:40 p. m. yesterday at St. Mary's Hospital of a fractured skull suffered three hours before, when he was struck by a truck at Clayton and Tamm avenues.

Edward Werner Jr., driver of the truck, who is employed by his father, a florist, at 3625 South Grand boulevard was held by police. He said that he stopped for a traffic signal and proceeded [illegible] in Clayton avenue when given the right-of-way. After he had passed the center of Tamm avenue, the boy ran against his right fender, he said.

An inquest will be held.

Driver of Auto Which Killed C. A. Klossner to Testify.

An inquest at Columbia, Mo., into the death of Clarence A. Klossner, 24, jewelry salesman, 5795 Kingsbury place, who was fatally injured in an automobile accident Friday night, will be resumed today, with the testimony of Fred Dierge, student, of St. Joseph, whose car collided with Klossner's.

The accident occurred at a Columbia street intersection. Klossner was thrown through the windshield of his coupe. Dierge and a man and woman companion, university students, were slightly injured. William Walsworth, one of Dierge's passengers, admitted he and Dierge had been drinking, but denied they were intoxicated.

Two other students testified that their car had been struck by Dierge's car before the accident in which Klossner was injured.

They gave chase, they testified, and saw Dierge's car collide with Klossner's. Dierge did not slow down at the intersection, they said, and at one time was traveling [illegible] miles an hour.

Klossner was on his way home from Kansas City to spend the week-end. His father, Fred C. Klossner, went to Columbia yesterday to bring back his son's body for burial. Klossner was a sales representative for the Balfour Jewelry Co. of Massachusetts. His headquarters were in Dallas, Tex.

NAME CHOSEN FOR MERCANTILE-COMMERCE UNION

Notices to Stockholders Announce It Will Be Mercantile-Commerce Bank & Trust Co.

WILSON CHAIRMAN, LONSDALE PRESIDENT

Commerce Stockholders to Get ½ Share of Old Issue for One of New, Mercantile 1⅔ Shares.

The Mercantile-Commerce Bank and Trust Co. is the name chosen for the new depository created by the merger of the Mercantile Trust Co. and National Bank of Commerce. George W. Wilson, now president of the Mercantile, will be chairman of the board, and John G. Lonsdale, now president of the Bank of Commerce, will be president of the Mercantile-Commerce.

These facts are announced in communications mailed last evening to stockholders of the two depositories, with combined resources in excess of $160,000,000. The stockholders are requested in the letters, which they will receive tomorrow morning, to send in their stock certificates for exchange within the next 15 days, so that the consolidation may be completed as early as possible.

As previously announced, the new company is to occupy the present Mercantile quarters at Eighth and Locust streets.

Division of Stock.

The capital structure will consist of $10,000,000 capital stock, $5,000,000 surplus, and $2,500,000 undivided profits, a total of $17,500,000. The Mercantile Trust Co. will contribute $7,687,500 of this capital and the Bank of Commerce, $9,812,500.

The stock of the new bank, 100,000 shares, will be divided equally between stockholders of the two merging banks. Commerce stockholders will receive one-half share of new stock for each share of Commerce stock, and Mercantile stockholders will receive one and two-thirds shares of new stock for every share of Mercantile. No fractional shares will be issued, but the purchase and sale of fractions of shares will be facilitated.

Remaining assets of each merging bank will be held by liquidating companies. The Mercantile liquidating company will hold assets of approximately $4,290,000 or about $143 a share, and the Commerce liquidating company, assets of approximately $5,500,000 or $55 a share. These assets will be distributed to stockholders of the old banks from time to time as they are turned into cash. The corporate existence of the Bank of Commerce will be maintained, with a nominal capital, in order to administer existing trusts.

Details of Merger.

It is contemplated that the Bank of Commerce will organize a State trust company, and will transfer to that company its approved assets equal to its liabilities plus $9,812,500, the amount which the Bank of Commerce is to contribute to the consolidation. The new State trust company then will be consolidated with the Mercantile Trust Co., in accordance with the laws of Missouri.

Both institutions will put into the consolidation their land and buildings at book value, but the Bank of Commerce will deposit $500,000 in trust with the consolidated trust company, to protect it to the extent of that amount against loss, if any, on account of the land and buildings of the Bank of Commerce, which are to be sold.

Increased Earning Expected.

Temporary certificates of deposit will be issued to stockholders and these certificates will be listed on the St. Louis Stock Exchange in order that they may be bought and sold until permanent certificates are issued.

In a message to the Commerce stockholders, President Lonsdale said:

"Estimates of prospective earnings indicate that a stockholder may expect increased earnings on his investment in the new company, over and above the earnings this corresponding investment in the separate institutions is now producing, and in addition there will be a substantial cash distribution made contemporaneously with or shortly after the merger, and liquidating dividends as the remaining assets are converted into money."

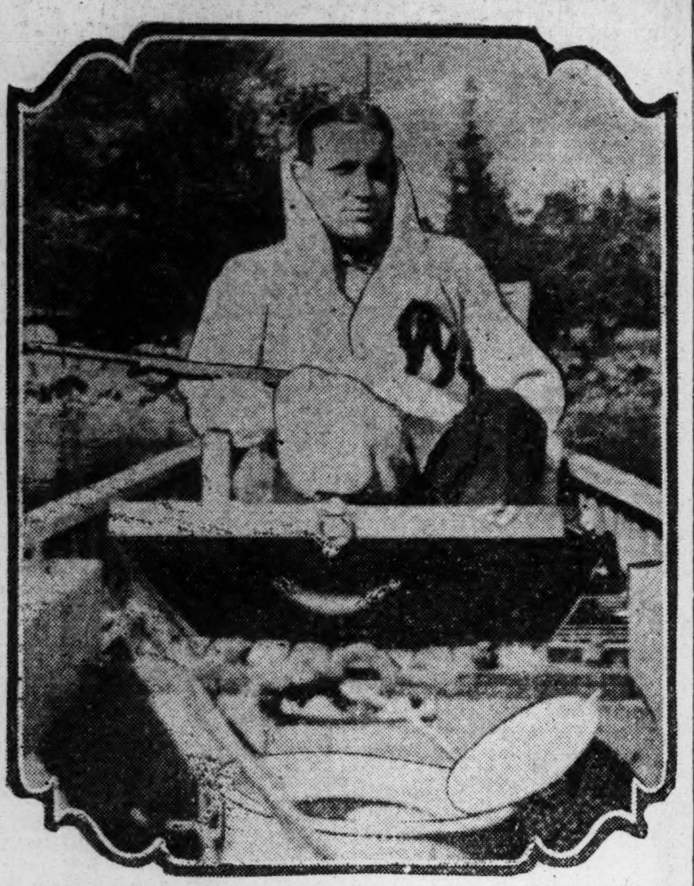
The message sent to Mercantile Trust stockholders by President Wilson says, as to the liquidating plan affecting them:

"It is contemplated that the liquidating company will liquidate its assets as rapidly as possible and make distribution of the proceeds thereof to the stockholders. It is expected that substantial payments in liquidation of this company will be made to the stockholders during the present year."

Hughes and Davis to Bermuda.

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—A distinguished Republican and a distinguished Democrat, each defeated for the presidency, sailed for Bermuda with their wives today on the same steamer for two-week vacations. They were Charles E. Hughes and John W. Davis. "We're each holding our own now," was the way Hughes explained it.

Paralyzed But He's Made A Success as a Chemist



Thomas M. Pierce Jr., in a boat at the fishing lodge he owns in Northern Minnesota. In spite of his paralysis from the waist down, he is an ardent and expert fisherman.

Thomas M. Pierce Jr. Has Been Crippled Since He Was 13 But It Hasn't Handicapped Him.

Although he is paralyzed from the waist down and has been confined to bed or a wheel chair since he was 13, Thomas M. Pierce, at the age of 28, has graduated from St. Louis University, has completed a post-graduate course in chemical engineering at Washington University, and has to his record two financially successful chemical discoveries.

When he was 13, a hunting accident left a bullet in young Pierce's upper vertebrae. Three operations, the most recent of them last October, have failed to relieve the paralysis that resulted although the bullet has been removed following a series of events described by Thomas M. Pierce Sr as unprecedented in medical history.

An operation shortly after the accident revealed that the bullet was visible in the boy's upper spine but inaccessible because it had entered from the front, narrowly missing the windpipe. Several years later it became dislodged, traveled down the spiral column to the small of the back and was extracted.

In the meantime, the elder Pierce, who is vice president and general counsel of the Terminal Railroad Association, had fitted up a complete chemical laboratory in the Pierce home at 21 Vandeventer place and had engaged tutors for his son.

Had Chauffeur and Valet.

"Tom was always bright," Pierce told a Post-Dispatch reporter yesterday. "He led his classes at Western Military Academy, where he was attending school at the time of his injury. After I brought him home from his grandfather's place at Union City, Tenn., where he had been shot, the school sent me a medal for scholarship that Tom had won.

"Well, after the tutoring he attended classes at St. Louis University in his wheel chair. He finished there and then took a post-graduate course in chemical engineering at Washington University.

"Tom has his own automobile, his own chauffeur and a valet. I had a special chair installed for him at St. Louis University, when he was attending there, and we kept a wheelchair in the school. The chauffeur and the valet used to lift him into the wheelchair, and then the valet would wheel him to his classes and lift him into his special classroom chair.

"When he went to Washington University, where he had a lot of laboratory work to do, we had a laboratory table built specially for him. It was cut away in a little semicircle so his chair would fit right up in it. His valet waited outside for him while he was attending lectures and laboratory periods, and his car called for him at the end of each day's session.

Had Second Accident.

"Incidentally, this is the method he uses now, in his downtown laboratory and in the one at home. His chauffeur and valet are always available and special furniture make it as convenient as possible for him.

"During his school career, he was injured again. A truck ran into his automobile and the end of his spine, the coccyx, was broken off. That injury failed to heal, but Tom went right ahead with his school work and then with his job."

Thus it was that Thomas Pierce Jr., paralyzed, the end of his spine broken off and the wound unhealed, finished a course in chemical engineering with one of the highest scholastic standards ever made in Washington University. It was in this condition that he went to work for the Monsanto Chemical Co. three years ago.

Caught Sailfish.

His term with the Monsanto concern was temporarily halted last October by another operation on his spine in an attempt to heal the fractured coccyx. Before that, however, he had discovered a new method of manufacturing aspirin, a method which he patented and turned over to his employers who now use it exclusively. And he also had formulated "Neez," a compound to prolong the life of silk stockings, which he sold to the Lambert Pharmacal Co.

At present he is in Florida, recovering from the last operation, that kept him in Barnes Hospital until after Christmas. His latest achievement occurred there last week. His chair was wheeled aboard a yacht which sailed out into the Gulf Stream and he caught three sailfish.

Accompanied by his valet and an orderly from Barnes Hospital, young Pierce was wheeled aboard a yacht which took him to the gulf stream, eight miles offshore, which is the only pace sailfish may be caught.

Sets Record for Year.

Long, slender, with a pointed proboscis somewhat like that of the swordfish, and with a sail-like dorsal fin, they are generally conceded to be the most difficult fish in the world to land. They put up a stiff battle after they are hooked, and frequently leap high out of the water and shake the hooks out of their mouths.

"In catching three in a single day, one eight and one-half, one seven, and one six feet long, Tom set a record for the year at Miami Beach, and as far as we know, it may be a world's record, said his father.

"He can't walk, but he's a fine chemical engineer, and a real fisherman. Furthermore, he hasn't given up hope of walking. His doctor told us of a soldier who was shot and who walked again after 37 years of paralysis.

"Tom spends an hour every day having his legs massaged and trying to force through them the nerve impulses that will make him walk. And he'll make it some day if there's any reward for sustained conscientious effort."

HOUSE AGAIN BEATS PROPOSED DRY FUND OF $24,000,000

reading is all that is demanded. Democrats also frequently demanded teller votes on various amendments.

With the session almost at an end, any delay in passage of the measure by the House might threaten its chances for enactment in the Senate, for Senator Glass (Dem.), Virginia, has announced that although he has never conducted a filibuster, he believes that any deficiency bill will have difficulty obtaining approval unless the $24,000,000 item is included.

The progress of the bill was slow and long before the end of consideration was in sight, the lights had been turned on and the House found itself forced into the first night meeting this session.

TWO ARRESTED IN THREE LIQUOR RAIDS IN COUNTY

Two Residences Among Places Entered Where Home Brew Is Confiscated or Destroyed.

Three raids by deputy sheriffs of St. Louis County yesterday afternoon resulted in the arrest of two men on charges of possession and the confiscation of a small quantity of home brew, wine and gin.

Wilfred Weigel, a salesman, was arrested at his home at 9004 Bristol avenue, Overland. Fred J. Kissner was arrested in his soft drink parlor and grocery at 6700 St. Charles Rock road, Wellston. Weigel and Kissner were released on $1000 bonds each.

A raid on a residence at 9425 Midland avenue, Overland, resulted in the confiscation and destruction of a large stock of bottled home brew.

THREE HERRIN EX-OFFICIALS SENT TO PENITENTIARY

Former Mayor McCormack Gets Two Years, Brother One Year, Ex-Police Chief 18 Months.

Former Mayor, Marshall McCormack of Herrin, Ill., his brother, Elmer McCormack, a policeman, and Chief of Police John Stamm, were sentenced to the penitentiary and fined by Federal Judge Wham at East St. Louis yesterday for conspiracy to violate the national prohibition laws during 1926 and 1927 when gang rule was at its height in Williamson County.

Alvin Misker, water superintendent, who was jointly indicted with the other three but pleaded guilty and testified against them in their recent trial, was let off with a fine of $500 and allowed a year in which to pay it.

Marshall McCormack was sentenced to two years and fined $3000. The maximum penalty provided by law is two years in prison and a $10,000 fine. Elmer McCormack was sentenced to one year and to a day and fined $500, and former Chief of Police Stamm to 18 months and fined $1000.

No Appeals to Be Taken.

With the announcement by defense counsel that no appeals would be taken, the three men were taken to the United States Marshal's office. Two deputy marshals were assigned to take them to Leavenworth penitentiary on the midnight Missouri Pacific train.

The McCormacks and Stamm, who were found guilty by a jury Feb. 15, appeared in court prepared for immediate imprisonment. At the conclusion of their trial they had been granted eight days of grace, during which they returned to Herrin, resigned from their offices and wound up their affairs.

Marshall McCormack, who is 36 years old, was a coal miner, grocer and Ku Klux Klan leader at intervals before he was elected Mayor in 1926. He had appointed his brother, 40 years old, and Stamm, 41, to the offices they held. All three of the men are married.

Misker was released from bail after he was sentenced on his promise to report once each month to Sheriff Oren Coleman of Williamson County until his fine was paid in full.

Court Rakes Betrayal of Trust.

Before passing sentence on Marshall McCormack, Judge Wham said: "All agree that no charge is more serious than the betrayal of public trust. The Mayor of Herrin had the power of appointment and sole authority to enforce the law and aided in the violation of the law. The law is powerless without the aid of men to administer it, and when it is betrayed the whole fabric of law enforcement collapses.

"The betrayal of law in Williamson County or any other place where there is a large percentage of foreign-born persons is much more serious than in other places. It is doubly serious because the foreign-born element is quick to seize upon the example set for them by the public officials. The jury was amply justified in its decision."

Of the two police officers, Judge Wham said: "No police board can be more efficient than its policemen who are appointed to guard public property and public safety. It has been said that these men were tools for others but every man in this country stands on his own resources. It cannot be said that they should be excused on the representation that they were used as tools."

Seven Officials Convicted.

During the last month seven public officials of Williamson County have been prosecuted successfully in Federal Court at East St. Louis under conspiracy indictments. Five have received penitentiary sentences, including the three sentenced today. Arlie O. Boswell and George W. Bell, who were State's Attorney and Coroner, respectively, during the period of gang rule and retired from office last November shortly before their indictment, are now at Leavenworth. Boswell is serving a two-year term and Bell a one-year term. They were convicted by a jury in January with Hezzie Byrn, former Chief of Police of Johnston City, who will be sentenced by Federal Judge Lindley at Danville next Saturday.

The Government sought in both trials to show that the defendants solicited and collected protection bribes from bootleggers, saloon keepers and resort keepers, and connived with Birger gangsters in violations of the law. The defendants confined themselves mostly to specific denials of Government charges and attacks on the credibility of Government witnesses.

SCIENTIST LOOKS FOR ANOTHER ICE AGE ON EARTH

Geologist Van Nordmann Doesn't Expect It for 20,000 Years, However.

By the Associated Press.

COPENHAGEN, Feb. 23.—The severity of the winter through which Europe is passing has led scientists to wonder if another ice age will visit the earth. One scientist thinks it will—but not for another 20,000 or 25,000 years.

There is no reason to believe that the earth will not pass through one or more glacial periods, says Dr. Van Nordmann, Danish geologist. He says the earth has already passed through three glacial periods and two inter-glacial periods, while it is possible that the ice ages have numbered four and the milder interludes three.

"We know that the climate of these inter-glacial periods has been warmer and better than the climate we have been enjoying during our time," Dr. Van Nordmaen said. "And there is absolutely no reason why we should not have another glacial era. It may not be as severe as the very first glacial period, which penetrated farther south than the succeeding ones."

DRIVER OF LAUNDRY TRUCK ROBBED OF $160 BY NEGRO

An armed Negro stopped George Mayernick, 2929 Lemp avenue, a driver for the Morgan Laundry Co., as Mayernick was getting in his truck in front of 3814 Windsor place last night and took $160 which was concealed in the truck.

Three men, two of whom were armed, held up a Kroger store at 3750 St. Louis avenue and robbed Gus Damhorst, the manager, of $110.

An armed robber held up the grocery store of John McGuire, 3209 Tennyson place, and took $20 in cash.

HOW COLLECTION OF CAMPAIGN FUND IS PROGRESSING

provided the account of expenditures and large contributions for the Post-Dispatch at Kiel's direction, said contributions were coming in slowly. There have been about 250 donors, he said, the smalles gift being 25 cents. Kiel's expenditures, aggregating about $16,000 to date, were listed as follows:

Advertising in newspapers, $3200; advertising in weekly and monthly publications, $2246; pledge cards, $820; radio time, $525; postage, $350; buttons, $915; signs, $631; art work and advertising service, $1205, and the balance for publicity, rent of 28 ward headquarters, rent of halls and salary of headquarter's employes and canvassers.

When a Post-Dispatch reporter asked Hedges for Miller's fund accounts, Hedges inquired of Police Judge Rosecan, who was present, what the law on the subject was. Rosecan gave his understanding that a candidate nominated in the primary could make a single report after the election. Then Hedges said: "That's what we will do, because we're going to win."

Miller's Comment.

Mayor Miller declared he knew nothing about the accounts of his campaign committee and he declined to instruct Hedges to make them available. He said he had told his workers he did not want to know about his funds, and that he had not instructed his committee as to a limit on the size of the fund or of individual contributions. Told of a report which had reached Kiel workers that more than $100,000 had been raised in his behalf, he said that he was not denying rumors.

Kiel's supporters say that more space in newspapers and other publications and on billboards had been obtained for Miller than for Kiel. Political observers, speculating that the race between Miller and Kiel will be close, have concluded that the one who has the most money to hire workers to get out the vote on primary day may win. Kiel himself says his difficulty will be in combatting the activity of the "City Hall machine" in getting voters to the polls. Without additional funds, Kiel will have to depend largely on volunteers for this service. Miller says he knows nothing about the amount to be spent for precinct workers. His manager denied that the sum will be as large as $100 per precinct.

Harlow, discussing his activity, said: "I haven't raised as much as I would like to; that's all I can say." He said he was sending "some of it" to the treasurer of the Miller committee and would make a report "if I'm supposed to." The quarters he had at Hotel Statler have been closed, Harlow added.

MRS. OGDEN GOELET DIES OF PNEUMONIA

Former Social Leader, Mother of Duchess of Roxburghe, Succumbs in New York.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—Mrs. Ogden Goelet, former New York and Newport society leader, died today in her apartment at the Savoy-Plaza Hotel. She was the sister of Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, mother of the Duchess of Roxburghe. She succumbed following five days' illness of pneumonia.

At the bedside were her sister, Mrs. Vanderbilt; her sister-in-law, Mrs. R. T. Wilson; her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Goelet, and grandsons, Ogden and Peter Goelet.

Ogden Goelet, her husband, with a fortune of $30,000,000 when she became his bride, died at Cowes, Isle of Wight, when cruising on his yacht, the Mayflower.

Mrs. Goelet relinquished her social leadership in New York several years ago when she went to Europe and remained there several seasons. She had spent much of her time in recent years with the Duchess of Roxburghe, formerly May Goelet, at Floors Castle, Scotland.

Mrs. Goelet was Mary Wilson, eldest daughter of Richard T. Wilson, who came to New York after the Civil War. She was a famous Southern beauty, when she met Goelet at New London, Conn., during a yachting race. Her sister married Lord Michael Herbert, Her eldest brother, Marshall Orme Wilson, married Carrie Astor, and another sister became the wife of Cornelius Vanderbilt. Mrs. Goelet's youngest brother married Marion Mason of Boston, scion of a family including the names of Lowell, Lawrence and Ames. Robert Wilson Goelet, her son, married Elsie Whelen of Philadelphia.

The funeral will be held at the old Goelet mansion on Fifth avenue, once the scene of many brilliant social events, but which has been closed for many seasons.

MAYOR CARRIES CAMPAIGN TO THE DANCING FLOOR

Makes No Speeches at Ward Entertainments but Joins in the Stepping.

Mayor Miller continued his campaign for re-election last night with visits to two Republican ward dances. He made no speeches, confining himself to greetings and a few dances.

He appeared first at a dance given by the Ninth Ward Regular Republican Organization at Swiss Hall, Iowa avenue and Arsenal street, where he remained about an hour; then proceeded to a Twenty-fourth Ward Republican dance at Pernod and Wabash avenues.

SENATE VOTES FOR INQUIRY INTO CONDUCT OF U. S. JUDGE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—Congressional action on the resolution providing for an investigation into the charges of judicial misconduct against Federal Judge Francis A. Winslow, Southern district of New York, was concluded today with the Senate's passage of the Graham resolution. The resolution now goes to the President.

The measure would set up a special investigating committee, subcommittee of the House Judiciary Committee, to inquire into the charges brought against Judge Winslow in an original resolution introduced by Representative La Guardia (Rep.), New York.

EXCHANGE DIRECTORS PRAISE MONIER TO GOV. CAULFIELD

Declare State Warehouse Commissioner Has Built Up Efficiency of Grain Inspection.

The work as State Warehouse Commissioner of Roy H. Monier was praised by directors of the Merchants' Exchange of St. Louis in a conference with Gov. Caulfield at the exchange yesterday, the directors stating that Monier had built up the State Grain Inspection branch to the point of efficiency where it is one of the best in the United States.

The directors had heard that Monier was to be promoted by appointment of the Governor to chief of another department, and the conference in St. Louis was arranged to inform the Governor of Monier's good work as Warehouse Commissioner and to discuss the appointment of his successor in case he is promoted to another department.

Gov. Caulfield listened with interest to what was said of Monier, but did not disclose his intentions in the matter.

J. S. CARR, OUT OF PRISON, SAYS HE HAS NO PLANS

Former Cashier Who Wrecked Chippewa Bank by Peculations Completes Sentence.

Joseph S. Carr, former cashier of the Chippewa Bank, returned to St. Louis yesterday, after being discharged from the State penitentiary at Jefferson City, where he served four years and five months of four sentences totaling eight years, imposed for embezzlement. The bank was wrecked by his peculations, totaling $710,000.

Carr said he had no plans for the immediate future. He is 51 years old.

MAN WHO RAISED U. S. FLAG OVER MANILA DIES

E. P. Stanton was Signal Boy on Dewey's Flagship in Spanish War.

Edward Paul Stanton, 49 years old, who served as a signal boy on Admiral Dewey's flagship Olympia during the Spanish War and was selected by Dewey to raise the first American flag over Manila when that city surrendered Aug. 13, 1898, died yesterday at United States Veterans' Hospital No. 92, Jefferson Barracks. Death was caused by pneumonia and blood poisoning which set in following the amputation of his left foot a week ago Friday.

In 1896, when stationed in Yokohama, Japan, Mr. Stanton fractured a small bone in his ankle in fighting a fire. At the time he thought he had merely sprained his ankle, which did not trouble him until five years ago. In that year his foot was again injured in an automobile accident in California. Examination disclosed the old fracture. Ever since then Mr. Stanton has suffered ill health due to infection in the ankle.

Stanton left his home in Louisville, Ky., when he was 15 years old and entered the navy. For his services with Dewey, he received the Dewey medal of honor and the Spanish campaign medal.

Leaving the navy in 1899, Mr. Stanton worked for the Chicago & Northwestern Railroad until 1916, first as a traveling freight solicitor and for the last two years as chief clerk in the New Orleans office of the road. Then he became sales-manager for the Lumaghi Coal Co., St. Louis, leaving the company in 1924 and going to California. Following the second injury to his ankle, he was a patient in the veterans' hospital at San Francisco until early in 1926 when he returned to St. Louis.

Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

Surviving are one brother, Thomas Stanton; one son, Wyllys G. Stanton, and two daughters, Miss Alice Ruth Stanton and Mrs. Mildred Fusan, all of St. Louis.

Four other St. Louisans have the Dewey medal of honor: Capt. Henry Honeywell, balloonist; H. L. Fuller, a foreman at the postoffice; George Kohler of Webster Groves, and Jacob Kuhl.

Former Page Buys Exchange Seat.

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—A former page on the floor of the New York Stock Exchange—Wilfred H. Fritts, 25 years old—was disclosed today as the purchaser of an exchange membership. The price was not announced. Fritts' first job after graduating from high school in Jersey City, N. J., in 1922 was as a page in the exchange. Later he was employed in the Stock Exchange secretary's office, and from there stepped to the position of telephone clerk on the exchange floor for a New York brokerage house.

BODY OF WOMAN BURNED AFTER SHE IS SHOT TO DEATH

Found Near Cranford, N. J., With Clothing Still Ablaze — Second Such Mystery in Year.

By the Associated Press.

CRANFORD, N. J., Feb. 23.—The discovery of an unidentified woman who first had been shot and beaten to death and whose clothing then had been saturated with gasoline and set afire, in the snow by a lonely road, today started New Jersey police on their second hunt in a year for a "torch murderer."

Their only clews were dental bridge work in the woman's upper jaw, some jewelry, clothing and a fleeting glimpse of a blue automobile which the driver of a bakery truck obtained as he sped by.

A blue automobile was the only clew police had early in their investigation of the similarly strange death of Miss Margaret Brown, a New York governess. She was found not far from here just a year and three days ago, in an isolated strip of wood in the adjoining county of Somerset. Authorities from that county came to Union County when they learned of today's slaying, but after a brief inquiry announced they could find nothing to connect it with their unsolved mystery.

The unidentified woman was dead when her blazing body was discovered by John Boyle, a driver for the Ward Baking Company. Just as dawn was breaking, less than a half hour before, Henry Denner, driver for the Hill Bread Company, sped by in his truck. He told officials that he saw a blue coupe parked on Springfield avenue, a short distance from the scene, and a figure nearby waving frantically to him to stop, but he feared highwaymen and continued

Police Chief James Hennessy of Cranford, expressed the belief that the woman was slain elsewhere and her body thrown from an automobile and set afire in Springfield avenue.

The woman was about 45 years old. She was 5 feet 5½ inches tall and weighed 155 pounds. Her hair was blond, mixed with gray, and she had blue eyes.

An autopsy by Assistant County Physician George M. Horre, showed the woman's death was caused by a bullet fired into the top of her head, apparently while she was seated. The slug coursed down through a lung and lodged beneath a rib. The skull was crushed and the face burned beyond recognition.

INVESTIGATING AID FOR GOV. CAULFIELD PROPOSED

Senators Prepare to Adopt Executive's Suggestion to Check Up on Job Holders.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 23.—To enable Gov. Caulfield to maintain close personal supervision of the functioning of all State departments under his jurisdiction, Senate leaders are preparing to include in the appropriation bill an adequate salary for an additional employe in the Governor's office. His job will be to visit all institutions and departments and to keep the Governor informed of the efficiency of his appointees, and to report any irregularities which come to his attention.

Several weeks ago the Governor, at a conference with a group of Senators and Representatives, suggested that such an employe be authorized. The Governor in effect told the legislators that to give the State an administration of high efficiency he deemed it necessary to have a personal representative to make investigations for him.

ABANDONED LIBERTY MOTORS TO RECEIVE TEST IN TANKS

Engine, Famous in Airplanes in War, but Since Barred, Descends to Earth.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23. — The Liberty motor, heralded at its birth during the war as a mechanical triumph but now declared unreliable for aviation as compared with modern motors, may obtain a new lease of life in another field.

The Army's mechanics have placed a Liberty in the Christie tank, modified as an armored car, and will give it a thorough test. It can operate either as a wheeled or a track-laying vehicle. On a recent test between Fort Leonard Wood, Md., and Gettysburg, a distance of 72 miles, it covered the ground on wheels one way and as a track-layer the other in less than three hours.

There are about 4000 Liberty motors still on hand but the Air Corps by congressional legislation may use them only to replace motors in old planes.

Sir Douglas Mawson Praises Byrd Discovery in Antarctic

Australian, Soon to Lead Own Party Into Frozen South, Predicts Greater Successes for Commander.

(Copyright, 1929, by the New York Times)

LONDON, Feb. 23.—Commander Richard Byrd's discovery of a vast new Antarctic territory for the United States is hailed as a magnificent achievement by Sir Douglas Mawson, the Australian explorer, who will soon lead an expedition of his own to the frozen continent.

In an hour's talk with the correspondent of the New York Times; Sir Douglas said that Commander Byrd might now expect to find active volcanoes and mountains rich in minerals—if he could find a section of rock not covered with ice. With each successive flight into the Antarctic, he said, Commander Byrd would go further toward solving the mystery of what lies between the Ross Sea and Graham Land.

He warned, however, that with the bitter Antarctic winter coming soon, Commander Byrd would be prudent to rest on his laurels till next summer. It would be safer, according to Sir Douglas, not to attempt more long flights now.

He said it would be dangerous for the commander and his aviators to make a forced landing far from the base at a time when blizzards might soon be raging over the icy wastes.

In Most Interesting Area.

He suggested that there was plenty for Commander Byrd to do in scientific explorations near his base.

"Commander Byrd is getting on splendidly," explained Sir Douglas as he read the accounts of his latest flight wirelessed from the Bay of Whales. "There is no question that he will be wonderfully successful. He has the equipment for one thing. He has an able group of scientists with him, Besides, he is exploring by far the most interesting part of the Antarctic—the smaller land mass lying between Graham Land, which Capt. Sir Hubert Wilkins saw from his plane, and the Bay of Whales, where Commander Byrd has his base.

"The larger mass of what is known as the Antarctic Continent is apparently an elevated plateau region composed of ancient rock formations raised above the sea by what geologists call block uplift. This region lies south of Africa and Australia and embraces the geographic pole itself.

"I have seen the coast land of this country and explored some distance inland, but it is not interesting.

Land Theory Upheld.

"The other section of the continent—that lying south of Cape Horn and as far as the Ross Sea, south of New Zealand—is of a different nature. This is where Commander Byrd is now flying. Except for the extension south of Cape Horn, little is known of it and there has been much speculation as to its constitution.

"One theory holds that it is a region of scattered islands joined together and to the plateau mass of Antarctica by a great ice sheet which extends over land and sea alike. The exponents of this view hold that a sea channel will be found to extend under the ice joining the Weddell Sea with the Ross Sea.

"I do not share that view and flights which Commander Byrd has been making tend to confirm my judgment. I believe that continuous land will be found under the ice between the Weddell Sea and the Ross Sea. Geologists have long believed this region to be a crumpled formation, a region of mountain ranges, valleys and occasionally volcanoes.

"We believe it once formed a part of the Pacific Ocean floor with intercalations and extrusions of igneous rocks. It was 'crumpled' over the vast ages of geological time by the push of the Pacific floor against the harder and older rock mass of the other half of the Antarctic continent.

Believes There Are Volcanoes.

"All accounts which have come from Commander Byrd—coupled with what we already know of this country—bear out the beliefs of the geologists.

"Commander Byrd has found the Rockefeller range and beyond that more mountains.

"As he flies further toward the Weddell Sea he will probably find extinct and active volcanoes and probably of the same type as those in the 'folded' country of Graham Land."

Sir Douglas then pointed to a map of the Pacific Ocean and the countries bordering it. With a pencil he traced a line along the rocky mountains of Mexico and the Andes right to the Antarctic.

Then, skipping from Graham Land to the Ross Sea, he traced again through mountainous New Zealand, New Guinea, the Philippines, Japan, the Kurile Islands and the Aleutian Islands. This, he described as the "fire ring" of the Pacific during the ages while the earth was being formed.

19,000-Foot Peaks.

"Commander Byrd's flights have made it more likely that Western Antarctic, from the Weddell Sea to the Ross Sea, is a mere continuation of that 'Pacific ring.'" Sir Douglas went on. "So far we have found that it has characteristics in common with the Andes and the Rockies. Copper and gold have been found in the mountains—and if we could penetrate beneath their icy sheath we should find still more.

"The Rockefeller range which Commander Byrd has just discovered probably corresponds to the Cascade Mountains and the Sierra Nevadas in California.

"The higher peaks corresponding to the Rockies are further inland. They are the ultimate mountains of all. Capt. Roald Amundsen crossed them on his dash to the Pole and told of seeing giant peaks of 19,000 feet in the distance.

"If Commander Byrd obtains rock specimens and if he can prove they are merely a continuation of the Andes formation, he will have done a great service to the knowledge of our world."

Sir Douglas said that he had marveled at Commander Byrd's achievement in safely carrying his great supplies of equipment ashore.

Inspects His Ship.

He was on the Indian Ocean, going from Australia to London, when the news of the safe landing came from the Bay of Whales. He said today that it had been his only fear when he waved good-by to Commander Byrd at Dunedin, New Zealand, last autumn. In accomplishing it safely, Sir Douglas said, Commander Byrd's men had shown their caliber.

Sir Douglas stood on the deck of the historic ship Discovery at the West India docks yesterday and made his first thorough inspection of the vessel which will take him to the Antarctic.

The sturdy little ship, which had carried Capt. Robert Scott and Sir Ernest Shackleton, was in strange company. She lay in the shadow of the Limehouse slums where she had been ever since returning from a year's cruise to South Georgia Island, east of Tierra del Fuego, 18 months ago.

Dirty freighters with unromantic names were being unloaded at their berths. Next to her lay a grotesque looking dredger laid up for repairs like an ungainly monster which did not belong in the London river at all. Above all their funnels and derricks, however, could be seen a tangle of tall masts and one yellow smokestack which had the tang of the sea about it.

Vessel Ready to Sail.

Although the Discovery has not officially been handed over to Sir Douglas, there is every probability that he will accept the offer announced by Premier Bruce in the Australian Parliament yesterday. He was as happy as a schoolboy today looking over the ship and thinking, no doubt, of new adventures in the frozen seas.

The Discovery is in such good condition that she could start for the Antarctic next week if necessary. Outwardly she looks as frail as an old-time caravel. Like Commander Byrd's City of New York, this ship is a bark with auxiliary steam power—a steamship with sails.

Her displacement is only 1620 tons and her registered tonnage is only 485. Although 172 feet long, she is only 34 feet wide, so she can be maneuvered easily in the polar ice fields.

Her frame, in comparison with a liner's shell, is remarkable, for whereas the largest ocean greyhounds have steel plate an inch thick between the sea and the ship's inside, this ship's frame is 11 inches thick and made of solid oak. Inside the frame there is an inner lining of solid planking four inches thick, while the outside is covered with two other layers of planking, six inches and five inches thick, respectively. In order to bore a hole through the hull most places one would have to penetrate 26 inches of wood. And her bow, which will have to crash through the ice floes, is nine feet thick.

CENTENARY OF CARL SCHURZ TO BE OBSERVED IN ST. LOUIS

Dinner Will Be Held by Steuben Society at Hotel Jefferson; Other Groups to Co-Operate.

Arrangements have been completed for the St. Louis observance of the centenary of the birth of Carl Schurz, former St. Louis editor, Senator from Missouri, noted civil service reformer, sound money advocate and anti-imperialist. Schurz was born in Prussia March 2, 1829, but the celebration here will be held Tuesday night, March 12, at Hotel Jefferson. A dinner will be given under the auspices of Carl Schurz Unit No. 28, Steuben Society of America. Historical and other organizations will co-operate.

Charles J. Dolan, former Associate City Counselor, in a radio talk Friday afternoon, paid tribute to Schurz as a soldier, statesman and political idealist. Speakers at the dinner March 12 will be Luther Ely Smith, Richard Bartholdt, Edgar R. Rombauer, Oscar W. Burg and Richard Einsiedel.

PROPRIETOR'S SON CATCHES NEGRO WHO ROBBED STORE

Bernard Sheinbein Holds Thief Until Police Arrive; Loot Was $38.

A Negro who fled from the shoe store of Jacob Sheinbein, 2616 Franklin avenue after looting the cash register of $38 yesterday afternoon was caught as he reached the sidewalk by Sheinbein's son, who held him until police arrived.

The son, Bernard Sheinbein, operates a clothing store next door to his father's establishment. He was attracted to the scene by the cries of his sister who was forced to open the cash register for the robber. The Negro said he was Joseph Thomas.

TRACES FINANCING OF LOAN ACT FIGHT TO SALARY BUYERS

Chairman of Lenders' Association Makes Charge in Statement to Chamber of Commerce Committee.

The charge that salary buyers are furnishing funds for the fight against the Russell Sage 42 per cent small loan law in the State Legislature is made in a statement submitted yesterday to the Legislative Committee of the Chamber of Commerce by David Lichtenstein, chairman of the executive committee of the Missouri Industrial Lenders' Association. In his formal statement Lichtenstein says:

"Heads of illegal salary buying companies have openly stated that they have put up the funds to either have this law repealed or reduce the rates so that no company can operate under it."

Lichtenstein told the Post-Dispatch he did not care publicly to name the persons he referred to at this time but that he would give the names to the Senate or House committees if they asked him.

Charles M. Hay, who as attorney for the Missouri, Kansas & Texas Railway Clerks' Association, is leading the fight for modification of the law, also submitted to the Legislative Committee of the Chamber of Commerce a reply to the argument against reduction of the rate made by Charles R. Napier of Chicago, attorney for the American Industrial Lenders' Association.

Points of Agreement.

Hay said Napier had agreed with his proposals for modification of the law on practically all points except reduction of the interest rate.

Points of agreement, according to Hay, were:

Section 16 of the uniform small loan act putting wage buyers under operation of the law should be included by amendment.

The maximum amount a licensed lender might lend to any one person should be $300. Hay contends provisions of the present law on this point are loose enough to permit larger loans than this.

Closer supervision of the licensed lenders by the State should be provided. The present law authorizes examinations by the Finance Commission, but Hay contends the companies should be required to file complete financial statements showing capital employed, volume of loans, interest received, operating expenses and net profits.

The rate of interest should be stated in all advertising.

In addition to these changes, Hay contends the law should be amended to remove the provision allowing assignment of future wages as security for a loan.

Hay Drafts Amendments.

Hay has drafted amendments covering these points and submitted them to the Chamber of Commerce Legislative Committee and the Senate Committee on Criminal Jurisprudence.

Hay told of an elderly couple whose home he had visited and who had been threatened with removal of their furniture and kitchen utensils unless back interest and installments on a loan from one of the 42 per cent companies was not paid by a certain date. He said these persons did not know the rate of interest until demand was made for the first month's interest. Hay's statement continued:

"Incidents such as this bear out my declaration in my argument at Jefferson City before the Senate Committee that what these gentlemen are doing is this: They are building up a market for money at 42 per cent among people who should not be encouraged to borrow money. There are thousands and hundreds of thousands of dollars passing from the hands of hard working people of this city into the coffers of these concerns, who would manage to get by through some other means except for the high powered salesmanship of representatives of these companies."

In his statement Lichtenstein contended the small loan law had resulted in the almost complete elimination of the high rate or wage buying class of money lenders, and he undertook to show that the rate of 3½ per cent a month is necessary for the licensed lenders to operate at a profit.

Says Profit Is Only 2¾ Pct.

"Borrowing has not increased in St. Louis," he said. "Borrowing only increases with population. There were in St. Louis three high rate companies alone who did an annual business of more than $3,000,000. Two of these companies are entirely out of the chattel loan household business and the other is gradually dying by not being able to obtain any customers to pay the high rate. In addition to this, salary buying has been cut down and there is hardly any business left for the salary buyer who does not operate in a legal manner."

Lichtenstein cited the experience of his own company, the Public Loan Corporation, to show that the profits of the business are not exorbitant. He said the consolidated statement of his three offices in St. Louis for the six months ending Dec. 31, 1928, showed net profit on capital invested of only 2¾ per cent a year. He pointed out that the newness of the business in Missouri was partly responsible for the small profit and said he expected to do better.

Wants Only One Change.

Lichtenstein told the committee that the present law has been indorsed by the St. Louis Provident Association, William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor; Frank O. Lowden, former Governor of Illinois; Attorney-General Ottinger of New York; John W. Davis, Democratic nominee for President in 1924, and others.

The fact that a number of companies operating in Missouri have voluntarily reduced their rate to 2½ per cent a month was commented upon by Lichtenstein. He said the companies making this reduction were chain organizations with large resources and many years of experience behind them. Local companies with smaller capitalization could not exist at this rate, he said. He contended that as the business becomes better established competition will force down the rate.

Lichtenstein recommended that that the only change in the law be an amendment to include section 16 of the uniform act putting salary buyers under the terms of the law.

EDUCATORS OFFER TIPS ON TEACHING GEAR-SHIFT CROWD

Six Speakers at Progressive Association Meeting Urge Wholesome Leisure Interests.

"Wholesome interests to crowd out the exciting entertainments of leisure hours" is the system of education prescribed for what they term "the gasoline and gearshift crowd" by a group of six speakers before the closing session of the Progressive Education Association at Hotel Jefferson yesterday. Each speaker described his own project for carrying out the new theory.

"The favorite activity of my group of students when I began their instruction was to go on strike," said Miss Josephine Maloney of the State Teachers' College Experimental School of Milwaukee. "They would go out for intermissions, decide not to return on time, and spend their time tantalizing the young college graduate who was temporarily their instructor. Despite the fact that they came from very good homes, they had earned anything but an enviable reputation.

Fair Play First.

"I remembered from class discussions at the university that coercion would be a poor way to get anything done. It naturally appeared that the first thing I should attempt to do was to give them a sense of fair play, and induce them to practice it. Next, I set about to find out what legitimate things those boys and girls best liked to do."

To discover their legitimate interests, Miss Maloney said, she set aside a part of each day as a free period, requiring each individual to choose his own work for that hour. The plan did not go well at first because the lack of having done anything gainful made their choices awkward.

"We had to go into conference immediately," Miss Maloney continued, "but as time went on it became less difficult to stimulate voluntary activity on the part of those pupils. We encouraged every effort. Two boys wanted to start an orchestra to play during intermissions at basketball games. They started with two violins and a drum. But from that, in two years, came a thriving school orchestra.

Gainful Jobs for Idle.

With the development of other interests, a school paper was founded, dramatic companies formed and classes in home furnishing were conducted for the first time. An important development came when the free period was gradually extended into the full school day, and the whole curriculum revolutionized. Now, according to Miss Maloney, mathematics, sociology and the other subjects considered valuable for an eighth grader are taught only as they are involved in specific problems presented in school projects.

Some of the projects in the new schedule Miss Maloney gave as working on the school paper, now a 10-page weekly, planning field trips, taking apart telephones and radios, feeding white rats to experiment in diets, investigating facts in American history by studying original sources. A problem of petty borrowing among the pupils was finally developed into a discussion of the methods of national finance in addition to being eliminated as a problem of discipline.

Make Own Rules.

"A school can grow no faster than a school community can see its perspective," Miss Virginia Stone, of the Community School of St. Louis, said in an address on "Developing School Individuality." "Children themselves may be taught to aid in school development, by making their own rules regarding promptness and the care of the school plant, and by their suggestions in conferences."

The development of capable student musicians and artists, and even school photographers was discussed by Arthur M. Seybold, principal of the Thomas Jefferson Junior High School of Cleveland. Boys who like photography are permitted to spend an hour every day in experimentation, Seybold said, with the result that the field trips taken by the junior high school pupils to industrial and municipal plants always have available an ample selection of photographs for school study.

Awards Defeat Object.

"Extraneous awards and prizes are made unnecessary by the new system," said Miss Flora J. Cooke, of the Francis Parker School of Chicago. "When you offer gold stars for going to Sunday School, it makes one suspect the value of going. Consequently, we teach each child to mark his own progress, and appreciate only the reward of surpassing his own work."

An annual school fair at the Parker School is provided to allow each student to exhibit anything that represents his work, with the collection ranging from stamp collections to amateur motion-picture films.

From two to six class periods each week of a student at the Cranbrook School, of Detroit, are devoted to studio and shop work, according to William O. Stevens, headmaster. "And when we award the one prize of the year for scholarship, we also award a medal for the best student in the arts and crafts," Stevens said.

Make Own Equipment.

"The hazard of the new system," declared Ralph E. Boothby, of Western Reserve University of Cleveland, "is that there may be a lack of integration between these activities and the formal part of education. Our one justification is that there is evidence of growth on the part of the pupils themselves. The 'gasoline and gearshift crowd' may be easily interested in gainful occupations. We have only to teach them what the purpose of the school is, and what its place is in the economic and social community."

Students in his school, Boothby said, make their own laboratory and science equipment in school shops. "The old idea at the school had been, when you needed anything, to buy it," he added, "but we have changed that. Now if we need anything, we make it. Two of the boys came to me one day asking if there were any space for a photographic darkroom in the basement. I took them down to a room that had been somebody's imagination of a dark room, and we eventually worked out a pretty decent laboratory. When I first came there, I found one of the best aquariums I have ever seen filled with old notebooks. We have renovated that, and now we have a splendid collection of marine life for study purposes."

Officers' Terms Extended.

A resolution adopted by the Progressive Education Association in general business session Friday afternoon, provided for the extension of the terms of all the present officers of the association for another year. The officers are: Stanwood Cobb, headmaster of the Chevy Chase Country Day School, Chevy Chase, Md., president; Burton P. Fowler of the Tower High School, Wilmington, Del., chairman of the Executive Board; J. Milnor Dorey, Washington, D. C., executive secretary; Mrs. Avery Coonley, Washington, D. C., treasurer; Miss Gertrude Hartman, New York City, editor of "Progressive Education." The 11 present members of the Executive Board, and ten vice presidents of the organization were also re-elected. Dr. John Dewey, psychologist of Columbia University, is honorary president of the association.

Piles Now Cured Without Surgery

The old theory that surgery was the only method by which hemorrhoids (piles) could be successfully cured has been wholly disproved. This treacherous affliction which slowly but surely undermines the health of its victims, if taken in time, can be successfully treated without recourse to surgical aid. All this is fully explained in a new book, fully illustrated and copyrighted, just published by the noted rectal specialist, Dr. McCleary, 566 Elms Blvd., Excelsior Springs, Mo. It describes in detail the mild McCleary treatments by which more than 15,000 persons living in all parts of the United States have been cured. If you or any of your relatives or friends suffer from piles or rectal trouble in any form write today for this free book and their list of cured patients in your community. They will be sent in plain wrapper, postpaid.

RAIL UNIFICATION BILL FAVORABLY REPORTED

Senator Fess Urges Action to Permit Creation of a Few Strong Systems.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—The railroad consolidation bill was reported to the Senate today with a recommendation for its passage in order to permit the establishment of a limited number of systems strong enough to give efficient service at a reasonable cost to the public.

The measure, approved a few days ago by the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee, was reported by Senator Fess (Rep.), Ohio, with a detailed explanation of its purpose. It is the hope of the supporters of the bill, the report declared, to create efficent systems neither so large as to be unwieldly or unmanageable, nor so small as to fail to secure economies derived from large scale operation

"A well-balanced system," said the report, "is one that has a reasonable opportunity to originate well diversified and dependable traffic which assures a continuity of revenue, so that the depression in a single industry will not too greatly affect its total traffic; one which has facilities, equipment, tracks, yard and terminals adequate to the public needs."

The unification could be brought about by merger, financial control, corporate consolidation or absorption. Two or more railroads could arrange unification of their lines under specific instructions set forth in the bill and under the jurisdiction of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The measure would require carriers to give due public notice of an intention to consolidate and to make a report to the Governor of each state through which their lines pass. Public hearings would be required before the commission "so that organizations of shippers, Chambers of Commerce, and other community organizations, and the stockholders, bondholders and other creditors of the carriers involved may be heard." The commission would have power to deal with the financial and economic contingencies which might be involved in the unifications.

One of the main purposes of the bill would be to afford minority stockholders the opportunity to refrain from going along against their will with a new plan, to withdraw from an enterprise and to liquidate their holdings.

"Obviously, however," the report declared, "this opportunity need not be afforded to all stockholders. Those who favored the adoption of the plan may be dismissed from further consideration. They cast their lot with the new plan. They stand by their own decision and if they desire to get out they do so only by a sale of their stock in the open market or otherwise. Nor is the committee satisfied that the opportunity should be given to every stockholder who opposes the adoption of the plan."

In considering the disposal of minority stockholders, the effect upon their stock holdings and the length of time they had been stockholders would be considered.

WATER POWER SURVEY KILLED

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 23.—A bill to create a State commission to make a survey of the water power resources of the State, and recommend necessary legislation to protect them was defeated today by the House, when it came up for engrossment.

Opposition to the bill, led by Representative D. L. Bales of Shannon County, was centered chiefly on the fact that some expense would be involved.

DR. CHARLES A. TODD ENDS LIFE AT MIAMI

St. Louis Specialist and Medical Writer Had Retired 20 Years Ago After Active Career.

By the Associated Press.

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 23.—With a bullet through the heart, the body of Charles A. Todd, a retired physician who formerly was prominent in St. Louis medical circles, was found today in his room at a downtown hotel here.

In a note Dr. Todd had written that he had been ill and gave instructions for finding the key to his safety deposit box. He was 85 years old.

Dr. Todd left St. Louis in 1893, retiring from active practice because of ill health. He traveled extensively and lived for a time in the Bahama Islands and in Florida.

He was one of the leaders of the medical profession in St. Louis during the last quarter of the last century. Born in St. Louis, the son of George Todd, founder of a large mill machinery manufacturing business, he was educated here and abroad. He received degrees of B. A. and M. A. from Washington University and later was graduated from the old St. Louis Medical College and from the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Columbia University.

He spent three years studying under specialists in Vienna, Paris and Berlin before returning to St. Louis to become professor of anatomy at Missouri Medical College, which later became the medical school of Washington University.

Founded Anatomy Museum.

He specialized in ear, nose and throat diseases and established at St. John's Hospital the first clinic for these ailments opened west of the Mississippi River. While at Missouri Medical College he founded a museum of comparative anatomy.

Dr. Todd fostered much legislation aimed at raising the standards of the medical profession. He had introduced into the Missouri Legislature a bill which would have made a three-year course necessary to obtain a medical degree, but the bill did not pass. Others which became laws required examinations of applicants for licenses to practice medicine, examinations of internes at hospitals, and regulation of the practice of dissecting bodies.

Dr. Todd in former years was a frequent contributor of articles on natural history to newspapers and magazines. He founded and edited the St. Louis Courier of Medicine.

He never married, and is survived by no immediate relatives. Two cousins are Dr. R. J. Terry of the Washington University Medical School faculty and Albert T. Terry, St. Louis real estate dealer.

HEADS ST. LOUIS COUNTRY CLUB

Edward B. Pryor Re-Elected President at Annual Meeting.

Edward B. Pryor was re-elected president of the St. Louis Country Club at the annual election meeting held yesterday. Harry H. Langenberg was voted one of the vice-presidents, and J. L. Mauran, John R. Shepley and A. W. Shapleigh were re-elected respectively as vice president, secretary and treasurer.

Two directors, elected for three-year terms, were Harold M. Bixby and Eugene S. Williams.

VULCAN STREET MAN HAD RHEUMATIC NEURITIS IN ARMS AND SHOULDERS

Suffered for Years With Painful Ailment—Gives Full Credit to Weldona Tablets for Recovery.

"For a number of years I suffered with rheumatic neuritis of the arms and shoulders," said Mr. Joseph Johnson, who resides at 8515 Vulcan St. Mr. Johnson continued: "My legs were also stiff and sore and I would have difficulty on getting up from a chair and on getting out of bed. It was very difficult for me to raise my hands to my head to comb my hair, or put on a coat. At night it was very hard for me to find a comfortable position and my fingers would become cold and numb."

"I read about so many St. Louis people praising Weldona tablets that I decided to give them a trial. After taking them a short time the pain and stiffness left my arms so that I can now get my hand to my head to comb my hair and have no difficulty in putting on my coat. I can now bend my leg and knee without pain or stiffness. Weldona tablets have done wonders for me, and I am more than pleased to recommend them to other sufferers. Anyone who cares to verify my statement may call or write for further information."

$1000 reward to anyone proving this testimonial is not genuine.

Weldona tablets are always put up in a box—never in a bottle. Ask for Weldona tablets, which are recommended for rheumatism and rheumatic conditions only. Weldona tablets are absolutely harmless and will not upset the stomach, affect the heart or any other organ.

The Weldona representative, who now meets the public every day at Walgreen's Drug Store, 514 Washington Av., St. Louis, gladly explains more about this remedy and gives out the 24-page illustrated books, entitled "Germs of Rheumatism," which are absolutely free of charge to all who call or write for them.

AMERICANS SEEK AID IN CHINESE OUTBREAK

Ask for Protection by Gunboat; Fighting Between Hunanese and Kiwangsi Group.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23. — Another outbreak of fighting in China was reported to the State Department today, and requests were made for an American gunboat to protect American interests.

Consul Walter A. Adams, at Hankow, in a dispatch dated Feb. 21, said representatives of the various American interests at Changsha had requested the protection of an American gunboat, and Minister MacMurray at Pekin said the request had been transmitted to the commander of the Yangtze patrol. The principal American interests are those of the Standard Oil Co., Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co. and Yale College in China, which had been closed for some time, but whose preparatory school recently was reopened.

Other dispatches reaching Washington indicate the fighting in progress at Changsha was between Gen. Lu Ti Ping, who is a Hunanese, and Yeh Chi, who represents the Kwangsi group at Hankow. It was reported that Lu Ti Ping had the support of Gen. Chiang Kai-Shek, one of the Nationalist Government leaders.

Campaigns Against Nationalists.

SHANGHAI, Feb. 23.—The Shantung disorders, eventuating in the hard fighting near Chefoo, have given rise to other campaigns against the Nationalist regime at Nanking, the existence of these movements having been acknowledged by a spokesman for the Kuominating party here today.

He told Chinese newspaper men that Communists in Central China were spreading propaganda in the Nationalist armies urging armed uprisings. He said they were also using the widespread anti-Japanese sentiment to stir up general dissatisfaction and that last week the Nationalist authorities at Hankow had arrested there the leaders of an extensive communist plot.

General Lu Reported Ousted.

Word also came here that General Lu ti-Ping, chairman of the provincial government of Hunan with headquarters at Changsha, had been ousted by three subordinates, one of whom, General Ho Chien, had assumed the post.

British and American naval officers at Hankow said that the Changsha trouble was purely local and was not expected to develop into anything of nation-wide concern.

General Lu was accused by his subordinates of misappropriating provincial funds, refusing to pay the troops of the men who ousted him, neglecting to suppress banditry, imposing exorbitant taxes, and in general, mismanaging affairs of the province. Lu attempted to resist the ousting but he lost a sharp fight between troops of the opposing factions and had to flee from Changsha.

SHANGHAI, Feb. 23.—A spokesman for the Foreign Office of the Nationalist Government tonight said that a report had been received from Tientsin that a band of assassins was on the way to Shanghai to kill leaders of the Nationalist Government.

The report said that the band had been organized by leaders of the revolting forces in northeastern Shantung. Nationalist Government officials professed to be undisturbed by the report.

CHICAGO POLICE STILL IN DARK ON GANG KILLING

Deny Dr. Tacker Who Told of Being Abducted and Taken to Detroit, Is a Material Witness.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Feb. 23.—The killing of seven men by a gunmen's firing squad in a garage here on St. Valentine's day remains as much a mystery as it was nine days ago unless the authorities have information which they have not disclosed.

The latest "clew" to the killing to be exploded by the authorities came today with the finding in Detroit, Mich., of Dr. Loyal Tacker, Chicago dentist who disappeared from near his home last night. When it was learned he had vanished the police at first announced that he had identified one of the alleged killers from a photograph as a man whose tooth he had extracted recently.

Later Dr. Tacker was found in a dazed condition in Detroit, Mich. He said he had been slugged, kidnaped and drugged in Chicago by four men who took him away in an automobile. John Egan, chief of detectives, declared Dr. Tacker was not a material witness, and that the man identified by him was in jail at the time of the killing and was not involved in the case. Chief Egan declined to disclose the name of the man Tacker identified.

Some persons believed Dr. Tacker actually had made the identification claimed at the time he disappeared, and that the names of the slayers were known to the police who were adopting a policy of disclaiming Dr. Tacker in order to protect him and also as a means of preventing other witnesses from becoming fearful of a similar fate.

The only other clew which police were known to be investigating was the discovery of a partly destroyed automobile found Thursday night in a burning garage about three miles from the scene of the murders. Because some witnesses who saw the killers flee asserted that some of them wore police uniforms and traveled in an automobile resembling a police car, the police said that when ownership of teh dismantled car had been traced, the mystery would be solved. The car, after passing through several hands, was found to have been sold last December by a dealer to a man who gave the name of James Morton of Los Angeles. That was as far as the police had progressed. A Californian of the same name was known to have a prison record, but whether this man had purchased the car is something the police have not announced.

The inquest into the murder was continued for another week. Police and the State's Attorney's office asked for a continuance for two weeks. Dr. Bundesen, however, allowed only a week's continuance, saying that some of the witnesses subpenaed to appear today had not reported or had disappeared and he intended to find out whether they had been intimidated, or feared intimidation if they testified.

Tacker to Be Taken Back to Chicago by Police.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Mich., Feb. 23.—Telling a story of having been abducted and driven all night in an open automobile, presumably because he had been mentioned as a police witness in Chicago's gang killings, Dr. Loyal W. Tacker, Chicago dentist, was found on a downtown street corner here shortly after noon today by Patrolman Marvin Vollmer. Tacker said four men had put him out of an automobile a few minutes earlier and told him to "beat it and don't look back." Tacker appeared dazed and showed bruises and slight lacerations on his wrists and ankles, caused he said by ropes with which he had been bound.

He was pounced upon at about 9 o'clock last night not far from his home in Chicago, he said, by four men. "They must have knocked me unconscious," he said, "for the first thing I knew, I was on the back seat of a touring car, between two armed men, with a blanket over my head."

Tacker said one of the men remarked: "It's going to be good-by for you, big boy."

Identification marks were removed from Tacker's clothing. Tacker said that he was unconscious during most of the ride through the night, but knew that several stops were made.

Tacker wanted to return to his family, he said, and it was arranged that he should accompany a detective sergeant going to Chicago this evening.

He could not identify his abductors beyond saying two of them were apparently Italians. One of them, he said, was about 36 years old and 5 feet 10 inches tall; the other, he said, was between 25 and 35 years old and weighed about 150 to 160 pounds.

Zeppelin Cruise to Start March 26.

By the Associated Press.

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Germany, Feb. 23.—It is announced here that the dirigible Graf Zeppelin will start on its Mediterranean trip on March 26. Objections by foreign Governments to flights over countries bordering the sea will be respected, but it was hoped that these objections, especially the British intimation respecting Palestine and Egypt, would be withdrawn.

Summeral Nation's Sixth General.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—President Coolidge has signed the bill conferring the rank and title of General on the chief of staff of the army while he holds that office. The present chief of staff, Gen. Charles P. Summerall, becomes the sixth army officer to hold that grade in the United States army. His predecessors having been Generals Washington, Grant, Sherman, Sheridan and Pershing, the latter having been given the title of General of the Armies by special legislation in 1919. During the World War Tasker H. Bliss and Peyton C. March held the emergency rank of General.

ANTIQUES AT AUCTION
COMPLETE LIQUIDATION
ART OBJECTS · ANTIQUE FURNITURE · BRIC-A-BRAC
MURRAY-HENDERSON ANTIQUE FURNITURE COMPANY
AT 4125 OLIVE STREET.

TUESDAY, March 5th. Commencing 10:30 A. M.

THE entire stock of this Company has been consigned to us for disposition at the time, place and in the manner indicated in the foregoing. Pursuant thereto, we will follow our invariable custom of an unrestricted sale at auction of these desirable antiques, which summarize as follows:

Antique Buhl Desk and Cabinet; Louis XV Rosewood Settee; Florentine Mirrors; Italian Console; Sheraton Chest; Louis XIV Cabinet and Console; Buhl Clock; French Walnut Console; Empire Sideboard; Chippendale Chair; Fiddleback Chairs; Colonial Andirons; Sleepy Hollow Rockers; Antique Walnut Tables; Sheffield Candelabras; Colonial Chests and Secretaries; Rosewood What-Not; Grandfather's Clocks; Bronze Fire Screen; Gothic Chairs; English Oak Cellarette; Four Poster Beds; Mantle Mirrors, and innumerable other pieces of kindred character.

This sale is held by reason of a new European connection for the importation of antiques, which compels the disposition of the entire present stock. Immediately following the sale, the Murray-Henderson Company will remove to its new location at 4313-15-17 Olive Street for a continued conduct of business. Absolutely none of these furnishings will be sold at private negotiation preceding sale, but shall ALL be sold at pubic auction without price limitation or reserve.

The premises will be open and the property exposed for public examination on Monday, March 4th, from 10 A. M. to 4 P. M., sale beginning promptly at 10:30 A. M. on the following day. TERMS CASH.

Dogs and Cats For Sale

DOGS—Less than 1 per cent of what we sell come from kennels; most of them come from private homes, private families, people leaving the city, moving, breaking up housekeeping, etc.; a veterinary here now, to protect us, and making a thorough physical examination of every specimen we buy. We are not self-annointed fools, but a firm that realizes that we must employ a veetrinary, we must employ an experienced kennel man and we must show large selections and always at right prices—and these men must devote all their time to this dog store, to make a big success of it. Six short months from today will answer, if I am right or wrong; it's going to take a lot of money, it's going to take a lot of work, it's going to take a lot of real bargains, to make you realize the great advantage of what we are doing for you and for ourselves. We had to be good to grow so big but we are going to be better, and we are going to grow bigger. This veterinary of ours treats no outside dogs, boards no dogs, charges no fees. National Pet Shops.

BANK OF ENGLAND BID PREMIUM FOR GOLD

London Watches Developments in Credit Situation in Wall Street.

By ARTHUR W. KIDDY.

Copyright, by New York Evening Post, Inc.

LONDON, Feb. 23.—Finding it impossible to determine whether the speculative movement will decline and money rates fall in the United States, English markets are assuming the only possible attitude, namely, that of preparing for eventualities.

Given a gradual contraction of the Wall Street boom and of the course of brokers' loans, with easier monetary conditions, the New York money market will probably go along quietly at the present bank rate until considerable gold is accumulated, in which circumstances British stock markets would improve quietly, especially investment stocks.

If, however, the high money rates and the boom in the United States continue, it is considered that the effect must be pronounced on sterling leading to further gold withdrawals from London.

No central bank is anxious to raise rates and the Bank of England would stretch a point as it has done this last week by bidding a premium for African gold to prevent losing it. This policy would not be pursued far, however, and the only possible course would be the further rise in the British rate to 6½ per cent.

If the American Federal Reserve Bank authorities succeed in regaining control of the position without actually raising the rates, they will have good cause for self-congratulation, but in the meantime, Europe will be obliged to disregard the American 5 per cent official rate and concentrate on real money and discount rates in New York.

Developments in the last six months are indeed bringing Europe up against stubborn facts which had been rather disregarded. Those facts include the circumstance that America's enormous economic power and reserve control over exchanges since the war and since Great Britain funded her debt to the United States have been obscured by America's two years of active lending abroad.

It is now recognized, however, that the mere cessation of lending abroad by the United States is sufficient to depress exchanges. If to that fact has to be included the circumstance that New York, which is now the leading lending center, has virtually the dearest money market, the position for Europe and all creditor nations is serious. It gives room for grave thinking with regard to the outlook, especially with the present tendency in London to acquire dollar securities of foreign countries recently issued in America.

Already the unpleasant feature of the situation is the tendency for the central banks to scramble for gold, and unless care and co-operation are exercised the future is likely to present some serious problems for gold standard countries.

The recent shake-up in London after the higher bank rate has so far revealed no serious weakness in the speculative positions, but it is felt that in that respect both sides of the Atlantic have not yet been thoroughly tested, having regard to the length and extent of the previous advance.

The Bankers' Magazine valuation of 365 representative stocks to January showed a rise for that month of £130,000,000 and the last four weeks the decline was only about £80,000,000.

FINANCIAL NOTES

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—Municipal and State bond awards scheduled for next week will total $25,428,988, compared to $15,990,066 this week and a weekly average of $29,761,497 so far this year. Forty-two issues are to be floated, the largest of which is the $10,000,000 State of Louisiana road bonds.

Weekly totals of proposed new construction announced since the first of the year disclose nonspeculative building operations have not suffered from high money rates, states McGraw-Hill Construction Daily. Activity in the heavy construction field promises to hold at a high level over the first half of the year. Proposed work announced last week throughout the country totaled $103,100,000, with public projects and railroad improvements showing a gain over the preceding week.

A new method of heating homes electrically without use of coal bins or chimneys is announced by Chester I. Hall of Philadelphia, a research engineer for the General Electric Co. The method employed is heating large Thermal storage tanks of water, using electric current only at night, when it can be obtained at the lowest cost from the utility, and releasing this stored heat to the home as required.

Electrical equipment business placed since the first of the year points to a record quarter in the Eastern district, with most of the other sections of the country well up to the average of recent years, Electrical World reports. The Philadelphia Electric Co. has announced a $22,000,000 betterment program, and the American Gas & Electric Co. an appropriation of $11,000,000 for a hydro-electric generating station on the New River, near Radford, Va.

Unfilled soft wood lumber orders rose to 26.1 days' production equivalent during the week ended Feb. 16, compared to 26 days the preceding week and 25 days a month ago, reports from 786 hard and soft wood mills to the National Lumber Manufacturers' Association disclose. New hardwood business is 4 per cent above production for the year to date. There was little change in production, but shipments increased.

The State of Arkansas is to enter the market on March 12 with a $28,000,000 bond issue, consisting of $18,000,000 for road work, $5,000,000 for refunding and $5,000,000 in State toll-bridge bonds. All bear 4½ per cent interest.

Sustained activity in heavy construction and engineering projects is reported in virtually all sections of the country, with the sums involved higher than at this time last year Engineering News Record states. The money value of contracts let throughout the country in the past week totaled $66,191,000, compared to $80,029,000 in the preceding week and $62,933,000 in the corresponding week last year.

CLEARINGS, MONEY AND SILVER

The St. Louis Clearing House Association reported clearings for Feb. 23, 1929, $24,500,000; corresponding day a year ago, $19,900,000; this year, $1,148,800,000; corresponding period a year ago, $1,152,800,000. Report of debits for Feb. 21, 1929, were: Debits to individual accounts, $28,200,000; total to date $1,425,000,000; debits to banks and bankers' accounts, $17,400,000; total to date $772,500,000. Total debits to individual and bank and bankers' accounts, $2,197,500,000; total to date to individual and bank and bankers' accounts, $45,600,000.

DOWNTURN TO WHEAT ON THE CHICAGO BOARD

CHICAGO, Feb. 23.—General selling of wheat today carried prices downgrade.

Sellers of wheat here placed even more stress on Kansas comment that the winter crop in the principal wheat producing area of Kansas, the banner wheat state of the country, appears to be in good condition, that as a rule the moisture supply there was excellent and that the country movement was liberal.

In this conection it was said here that until growing weather was experienced no one could know with any certainty the effect of the winter upon the growing wheat crop, and that the trade would be compelled to wait for the April 1 reports for any accurate and systematic estimate of the actual crop position and promise.

Considerable buying of wheat future deliveries developed today toward the last, though, after word came from London telling of demand for flour to go to the Orient. There were also reports about need of rain for Australia and of continued purchases of wheat to satisfy the wants of India. Late rallies, nevertheless, failed to overcome earlier losses here and export call for wheat from North America was again of disappointing volume.

Special interest was shown today in the fact that outstanding open contracts for wheat future deliveries in the Chicago market have increased to more than 134,000,000 bushels. This was the largest total in the last four years, and possibly the largest ever attained here or in any other market center.

Corn and oats were easier on account of wheat weakness and because of speculative selling. Country offerings of corn, however, were small, and a little more interest was noticed regarding corn for export.

Provisions reflected firmness of hog values.

Wheat closed unsettled ⅛c to ⅝c net lower, corn unchanged to ½c down. Oats ⅛c to ⅝c off, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 3c.

Under general selling, wheat prices suffered an early setback today, largely in sympathy with the declines yesterday at Liverpool and Winnipeg, when American markets were closed.

The action of British and Canadian quotations was ascribed mainly to pressure of Argentine wheat seeking an outlet in Europe. Opening ⅝c to 1⅛c lower, Chicago wheat afterward held near the initial range. Corn and oats were also easier, with corn starting ⅛c to ⅝c off, and subsequently receding a little more. Provisions had an upward slant.

On today's downturns in wheat values here, numerous standing orders to sell out at various fixed limits, and thus put a stop to losses, were forced into operation. Meanwhile, Argentine shipments for the last week were said to be larger than for the previous week or a year ago. There were also reports of beneficial rains in Argentina.

Cash wheat trade fair, with prices following the futures. Trading basis steady, tone easier. Receipts estimated at 87 cars. Shipping sales nil. Cancellations 5050 bu. No fresh export business reported done over the holiday.

Cash corn was weak on account of liberal receipts (456 cars, estimated). Principal buying by local industries. Trading basis steady to ¼c easier and prices ½ @1c lower. Shipping sales 31,000 bu and cancellations 77,765 bu No. 3 mixed. Country offerings to arrive practically nil. Some wheat and corn was offered from the Southwest markets, but no actual business reported done up to a late hour.

Trade in cash oats light. Prices finished steady to ½c easier and basis unchanged to ¼c lower. Receipts, estimated 65 cars. Shipping sales, 18,000 bu.

Weekly Butter Review.

CHICAGO, Feb. 23.—Indications, based upon reports from the heavier milk producing territories of the Central West, are that there will be little immediate change in butter production.

Receipts of butter are running about equal with a week ago, and the Chicago and New York butter markets have remained fairly steady. Buying is being handled largely on a day-to-day basis, as the supply of fresh butter has generally been sufficient to take care of the consuming trade.

Dealers are not generally carrying over butter, because of possibility of increased receipts as soon as conditions from a producing standpoint become more faovrable. Such a change is almost entirely a weather question.

Dry Goods Market Review.

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—Dry goods markets today were generally inactive in the primary division, an exception being in wool goods where preparations are under way for the opening of fall suitings beginning Monday. With the cotton exchange closed cotton goods in the gray were dull. Raw silk held steady. Burlaps were unchanged.

WHEAT CLOSES LOWER IN WEEK-END TRADE

Lower Cable and Argentine News Called Influences in Market.

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, Feb. 23.—Wheat futures ruled lower at the session between two holidays, corn also closing lower. Foreign news was large factor in price trend.

The decline at Liverpool ascribed in one quarter to Argentine offerings was credited with influencing price trend of wheat. Export demand for North American wheat was called slow.

May wheat opened a full cent lower, July also being down a cent in early trading. The British and Canadian markets were lower Friday while Americans were closed. Liverpool today closed ⅝d lower on March, ⅝d on May and ⅝d on July compared with Thursday. Winnipeg was up ⅝c early. Corn here also was down early.

May wheat opened at $1.30, July wheat $1.33, May corn $1.00⅞ and July corn $1.03½.

Local wheat receipts, which were 243,000 bushels, compared with 93,800 a week ago and 107,800 a year ago, included 78 cars local and 96 through. Corn receipts, which were 246,400 bushels, compared with 114,600 a week ago and 250,600 a year ago, included 125 cars local and 51 through. Oats receipts, which were 158,400 bushels, compared with 118,800 a week ago and 114,000 a year ago, included 58 cars local and 14 through. Hay receipts were 31 cars local and one through. (Grain receipts were for 2 days).

Stocks in St. Louis public elevators amounted to 2,919,446 bushels of wheat, 1,276,267 bushels of corn, and 331,565 bushels of oats. Grain stocks comprised 41,191 bushels of No. 1 red winter wheat, 235,817 bushels of No. 2 red winter wheat, 573,110 bushels of No. 1 hard winter wheat, 1,068,793 bushels of No. 2 hard winter wheat; 7291 bushels of No. 2 corn, 71,569 bushels of No. 2 yellow corn; 17,509 bushels of No. 2 oats, 16,658 bushels of No. 2 white oats, 243,556 bushels of No. 3 white oats.

MARKET MUST PREPARE FOR TIGHT MONEY

Corporations Will Withdraw Funds in Large Amounts to Meet Their Mid-Month Tax Payments, Review Says.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—The Evening Post in copyrighted weekly financial review says:

"A full fortnight has passed since the reserve on Feb. 7 warned the stock market concerning speculation but there is no conclusive evidence yet that the money authorities will get their way. If anything the market went into its three-day recess with more confidence in its position than it has possessed at any time since Feb. 1 when stocks set a new peak in history. It seemed not to fear either an upward revision of the rediscount rate after Thursday's close, or an unfavorable statement on brokers loans—and in each case the market's wish was realized. The week's reduction of $91,000,000 in brokers' loans was a disappointment to the financial district which had set its hopes on a $200,000,000 drop, but in its present mood the market was prepared to give reasons why the loan decline was not more drastic. Chief among these were the heavy calls for funds in payment of new issue flotations offered for public subscription in the last few weeks.

Reduction in Activity.

"That the Federal Reserve's edict sobered down speculation at least for the time is plainly evident in the market's recession from its peak levels and in the striking reduction in activity. Still it can scarcely be claimed that the $192,000,000 reduction in brokers' loans during the last two weeks gives the reserve all it wanted. Whether the Reserve nevertheless will be satisfied is a question the answer to which presumably lies in the market's own behavior from this point on. That the Reserve will postpone action on its rediscount rate if it possibly can is plain from the record of its own recent deliberations and from the logic of the situation. An adjustment in the rate now might very easily defeat the Reserve system's own purpose. Doubtless they would like to see the market remain quiet for a period.

Possibilities That Worry.

"After all the reserve statements themselves do not present such a dire position as might be supposed from the discussion that has been going the rounds. At 83.1 the New York Reserve Bank's ratio of total reserves to deposit and net liabilities exhibits an exceedingly strong position—and certainly is not down much from its ratio of 83.2 a year ago. Even the ratio for the system at 70.8 remains high and holds its level close to 74.7 last year. While the system's volume of discounts at $865,000,000 is nearly twice that a year ago, the portfolio is in a better condition than a few months back, when discounts were in the $1,200,000,000 zone. What worries the money authorities is, of course, not so much the present showing of the reserve statements as the fear that a burden too heavy to bear might fall on the member banks with a sudden withdrawal of funds from the call market by private lenders.

Money Stress Ahead.

"With the approach of the February month-end period and still more with the approach of the mid-month tax settlement date, the market must prepare itself for another money squeeze such as it witnessed several times last year. It is possible that the pinch may be even more severe around the middle of next month than late next week, since corporations will withdraw funds in large amounts to meet their tax payments. On March 15 the treasury will be faced with new financing in connection with its retirement of about $570,000,000 in 3¾ and 3⅞ per cent notes. Doubtless it will undertake the refunding operation through flotation of a short-term note bearing a higher coupon than the obligations retired. How seriously the market will regard this approaching money stress remains a question, but the reserve hopes that the movement of money rates in the next two weeks will help to keep the market somewhat quieter and thus promote the readjustment it seeks without any further drastic reserve action.

WEEK'S METAL MARKET REVIEW

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—Hardening of prices in nearly all directions with the possible exception of heavy melting steel scrap stood out as one of the principal factors in the steel market during the week.

Mills announced an increase of $1 per ton for bars, plates and shapes and $2 a ton on cold finished bars. Specifications against contracts remained good and automobile and farm implement manufacturers continued to request liberal shipments. There has been a decided improvement in the inquiry for structural steel. Consuming interest in pig iron was better.

Demand for copper remained quiet throughout the week, with neither foreign nor domestic consumers showing much interest in the market. With users of metal in this country fairly well covered through the next few months, producers are holding firm in their quotations largely on the expectation of renewed foreign buying. Electrolytic remains unchanged at 18 cents, delivered in the Connecticut Valley.

Tin turned dull and price fluctuations were narrow, if anything displaying a slightly easier trend toward the last in sympathy with London.

Lead was advanced again by leading sellers. Demand here was reported as good covering all positions to April.

The market for zinc was featured by an advance in the selling basis of $1 per ton for ore this being the first change since last August.

Antimony was reported as dull and the position here slightly easier.

EVENING UP OF MARCH COTTON CONTRACTS FEATURE OF WEEK

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—The feature in the cotton market here during the past week has been the evening-up of March contracts in preparation for the notices which may be issued next Tuesday.

This operation has consisted largely of transferring interest from March to later months and has very little effect either on the general level of prices or on the differences between months. At last accounts there were about 73,700 bales of certificated cotton in the local stock, and it is expected by local traders that the amount will be increased somewhat within the next few days. It remains to be seen, of course, whether notices will be issued against the entire stock, but it is most generally thought that the greater part of it will be tendered. The interest in March contracts must have been quite substantially reduced during the past few days, but some uncertainty as to the number of notices and their possible effects on the market, as well as the proximity of the holiday, may have tended to slow down general business during the week. Disappointment over the failure of recent bullish old crop statistics to have a more stimulating effect on demand has been reflected by some further scattered liquidation, but it has been absorbed on comparatively light reactions by trade buying or covering.

This has maintained a generally steady undertone, although neither trade nor speculative buyers have shown a disposition to follow up the advances. Further complaints of delays in farm work have been reaching the trade, as a result of wet or cold weather during the week, but the general impression is that these conditions have improved the condition of the soil and that it is too early for delays in preparations to count for much in the ultimate crop. Talk of a slight increase in acreage has continued with private reports suggesting gains ranging from 1 to 3 per cent in the Central and Western belts. The more favorable features in the preliminary coming crop outlook, however, are considered modified by the probability of a decrease in the use of fertilizers in the Eastern belt and the boll weevil situation. Temperatures during the past day or two are thought to have been low enough to kill some of the weevils in hibernation in certain sections of the belt, but has not entirely relieved the apprehension of a fairly heavy emergence.

Closing prices Thursday, last business day, were: March 19.97@98c; May 20.03@04c; July 19.73-74c; old Oct. 19.50c; new Oct. 19.49@50c; Dec. 19.[illegible]@53c. Spot middling, 20.25c.

COTTON CLOSES HIGHER ON NEW ORLEANS MARKET

By the Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 23.—Despite the short session and the fact that New York remained closed, the cotton market here was quite active today and prices advanced practically 50 cents a bale from the previous close. Strong Liverpool cables and reports stopping of March notices were the main supporting influences, and March contracts, after ranging from 19.30c to 19.20c, rallied, and closed at 19.27c, or 7 points net higher. The general market closed steady, at net advances of 7 to 8 points.

WALL STREET HAS A REAL HOLIDAY

Sunday Aspect to Financial District With Exchange Members' Offices Closed.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—The entire machinery of the stock market rested today. The Saturday closing two weeks ago, and those of last spring, were for the purpose of ca' hing up with back business, and ... ussion House and investment bankers offices hummed with activity as usual. But today, not only was the Stock Exchange closed, but members' offices were closed also, and it was a holiday for clerks as well as floor traders.

The banks were open for the usual Saturday half day, but as all securities markets, and all of the commodity markets with the exception of wheat, followed the Stock Exchange's example in taking a three-day holiday from Washington's birthday to Monday, Wall street wore a Sunday aspect. Many of the shops and restaurants of the financial district had decided that business would not warrant staying open.

Much of the gloom that pervaded speculative sentiment when the Stock Exchange was closed two weeks ago, while the Federal Reserve Board's warning against excess use of credit for speculation was fresh, had been lifted by today, and traders enjoyed their holiday in a more peaceful frame of mind. The drop in stock prices appeared to have been checked. The volume of business fell off during the week to the 3,000,000,000 share day average, and with business in reduced volume, traders hope price levels may be maintained until the credit atmosphere clears.

Wall Street News and Comment

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—High money rates, and the prospect of further measures to restrict the volume of credit available for speculation, had a restraining effect on trading in this week's stock market, the dullest of the year, but prices showed marked buoyancy in response to a series of favorable earnings, dividend and trade reports.

Except for the Federal Reserve Board's approval of a higher buying rate for bankers' acceptances outside of New York to bring them in line with those prevailing in the metropolitan area, there was no actual change in credit conditions. Call money fluctuated between 6 and 8 per cent and time money and commercial paper held firm around their recent high levels. No change was made in the New York Federal Reserve rediscount rate.

Despite a rather large volume of new financing, and higher stock prices, brokers' loans dropped $91,000,000 in the week ended Wednesday, bringing the total down to $5,447,000,000. This follows a drop of $101,000,000 the week before. While Federal Reserve officials have not set any arbitrary figure to which loans should be reduced, there is a general feeling in the financial district that the board will not be satisfied until loans are back around the $5,000,000,000 level.

Due to the drop in loans and the repayment of Federal Reserve borrowings, the loan ratio of the New York Federal Reserve Bank increased from 76.7 to 83.1 per cent, as against 83.2 per cent a year ago. The loan ratio of the 12 Federal Reserve banks combined increased from 69.8 to 70.8 per cent, as against 74.7 per cent a year ago.

The demand for stocks in the "loan crowd" after the close of the market each day has disclosed a large short interest in many of the popular industrials and specialties. When it became apparent that the Federal Reserve rediscount rate was likely to be retained, and that no extensive pre-holiday liquidation was likely, short covering assumed large proportions and accounted for the brisk advance in many issues.

Steel shares took a prominent part in the recovery.

Copper shares quieted down somewhat after their recent sharp advance.

Railroad shares did better. The increase in freight traffic, the publication of excellent earnings statements, and the filing of new merger plans by the Baltimore & Ohio and Van Sweringen railroad systems were included in news of the week. The reduction in crude oil output was offset in part by rumors that Western oil companies were seeking an entry into the Atlantic seaboard market. Rubber stocks were active and strong. There was a sharp advance in Packard.

A spectacular gain in American and Foreign Power, accompanied by unconfirmed rumors of a "technical corner" in that issue, monopolized interest in the public utility division.

Foreign Exchange

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—The Evening Post in copyrighted weekly foreign exchange market review says:

"Business in European exchanges all through the week was of an orderly character, fluctuations in the important documents being unusually narrow and the demand and supply were about evenly balanced. The market in general was determined by the position of sterling. Exchange in London, which made an advance of over 1 cent in connection with the advance in the Bank of England discount rate two weeks ago, has since recorded a slow decline, bringing sterling cables down during the week to below $4.4... but there was no special pressure on this movement, and the dealings were in unusually light volume. This reaction following the gain made on the advance in the English bank rate was credited to the uncertainty existing over the attitude of the Federal Reserve Bank of this district. Following a long-drawn-out meeting on Feb. 14, it has been expected that an advance in our rediscount rate might be made at any time, and the continued uncertainty about the credit position made local bankers reluctant to take a strong and extended position in the foreign exchange markets.

"Dutch exchange moved in close unison with sterling and there were also narrow fluctuations in Swiss rates. Scandinavian were exceptionally heavy all through the week and were around the lowest levels reached in recent trading. Spanish had wide fluctuations directed by the indicated changes in the political situation in Spain.

"Japan continued extremely weak, selling below 45 cents for yen checks or over 4 cents under parity. Hongkong was heavy for a time, but rallied before the end of the week.

"Canadian continued to reflect absence of support, exchange on Montreal falling to 99.44, compared with the gold shipping point of 99.82."

STEPFATHER HELD ON CHARGE OF KILLING CHILD WITH POISON

Ozark County (Mo.) Farmer Arrested After Neighbors Cause Inquiry; Girl's Stomach to Be Analyzed.

By the Associated Press.

WEST PLAINS, Mo., Feb. 23.—Accused of having fatally poisoned his 6-year-old stepdaughter, Joseph H. Jarrett, 54, Ozark County farmer, residing in an isolated mountain district near Gainesville, was in jail tonight awaiting a report by Springfield chemists on an analysis of the contents of the child's stomach.

The child, Allie Geneva Hixon, died Monday at the Jarrett farm home. Complaints by neighbors led to the investigation which caused Jarrett's arrest. He is being held on a first degree murder charge.

Jarrett formerly lived at Joplin, Mo., with his wife and the child, and went to Ozark County last November. Mrs. Jarrett, who is 24, said her former husband, William Hixon, who was father of the child, now lives in Oklahoma.

Following Allie's death, neighbors complained that the Jarretts had refused to permit them to aid in care of the child during her illness and refused to permit the calling of a physician. They also said the child had been treated cruelly prior to her illness. Officers said they learned that two or three weeks ago Jarrett failed in an attempt to buy some drugs from a Gainesville physician on the strength of a story that Allie was suffering from cancer of the stomach, but did obtain from a druggist some medicine containing poison. Coroner C. A. Beach, who performed an autopsy, said he found no evidence of cancer in the child's stomach.

Golden Anniversary of Hubers.

Mr. and Mrs. Neal W. Huber celebrated their golden wedding anniversary last Sunday with a dinner at their home, 4144 Green Lea place. Five children and two grandchildren were present.

BILLIKEN SUBSTITUTES HELP DEFEAT CONCORDIA, 34 TO 21

Batterymen of Browns Depart for Training Camp Today

FIRST SQUAD OF CARDINALS TO ENTRAIN TOMORROW

Flint Rhem Signs With Minneapolis

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Feb. 23.

THE signed contract of Flint Rhem, former pitcher for the St. Louis Cardinals, was received today by Mike Kelley, manager of the Minneapolis baseball club of the American Association. Rhem announced a few weeks ago he would not report to the Minneapolis club this season.

Two St. Louis baseball expeditionary forces are ready for their annual invasion of the South. This afternoon, the Browns depart; tomorrow, the Cardinals get started. First reports of workouts from both camps are due this week, with those from the Browns emanating from West Palm Beach and those concerning the Cardinals coming from Avon Park.

From the date of the arrival in camp until the end of March, the two St. Louis clubs will be in training in Florida. Exhibition games begin early in March, the Cards breaking in against the Athletics at Avon Park on March 7 while the Browns first meet Columbus of the American Association at West Palm Beach, March 16. The Browns break camp the night of March 31 while the Cardinals' final exhibition at Avon Park is scheduled with the Yankees on March 25.

McEvoy to Go to Camp.

In the Browns' party leaving at 6:20 p. m. today will be Vice President and Mrs. L. C. McEvoy, Traveling Secretary Willis Johnson, Trainer Tommy Bramell, Catcher Wallie Schang and, possibly, Eddie Grimes, the new third baseman from Tulsa. Newspaper correspondents also will be in the party. So far as is known, the Browns have no holdouts and they expect all the pitchers and catchers with Coaches Bill Killefer and Jimmy Austin to be in camp Tuesday, ready for work. Manager Dan Howley spent the winter at West Palm Beach.

Leaving tomorrow with the Cardinals will be President Sam Brea-

$4,000,000 IS REPORTED OFFER FOR THE GIANTS

By the Associated Press.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 23.—The dream of the late Tex Rickard—an outdoor arena in New York City that could be converted into a mammoth stadium dedicated to boxing—was nearer realization today than ever during the life time of the famous promoter.

An offer of $4,000,000 for 75 per cent of the stock in the National Exhibition Co., controller of the New York Giants in the National League, has been made the three principal owners of the company by the directors of the Madison Square Garden Corporation. The offer was taken under consideration by Charles A. Stoneham, president of the company, Francis X. McQuade, former treasurer, and John McGraw, manager of the team after a discussion here Saturday with William F. Carey, new controller of the garden affairs.

McGraw and Carey Confer.

Although Carey refused to confirm all the details outright for fear that publicity would spoil the deal, news of the negotiations leaked out following a conference here Saturday between Carey and McGraw, who flew to Miami Beach from Havana and left the same night to lay the proposition before Stoneham in New York. The three own all but one quarter of the stock in the company, the other largest block, of 20 per cent, was purchased recently by William F. Kenney, close friend of former Gov. Alfred E. Smith of New York.

Garden directors, including Richard F. Hoyt, and James I. Bush, the principal stockholders, came to Florida recently to attend the Sharkey-Stribling match next Wednesday night and formed plans

Paul Waner Is Reported Demanding Record Salary From Barney Dreyfus

By the Associated Press.

PASO ROBLES, Nev., Feb. 23.—Back once again among familiar surroundings, the Pittsburg Pirates ushered in their 1929 training activities today with a brief, but snappy workout.

Donie Bush, the hustling little manager, lined up his cohorts, gave them a short talk and then put them through their paces for an hour. The romp was merely to loosen up stiff muscles and also to accommodate a squad of photographers.

Captain Pie Traynor, who has been switched from third to short and Jim Stroner, who will essay to fill the former's shoes at No. 3 sack, coaxed Scout Chick Frazer into batting grounders. Stroner is a Chircago lad and was acquired from Wichita of the Western League. The proceedings closed with a medicine ball act and a run around the park.

It is understood that Paul Waner is asking a larger salary than Barney Dreyfus, owner of the club, ever paid to any player. The younger Waner, Lloyd, is slightly more modest in his demands but nevertheless, is asking for a sizable increase. The two have pooled issues and say neither will sign until the demands of the other has been satisfied.

Joe Devine, Western scout for the Pirates, is ill here with a sharp attack of influenza.

Chicago Cubs Play Ten Men on a Team.

By the Associated Press.

AVALON, Santa Catalina Island, Cal., Feb. 23.—The Chicago Cubs toiled under a hot sun today at their spring training tasks. Pitching and batting practice, followed by a 10-a-side game, were in order for the seventh day of the conditioning session.

Although the temperature hovered around 80, high for this time of the year, the Cubs, put more vigor into their work today. Manager Joe McCarthy, after the session, was so gratified with the progress made by his charges, he declared a holiday for tomorrow.

Mike Cvengros, erstwhile major leaguer who won 21 games and lost but 8 for Wichita Falls of the Texas League fast season, displayed excellent form on the mound. He was closely watched by McCarthy.

Giant Teams Play 11-Inning Tie, 6-6.

By the Associated Press.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Feb. 23.—In their first practice game of the season today, the New York Giants' first and second teams went 11 innings to a 6-6 tie.

Schalk's triple in the ninth tied the score for the regulars.

Batteries: Regulars — Ogden, Stowers, Fitzsimmons and Schalk, Hogan; Rookies—Johnson, Kelly, Walker, Chaplin and Withy.

NURMI FAILS TO APPEAR; A. A. U. BARS HIM FROM FURTHER MEETS

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—Two sensational world's record performances and a brace of new championship standards made the 6000 spectators at the National A. A. U. indoor track and field title meet at Madison Square Garden tonight forget the absence of Paavo Nurmi who summarily was declared barred from all competition in the United States because of his last-minute withdrawal.

Even as Nurmi disappeared from the spotlight to take his place among the sharply disciplined "bad boys" of sports, another great athlete from Finland arose in his place. Running his first race in the United States, Eino Purje, young Finnish athlete who already held the world's 2000-meter mark, shattered the indoor two-mile steeplechase record by a full four seconds.

The second great world record for the evening came in the closing minutes of a brilliant meet when Herbert Schwarze, mighty titan of the Illinois A. C., smashed his own mark by more than eight inches with a 16-pound shot put of 50 feet, 3 inches, then repeated the performance of his next attempt.

The records for the national championship competition were accounted for by Edvin Wide of Sweden, who wiped out the previous mark held by Paavo Nurmi, his old rival from Finland, in running Leo Lermond clear off the track in the two-mile flat race and by Phil Edwards, New York University Negro, who missed world record time by a bare fifth of a second in a great 800 yard run.

The Illinois A. C. retained its team championship's with 29 points, 10 ahead of it's nearest rival the New York A. C.

Drilling to Overthrow the Cardinals

Pitcher Percy Malone of the Cubs has sent a high one into the air at the Cubs' spring camp at Catalina Island. Joe McCarthy's batterymen have been in training for a week. The team, with Rogers Hornsby at second base, is a popular favorite to win the 1929 championship of the National League. The Cardinals, despite Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig, now hold that title.

$265,000 Advance Sale, Success of Bout Sure, Dempsey Tells Wray

By John E. Wray,
Sports Editor of the Post-Dispatch

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 23.—Florida'a first big fight is going over the top. That much was apparently certain today, when Jack Dempsey, who is fighting his first battle as a promoter, told the Post-Dispatch that receipts of approximately $300,000 were certain—a figure that assures the enterprise escape from the disaster many had figured for it.

Approximately $265,000 in advance sales were shown by Dempsey, and with four more days still remaining, it was estimated that the $300,000 total ticket sales would be attained.

This would mean that the brand-new wooden stadium, just completed, will have to be about three-fourths filled on the night of the fight, capacity for the 35,000 seat sale being figured at $400,000.

The feat, if it turns out as advertised, of putting a near world-championship fight over in a community that has successively been visited by financial and cyclonic storms, can justly be attributed to Jack Dempsey himself. Jack has proved a tireless worker and his enthusiasm and drive have won him the fight as it won him his battles in the ring.

Title Recognition for Winner.

Meanwhile, the fighters are nearing the end of their training, a preparation which in both cases has fallen far short of the usual championship grind. And this is in all respects a championship fight! If either man wins decisively he undoubtedly will be acclaimed champion and subsequent eliminations will have no other importance than to furnish an opponent for the winner of the Stribling-Sharkey affair.

The ballyhoo, the high seat prices, the foregathering of millionaires and famous persons, all smack of the big title battles of recent years. The fighters have been putting on all the airs of charging 50-cent pieces to those who would view their workouts. But the usual hard training sessions have been missing.

Fighters in Good Shape.

The writer had his first glimpse of the rivals at work today. It must be said that both put in some good work, particularly Sharkey. However, early arrivals who have watched the men for two weeks say that it was the first real hard tryout for either man.

Sharkey boxed four rounds, two each with Paul Hoffman and Johnny Grosso, both better than the usual mine run of sparring partners. In fact, both are considered very shifty second-raters and Grosso will be seen on the card with Marty Gallagher in the semi-windup to the feature of the evening next Wednesday.

Sharkey looks good. His weight was given out as 187, which would be six or seven pounds below his

FIGHT PROBABLY TO BE BROADCAST FROM RINGSIDE

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 23.

WORD that the Sharkey-Stribling bout will be broadcast by the National Broadcasting Association is expected to be given out officially Monday. William F. Carey, vice-president of the Madison Square Garden Corporation, announced when the match first was made that there would be no broadcasting.

Since then pressure has been brought upon Garden officials from all parts of the country to allow the fracas to be put on the air. As soon as the advance sale passed $275,000, guaranteeing a profit, Carey weakened in his determination and finally agreed tentatively today to permit the broadcast. The final message that swayed the argument was a letter from a crippled war veteran who wrote Carey he was bedridden and had purchased a radio for the sole purpose of hearing the description of the match over the air.

Mickey Cochrane Gets New Contract And Is Satisfied

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 23.

MICKEY COCHRANE voted the most valuable player in the American League last year, expects to leave for Fort Myers, Fla., tomorrow night to join the Philadelphia Athletics in their training camp. Cochrane had been termed a holdout because the contract sent him by Manager Connie Mack was not satisfactory. Cochrane was quoted today as saying that he had received another contract from Mack which is satisfactory.

AGNIEL LOSES IN FINAL MATCH OF BILLIARD SERIES

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Feb. 23.—Max J. Shimon of Milwaukee won the Western Amateur Three Cushion Billiards Championship here tonight by defeating Earl Agniel of St. Louis by 50 to 34 in the most spectacular match of the tournament.

Although Agniel could have earned first place had he won from Shimon tonight in the final standings he was relegated to third position, below Garner Northfoss of Minneapolis. Northfoss won five games and lost two, as did Agniel, but the Minneapolis player lost his two matches by a total of only 15 points, while Agniel dropped his two by a total of 33 points.

The largest crowd ever to witness a billiard match in Minneapolis saw the little Milwaukeean go into an early lead tonight and hold throughout the 64 innings, although at times the advantage was cut to a slim point or two. Agniel, in an effort to stave off the defeat, resorted to numerous safeties, but Shimon knocked down the hardest shots his opponent left with a regularity that robbed Agniel of all hope.

Shimon was particularly accurate in his banking. Shimon had

JOHNSTON OF DETROIT SURE OF NATIONAL SKATING TITLE

Percy Johnston of the Cadillac A. C., Detroit, has wrestled the indoor all-round skating championship of the United States from Allan Potts, of Brooklyn, last year's titleholder, in the National Indoor Meet at the Winter Garden which comes to a close tonight. In the women's division Elsie Muller of Brooklyn has enough points to her credit to make certain of retaining her crown.

With but one event remaining to be contested, Johnston has a total of 130 points, while Potts has but 80. Should Potts win the remaining race, which is at five miles, he would bring his total up to only 110.

Johnson won the three quarters and the mile events last night while the best Potts was able to do was to place in the three quarters. In the mile race he finished outside the money entirely.

Potts, high point scorer of last year's meet, won the two-mile championship from a field of 10 stars in the feature event of yesterday afternoon's program. Potts' time was 6 minutes 24 3-5 seconds, 26 secinds slower than the record.

Potts followed his policy of the first day in laying back at the start of the race and for almost half the distance was never closer up than eighth place. He advanced steadily after that, however, and soon climbed to third place behind Percy Johnston of Detroit and Melvin Johnson of Minneapolis. With two more laps remaining, Potts took the lead and put forth a fine effort that gave him a margin of about 20 yards over Percy Johnston, who had Melvin Johnson at his heels.

There was only one other final event contested in the afternoon session. In that race, Sig Jablonosky of Chicago won the 440-yard juvenile championship in 2 minutes, 39 1-5 seconds. John Ramaciotti, another Chicago lad, was second and Truman Connell of St. Louis was third.

In the trials, out-of-town stars continued to score easy victories over the local entrants except in

By Gerald Holland

A pair of substitutes enlivened a St. Louis University basketball team that was badly off form in time to give the Billikens victory over Concordia Seminary for the second time this season by a score of 34 to 21, last night. A capacity crowd of 3000 persons at the St. Louis U. gymnasium saw the Billikens come within a single game of a clear title to the city collegiate championship.

Ollie Anderson, playing Jack Joyce's guard position, and Les Roberts, who replaced Joe Lintzenich at center, neither of whom had attracted a great deal of attention during the season, were the reserves that turned the tide in the Billikens' favor with a total of 14 points between them.

Roberts Leads Rally.

Roberts led a St. Louis rally in the final minutes of the first half and his basket that beat the half-way gun by a few seconds gave the Billikens a one-point lead of 14-13. Returning in the second half, Roberts, with Anderson and Hunt, spurted again to put St. Louis ahead with a safe margin before Barney Oldfield found the range to clinch the decision.

Concordia opened well and set a fast pace that, coupled with the advantage of winning nearly every tipoff, served to unsteady the Billikens to the extent that all of the regulars were guilty of ragged passing and wild shooting. During the first 14 minutes of play the Preachers covered their opponents so closely and St. Louis' scoring attempts were so inacurrate that the Billikens failed to score a single field goal.

Preachers Start Strong.

With Wetzel and Wians hitting the net, Concordia held a lead of 9-5 with six minutes of the first half remaining. At that point, with Roberts and Anderson in the lineup, a Hunt-Oldfield-Strong combination gave the Billikens their first field goal. Roberts dropped in another to tie the score and Oldfield sent his team ahead for the first time on a shot that rolled around the rim before dropping through. Wetzel, the Concordia center, broke away and scored a setup to tie and put another in after a scramble to win the lead again. Anderson's free throw reduced the margin to a single point and Roberts was just in time with another field goal to reverse the advantage.

Concordia slowed down as the second half opened and, encountering some of the Billikens' misfortune with setups, was held scoreless until the latter had taken a 25-13 lead. When Wetzel broke away again to start a rally for the Preachers, it was too late. Oldfield had begun to hit then and with Hunt and Roberts to help him, the possibility of last minute thrills was gone.

Concordia's Last Game.

There were times during the game when Concordia looked the good basketball team that it is—at times. As in other games this season, Eber Simpson's players failed to maintain their best form

Summary: Score at end of half—Central 14, Cleveland 12. Officials—E. Smith, referee; Kamp, umpire. Where played—Cleveland.

By Harold Tuthill.

Soldan occupies first place in the city high school basketball race since Roosevelt was dropped to second place by Beaumont, when the North Siders won, 21 to 20, last night on the Beaumont floor. Central nosed out Cleveland, 21 to 19, on the Cleveland court in the other conference contest.

When Roosevelt lost the lead shortly after the start of the second quarter, the Rough Riders apparently gave up trying to win the contest. Roosevelt was a listless, dispirited team in contrast to the one that won five straight victories, before it suffered its initial reverse. The game last night was the second Roosevelt has lost in two starts.

Beaumont Takes Lead Early.

Beaumont toyed with Roosevelt the first half, mainly through the accuracy of Capt. Carl Weidner, center, who sank four field goals. Holtman's two counts from the floor and one from the free throw line, together with a field goal by Schwandt and a free throw by Close, totaled 16 points for the North Siders at half time.

Vogel scored half of Roosevelt's 12 points in the first two quarters by counting three times from scrimmage.

Roosevelt narrowed the margin in the third quarter when Bailey scored a field goal and a free throw and Doran sank a field goal. The best Beaumont could do in this period was field goals by Weidner and Schwandt, making the count 20 to 17 in favor of Beaumont.

Missing on Foul Costly.

The teams remained even in the final period when Brandenburger matched Tad Close's shot from the field. Vogel missed a chance to tie the score at 21—all when his two free throws as a result of a personal foul were short of their mark. Bailey's free throw shortly before the finish of the contest brought Roosevelt's score up to 20.

Cleveland went down to its sixth straight defeat while Central gained its second victory in league competition as a result of the game between those schools.

Standing of the teams:

	W.	L.	Pct.
Soldan	5	1	.833
Roosevelt	5	2	.714
Beaumont	4	2	.667
Central	2	5	.286
Cleveland	0	6	.000

Blue Larkspur And Genie Are Race Favorites

Blue Larkspur and Genie continue to hold the position of favorites in the Kentucky Derby and the Coffroth Handicap, two of America's richest racing stakes. The release of the official nominations for the Kentucky Derby yesterday served to clear the atmosphere somewhat but the 159 nominations contained the names of practically all the good three-year-olds. One notable exception was the absence of Jack High who would have been held a 12 to 1 shot.

Winter book odds on both big stakes, as announced yesterday by Thomas M. Kearney, disclose Ervast as the only horse highly regarded in both stakes. This gelding, son of Paicines out of Blind Beauty, is a 6 to 1 favorite in the Coffroth, which is to be contested on Sunday, March 17, and a 12 to 1 shot in the Kentucky Derby whose date is May 18. A glance at Ervast's 2-year-old record will show why the Tijuana handicappers consider him next to Genie as the best bet in the field. He finished his first start and then came back with six straight victories. At that time his pace was described as "dazzling."

Polish Basketball Tourney.

Local independent teams are sought to compete in the Polish National Alliance basketball tournament at the Polish Hall, 736 North Seventh street, in East St. Louis, on March 12, 13 and 14. Joseph Prazda is manager of the meet.

I cannot even steer;
But as a driver I'm a star
When seated in the rear.

Though I will tell you here and now,
A car I cannot run,
I beat the world on knowing how
The business should be done.

The driver who is up in front,
I always view with fear,
And so I do my little stunt
While seated in the rear.

That's Queer.

FISTS FLY AS TULSA BEATS KANSAS CITY HOCKEY TEAM, 9 TO 0

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

TULSA, Okla., Feb. 23.—The Tulsa Oilers fitghing for a place in the American Hockey Association play-off series administered a 9 to 0 drubbing to the league-leading Kansas City Plamors in the first game of a series here tonight. A series of fights that resulted in four players being fined $15 each by Referee Hughes and left each team with only three men on the ice at the close of the game, marked the last five minutes of the contest. As one pair after another glided to the penalty box after swinging clubs and fists, the crowd of nearly 4000 fans was thrown into a frenzy of excitement.

Frank Sheppard of Tulsa and Gloomy Lessard of the Plamors were the first to mix, locking behind the Plamor goal so furiously that Referee Hughes and other players had trouble separating them. They were fined and put out. A few minutes later Graham of Tulsa and Ranger of Kansas City started a two-man war that sent them to the box with similar fines. Munroe of Kansas City and Marker of Tulsa had to be separated also.

Trapp, Cook and goalie McCusker were the only Oilers in the game at the finish and Paddy Byrne, Scott and Mitchell represented the Plamors.

The game was fought on even terms for the first 17 minutes, but after Tulsa took a one-goal lead it became a procession of goals for the home teams in the last two chapters.

QUICK MEALS AND PURINAS WIN IN VOLLEY BALL LEAGUE

Purina Mills and Quick Meal Stove won their matches in the opening of the Y. M. C. A. Industrial Volley Ball League at the Downtown Y. M. C. A. yesterday afternoon. Purina defeated McQuay-Norris 16—14 and 15—7. Quick Meal won from Busch Sulzer by scores of 15—7 and 15—2.

The lineups were: Purina Mills—Renard, Wilson, Fitz Roy, Grennwell, MacDonald, Steel, Cunningham, Taylor, Huntington, Picker and Whitmire; McQuay-Norris: Siefert, Plegge, Jaeger, Guelker, Speiser, Dreyfus, Schirr; Quick Meal Stove—Marino, P. Dalba, T. Dalba, Shipp, Dietrich, Hirsch, Pellegrini and Alexander; Busch-Sulzer — Meir, Mueller, Ruess, Olsen, Barchek and Kettler.

Spanish Featherweight Wins.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—Tony Ascencio, of Spain, defeated Georgie Mack, Jersey City featherweight, in a close ten-round match at the Olympia A. C. tonight. Ascencio weighed 123½; Mack 122. Black Bill of Cuba, galloped away with the decision over Freddy Lattanvio, of New York, in the 10-round semifinal. Black Bill scaled 112, half a pound more than his opponent.

THREE INTER-CITY MATCHES ON K. OF C. CARD AT E. ST. LOUIS

Three inter-city matches have been arranged to headline the amateur fistic program to be staged at the Knights of Columbus gymnasium, Washington place and State street, on the East Side Saturday night. A fourth special event is being sought by the club matchmakers.

Pat Cooney, middleweight, Ed "Skip" Hennessy, welterweight, and Fred "Tex" Saunders, featherweight, will carry the colors of the K. C. A. C. against three Springfield, Ill., opponents. The rivals will be Buck Cables, Joe Beja and Jackie Davis, respectively.

Trainer Eddie Barth of the K. of C. camp is anxious to match his heavyweight star, Al Bott, with somebone.

KID LENCHO MEETS STEADMAN TUESDAY ON BELLEVILLE CARD

Kid Lencho of San Antonio, Tex., and Paul Steadman of St. Louis are to meet in the 10-round feature of the George E. Hilbard American Legion Post boxing program at the Turner Hall in Belleville on Tuesday night, March 5.

Matchmaker Albert Baldus has Harry Durso, St. Louis, and Joey Thomas, Louisville, Ky., matched for the eight-round semifinal at 112 pounds. Eddie Goldberg, St. Louis, and Mickey Cummings, Scott Field, clash in the six-round second prelim at 147 pounds while Ray Alfano, East St. Louis, and Ardell Hoffmann, Belleville, mix in the four-round curtain raiser at 135 pounds.

NAVY DEFEATS HARVARD IN BASKETBALL FINAL

By the Associated Press.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Feb. 23.—Navy wound up its basketball season today with a 43 to 40 victory over Harvard, although in the last half a Harvard spurt overcame Navy's early lead and had the score tied at one time only a few minutes before the final whistle. Colestock, Middie center, rolled up 20 points of the score. Navy netted 14 field goals, two more than Harvard.

By the victory Navy broke even in its season with eight victories and as many defeats.

TABLERS MEET MADISONS WITH LEAD AT STAKE

Repulsed in their second round national cup game at Chicago last Sunday, the Tabler soccer team will today try to regain some degree of local prestige by defeating the Madisons in their St. Louis Soccer League game at Sportsman's Park this afternoon. If the Tablers win, they will take the league lead away from the Madisons. In the first game of the league double-header, the Wellstons and Ben Millers, both recently improved, will furnish the entertainment.

Phil J. Kavanaugh, for many years a referee but more recently a coach, will officiate in the Tabler-Madison game. Oscar Mossmann, regular league official, is in Chicago where he will handle the second round cup game between the Sparta Club of that city and the All-Scots of Detroit.

Did Not Want Mossmann.

Manager John Marre of the Tablers had requested President Barker to appoint some referee other than Mossmann to handle today's game. In his letter requesting the change, Marre pointed out that Mossmann's affiliation as coach of the Madisons brings him into such close contact with the players of that club that rival players are prone to think he may favor the Madisons in close plays. Mossmann has been coaching the Madisons for the past four weeks. It is said that he is responsible for putting Flavin's injured leg into shape so that he was able to play last Sunday when doctors had pronounced his injury too serious to admit of playing again this season.

The return of Flavin to center forward puts a new face on the Madison attack. Emmett McDonnell, the young substitute center proved conclusively that he has great natural ability but Flavin at his best is a remarkable player, a more dangerous man in front of the goal than McDonnell.

Tabler Defense Strengthened.

But the Madison forwards will probably find the Tabler defense stronger than at any prevoius time this season. Nolan, especially, has added strength to the defense.

The first game today will start at 2 o'clock.

W. E. Barker, western cup commissioner, was notified yesterday that the second round match between Akron and the Holley Carburetors of Detroit has been postponed to March 3 because of bad weather. This means a further postponement of the western semifinal in St. Louis to March 10. On that day the Madisons will oppose the winner of the Akron-Detroit game.

GIRL HURLS DISCUS 117 FEET FOR A NEW WORLD'S RECORD

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 23.—Lillian Copeland of the Pasadena Athletic and Country Club today set a new American record for the women's discus throw, tossing the platter 117 feet 3 inches to feature the annual A. A. U. relays at the Coliseum here. She bettered her own record by a foot.

Although several good times and distances were made in other track and field events, Miss Copeland's feat was by far the outstanding on the program, in which more than 300 athletes, many of them nationally known, competed. The Pasadena Miss was a point winner for the United States in the women's events in the Olympic games.

Nathaniel George, Negro sprint sensation from Whittier College, raced to victory in the 100-yard dash, open to all, in the fast time of 9 4-5 seconds, considered good inasmuch as the relay meet was but the opening event of the track season here.

SUNDAY SCHOOL BASKET TOURNEY OPENS TUESDAY

The St. Louis Sunday School basketball championship tournament will start Tuesday night at the Downtown Y. M. C. A., with two games.

The Ascension Episcopal Church will play Giddings Presbyterian Church of the Downtown District, in the first game at 8:30 o'clock. The second game will be between Third Baptist and the winners of a game between Hyde Park and Mt. Auburn of North Side.

Fourth Baptist and Oak Hill drew byes.

The final match for the championship of the Senior Division of the Sunday School Athletic League will be played March 9 at the North Side Y. M. C. A.

BILLIKEN SUBSTITUTES BEAT CONCORDIA

and that fault was especially unfortunate last night, because the evening found Ham Strong, the Billiken captain, without his usual accuracy. The game ended Concordia's season and the collegiate basketball careers of six of its players—Reinke, the captain; Wetzel, Schmidt, Stein, Chuvala and Lou Dau, who was not in uniform because of a broken blood vessel.

St. Louis has one game remaining—a second meeting with Washington University, Missouri Valley champions, next Tuesday night. Although the Billikens beat the Bears decisively in the first game, the latter are conceded an edge in the final. St. Louis' record now is 13 victories and four defeats.

Abad, Next Opponent for Bass, Started Career in Battles in Streets and Alleys of Panama

By Dent McSkimming

Davie Abad, brown-skinned little man from Panama, who meets the bone-crushing Benny Bass in the main event of the Fred W. Stockman Post boxing program at the Coliseum Thursday evening obtained his ring schooling in the streets and alleys of Panama City, in the Canal Zone.

"Sure I boxed in amateur tournaments," said Davey as he lay on the rubbing table at the National Gymnasium after a workout. "But, the boys gave me some awful beatings in the ring. I guess I lost nearly every amateur tournament bout I had but I'd get my revenge by taking the same fellows out in the street or in the alley and beating them up. In these street fights kicking and gouging were allowed. Just like the French street fights. I used to win at that style."

"How old are you, Davie?"

He's 21 Years of Age.

"In New York I am about 25 but actually I am 21. You see, when I came to the United States in 1924 I was too young to box 10 rounds under New York commission rules, so I told them I was 20 years old."

Abad has never been knocked out. He has fought virtually every leading featherweight in the country, including Canzoneri, Bass, Nebo, Shea, Forbes, Hackley, Lucas, Anderson and others. He defeated Canzoneri two years ago when Tony was the sensation of the division. He beat Shea, whom he considers the best fighter of his weight. He beat Eddie Anderson two months ago at Milwaukee. His oponents have ranged in weight from 124 to 132 pounds.

"Jimmy Hackley is one of the hardest hitting right-hand punchers in the game, but I let him come in at 132 pounds in our fight at Indianapolis last year," said Abad. "He hit me pretty hard in the first round but I beat him easily.

"In a bout with Eddie Martin at Madison Square Garden nine months ago I weighed only 124 pounds. Twenty-four hours after the bout I stepped on the scales and weighed 138 pounds. Against Bass, at Philadelphia five weeks ago I weighed 128 pounds."

Bass Is Not so Tough.

Philadelphia writers criticised Abad for doing a lot of unnecessary holding in the Bass bout. Davie was asked whether he did actually hold on.

"Maybe. I had hurt this knuckle on my right hand five days before the Bass fight," he replied. "It wasn't bad enough t hurt my boxing but it kept me from punching as I like to punch. After I had landed a right to Bass' chin in the first round I felt the pain again and had to confine my hitting to my left. Naturally, the critics thought I should have shown more action. I fought Bass with one hand. He's not so tough."

Abad is a native of Panama. His father also was Panama born of Indian and Spanish ancestry. Davie has a strain of Italian blood in his veins for his mother was a native of Italy. He is of a pleasant disposition although not given to smiling. His high cheek bones and and broad nose bear evidence of his Indian ancestry. His face and ears are practically unmarked in spite of his numerous fights with tough opponents.

STONEHAM OFFERED $4,000,000 FOR HIS NEW YORK CLUB

for purchase of the ball club. Another deal, in the event that all three of the principal stockholders fail to accept the first proposition, involves the purchase of 51 per cent of the Club from Stoneham for $2,000,000.

"The proposition of buying into the Giants for $2,000,000 has been submitted to me, but nothing as yet has been done on it," Carey said in a telephone conversation with Garden officials in New York. "I expect when I return to New York to give the matter my immediate attention. The situation has interesting possibilities."

McGraw to Be Retained.

A meeting of the Board of Directors of the Garden Corporation has been called for March 5, when all members of the board will have returned to New York, it was said here. Plans for purchase of the club contains the clause that McGraw shall remain as manager of the team.

The disturbing element in the situation, Garden authorities said here, was the refusal of McQuade to agree so far to any deal with Stoneham. McQuade recently was retired as treasurer of the organization after a controversy with other officials of the club. A long-standing agreement among the three principal owners, they said, prevented anyone from selling his share in the Giants without the consent of the other two.

The popular conception is that McGraw and Stoneham control together 55 per cent of the baseball club. It is recognized, however, that McQuade, with the assistance of Kenny, controls sufficient stock to block the deal if he is not satisfied with the situation.

For several years before his death early this year, Rickard attempted to purchase at different times both the Giants and the New York Yankees. Tex always explained that personal differences with Stoneham prevented the deal.

Owners Out of City.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—Efforts to reach the three principal stockholders of the New York Giants Baseball Club for comment on Madison Square Garden's offer of $4,000,000 for the club failed tonight. Charles A. Stoneham, president of the Giants, could not be located either at his office or his home. John McGraw, manager of the club, and a stockholder as well, was reported on his way to San Antonio and Francis X. McQuade was in Miami Beach, Fla.

ILLINOIS FENCERS AND GYMNASTS BEAT CHICAGO

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Feb. 23.—University of Illinois fencing and gymnast teams maintained clean slates today by winning over University of Chicago teams on the local floors. The Illinois gymnastic team won 1182.5 to 894.75, while the fencers won, 12 to 5. The gymnasts scored a slam in tumbling, while the fencers made a slam in the sabers.

LITTLEJOHN TRADED OUT OF CARDS' CHAIN

HOUSTON, Tex., Feb. 23.—Pitchers Carl Littlejohn and Dick Whitworth of the Houston, Texas League, baseball club, at St. Louis Cardinals' farm, have been traded to Fort Worth for Paul Wachtel, veteran spitballer, it was announced today. No money was involved.

TIGERS AND KANSAS IN BOXING TOURNEY

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Feb. 23.—Missouri and Kansas universities and the Haskell Indian Institute of Lawrence, Kan., have entered the Missouri-Kansas A. A. U. boxing tournament, to be held here Friday and Saturday, officials announced tonight.

The officials also said that the Kemper Military School of Boonville, Mo., and the Wentworth Military Academy of Lexington, Mo., were expected to send boxers to the meet.

About 80 entries were anticipated.

All bouts will be three rounds, with a fourth round in case of draw optional with the referee.

TWO ROOKIES SIGN WITH KANSAS CITY

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Feb. 23.—Officials of the Kansas City baseball club of the American Association tonight announced the signing of Clyde Kendall, Guilford, N. C., outfielder and Geryl Gardner, South Ford, N. D. pitcher.

Pitchers and catchers will entrain for the spring camp at Lake Charles, La., Saturday, and the rest of the squad will follow in a week.

KID CHOCOLATE BEATS CHICK SUGGS

By the Associated Press.

HAVANA, Feb. 23.—Kid Chocolate, of Cuba, won the Negro featherweight championship of the world tonight, when he outpointed Chick Suggs, of New Bedford, Mass., in a 12-round bout here.

Moberly 40, M. M. A. 29.

MEXICO, Mo., Feb. 23.—Moberly avenged an earlier defeat at the hands of the Missouri Military Academy Colonels this year by trouncing the Cadets on their home floor here last night, 40 to 29, in the final game of the season for the Cadets. The scoring honors went to Marriott of Mobery with 16 points. Capt. Phil Slaughter of M. M. A., taking second honors with 12 points. The game was a Central Missouri "Little Nine" contest.

SMITH INSURES EYES, ARMS AND LEGS FOR A YEAR

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Feb. 23.

HORTON SMITH, sensational young golfing professional, today heavily insured himself against injury to his eyes, arms and legs. Under the terms of the policy he will receive $18,750 should one hand or arm be disabled so that he is unable to follow his profession. By disability of both hands or arms he would receive $50,000. Ten thousand dollars would be paid for injury to one eye and $25,000 if both were injured. The policy values his legs at $12,000 each, or $25,000 for the pair. The policy, written for one year, will protect Smith while he is in England this summer as a member of the Ryder Cup team.

FOUR STARS ARE INELIGIBLE FOR MAPLEWOOD NINE

By Henry L. Freund.

Coach Armin Wahlbrink of Maplewood High School believes that "Old Man Hard Luck" is making Maplewood High his headquarters, due to a recent school announcement, declaring four of the school's athletic stars ineligible for further competition. The four include Al Bruno, "Fat" Childers, Tom Lane and Walter Schlueter. The loss of the four practically wrecks the track and baseball teams.

The basketball team has already felt the loss of these players.

The loss of Bruno was the hardest blow, as Al was center and captain of the basketball team, high jumper on the track team and pitcher and chief slugger in baseball. For the past three years the baseball team has been built about Bruno. He has refused several offers to enter the professional ranks.

Childers gained a position as guard on the county all-star football team last season. Childers also was a guard on the basketball team. "Fat" had the honor of being the heaviest basketball player in the county, weighing well over 200 pounds. Childers' bulk proved a great advantage in his position at guard.

Lane and Schlueter were also basketball players and they, too, have turned in their uniforms. Schlueter also was a star track man, being the district 100-yard dash champion. Lane was one of Maplewood's veterans in the 220 and 440 relay.

These four ineligibilities were due to the nine-semester ruling. School officials, after delving into past records, declared that this school term would be the ninth semester of athletic activities for Bruno, Lane, Childers and Schlueter, and therefore required them to withdraw from all sports.

BROWNS BATTERYMEN DEPART TODAY; CARDS LEAVE TOMORROW

don, Secretary Clarence Lloyd. Coaches "Gabby" Street and "Greasy" Neale, Manager Billy Southworth and Pitchers Grover Cleveland Alexander and Clarence Mitchell. The usual corps of newspapermen will complete the party. Branch Rickey, vice president and business manager, intends leaving so as to be in camp when the exhibitions start March 7.

Manager Howley of the Browns plans to hold one practice a day as he did last year with such fine results. Billy Southworth probably will stick to the two-a-day plan of the last two years.

Mathes to Lead Springfield.

Announcement was made today that Joe Mathes, St. Louisan, would manage the Browns' farm-team at Springfield, Mo., in the Western Association. Mathes is known as a successful minor league pilot and has directed teams at Houston and Beaumont, Tex., and at Des Moines, Ia., and Chattanooga, Tenn. The Browns also added an exhibition at Springfield April 12, to their list of such games.

The Cards plan to reach St. Louis on the morning of April 12. The city series will start Saturday, April 13 and conclude Sunday, April 14. The regular season opens April 16 with the Browns here, having the Chicago White Sox as their guests and the Cardinals starting against the Reds in Cincinnati.

Bell Only Holdout.

Herman Bell, right-handed pitcher, obtained from Rochester, is the only official Cardinal holdout. Bell lives in California and there is said to be a difference between his terms and the club's like unto that between black and white.

Mike Delaney, one of the Cards' recruit pitchers, appeared in St. Louis during the winter season as a member of the St. Viator's basketball team. The Saints defeated the St. Louis U. Billikens and the Concordia Seminary preachers.

Bill Friel, business manager of the Browns, will go to the Palm Beach camp sometime. The date of his departure is not set.

AMATEUR BOXERS DRILL FOR TITLE BOUTS MARCH 7

With the annual Western A. A. U. boxing championships scheduled to be held at the New Coliseum on Thursday night, March 7, many local and East Side candidates for title honors are working out every night in sparring bouts at the various gymnasiums sponsoring amateur fistic activity.

Harry A. Riddick, chairman of the District Registration Committee, in charge of arrangements for this year's championship meet, reported receipt of nine local entries during the past few days and he has been encouraged by reports from various clubs to anticipate a record-breaking enrollment.

Riddick also has received tentative assurance from officials in charge of amateur boxing in Wichita, Kan., and Tulsa, Ok., that those cities will send representative teams to St. Louis to compete. The Elks Club of Wichita is sponsoring a movement to send a team of ten fighters.

East St. Louis will make a stronger bid for District title honors this year than at any time in the past, judging by the showing made in local and East Side tourney competition this year by Coach Eddie Barth's Knights of Columbus team.

Barth has a formidable flyweight contender in little Johnny Emmerich, who surprised a few weeks ago by defeating Cliff Doetzel, the South Broadway ace and champion for the past two years in a special engagement at the South Side arena. In two subsequent bouts Emmerich won over Gilbert "Peewee" Terry of the Flori Olympians, a fighter who has lost only four decisions in 20 contests.

Pat Cooney, last year's junior middleweight champion, stands a splendid chance of winning the senior title for the East Side team since Al Stillman, last year's National A. A. U. and Western District titleholder, has graduated to professional company along with Frank Power, his predecessor on the District throne, and Mike Clayton, who was runner-up in [illegible]. Joe Kenney, a fast-stepping lightweight, and Carl Bott, a speedy skillful heavyweight, are other very promising members of Coach Barth's troupe.

MRS. GAUT APPOINTS COMMITTEE TO PLAN INTERNATIONAL MATCHES

By the Associated Press.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Feb. 23.—Mrs. Dave Gaut, chairman of the Woman's Division of the United States Golf Association, announced today the appointment of a committee to confer with the executive committee of the U. S. G. A. on plans for matches between women golfers of the United States and teams from England, Canada and France.

The committee consists of Mrs. C. J. S. Frazer of New York, chairman; Miss Margaret Curtis of Boston and Miss Florence McNeely of Philadelphia.

The matter of international team play was brought up at a meeting of the woman's golf association at Hot Springs, Va., last September and Mrs. Gaut was authorized to appoint a committee to carry on negotiations.

The proposal to have a women's team similar to the Walker team among American amateur golfers and the Ryder team of Professionals has been broached before but Mrs. Gaut's action as chairman of the woman's committee marks the first official move.

Miss Curtis has offered to donate a cup to be known as the Curtis Cup for a permanent international trophy.

normal fighting figure. If the work in the hot sun that prevailed here up to today has weakened him, there was no sign of it in his work. He loomed up strong and fast and stepped around after his sparring partners eagerly.

Sharkey left the impression of being at his best, despite the low weight, but it must be confessed that both his sparring mates found him rather easy to hit, and both Grosso and Hoffman jarred him with blows to the head. Sharkey, hit in the body several times, showed a tendency to wince. Possibly he hasn't forgotten the terrible belting given him by Jack Dempsey, one which almost wrecked him and put him out of the running for months.

Stribling Appears Light.

At Stribling's camp the crowd was much larger than at Sharkey's and the program much more of the circus order. There was plenty of shadow boxing by the entire "stable," rope-skipping and numerous announcing.

Stribling boxed three rounds, two with Paul Cavalier and one with the ancient Martin Burke, who twice fell victim to Stribling's lightning-like right hand, each time in less than one round of action.

Stribling, because of the cold, kept on his sweat shirt while he worked and did not reveal his torso. But even in the bulky shirt he seemed much smaller man than Sharkey, about the chest especially. His weight was announced at 184 pounds, but he seemed to be six or even eight pounds lighter. There is a visible disparity in their upper bodies in favor of Sharkey.

Stribling spent much of his time in feinting. He carried his left hand hanging low, after the manner of Pal Moore, and licked it up into his opponent's face with startling speed and snap. But his real purpose was to try to draw a right-hand lead from his opponent, whereupon he would counter effectively and hard.

Stribling in no way extended himself, except at odd moments. But he showed enough to indicate that he is a dangerous man at infighting and that his right cross is as fast as a streak, with plenty of power.

Sharkey Is Favored.

The men will work out again this afternoon, more for the benefit of the crowd and the gate receipts than for any training they need. And after that, preparation will be merely of a limbering up nature. The men apparently are fit now, having done most of their work before coming here.

There is practically no talk of betting here, although crowds throng the camps daily. Sharkey is the popular choice and the price quoted is anywhere from 8 to 5 to 2 to 1 in his favor. There is also supposed to be $25,000 Sharkey money posted to be covered by Stribling money but no sums of consequence has been put up by the Southerner's advocates.

That the general public is interested in this fight is shown by the congestion already prevailing. In Miami Beach rooms of any sort are at $15 a day and a housing committee, working for the Chamber of Commerce, is busy trying to place the arrivals as they come in. Many will have to be cared for in Miami proper. The army of newspaper men is housed in quarters arranged by the promoters, and many of them are sleeping on cots. The bulk of the late arrivals will be housed in sleeping cars, in all probability.

The fight itself will be the best advertised fight in history, outside of the title fights or those in which Dempsey figured.

Notables Present.

At the ringside, during yesterday's workout were many noted persons, among them G. F. Getz, the Chicago millionaire, through whose aid the Tunney-Dempsey fight in Chicago was arranged; Al Lassman, New York University's famous football star, still limping from his injury last fall; Chick Meeham, his coach at New York University; Al Watrous, professional golfer, and millionaires in profusion.

Not the least interesting figure at the coming fight will be Lou Magnolia, the referee. Magnolia has handled many championship fights, among them being the Tunney-Greb contest, the Bushy Graham-Izzy Schwartz flyweight fight, the Mandell-McLarnin title affair, and heavyweight fights between such important rivals as Sharkey - Maloney, Sharkey - Delaney, Stribling-Loughran and many others.

Magnolia was compromise candidate and was named after a long wrangle in which the Massachusetts Commission was asked to name the official. Stribling then objected to this and after a long conference, in which 10 officials' names were given for choice, Magnolia was selected.

Undoubtedly, he is a capable and experienced official. He is credited with one "fault," that is, overofficiousness. "He interferes too much," fighters say, and this has a tendency to disconcert the battlers. Probably the fighters who make this charge are the ones who need "interference."

Possible Trouble.

There is one angle which may cause the referee trouble. Gossip has it that Stribling has a tendency to foul, and many reports of his hitting low in practice have gone forth. On the other hand, Sharkey is credited with a readiness to "claim foul." Both do not seem to be borne out by the records of the men.

The arena, now completed, was put up by Lionel Levy in record time. It will have one feature that should commend itself to spectators. The most distant $5 seat will be 10 feet nearer to the ring than the farthest away "ringside" seat was at Chicago. The arena is constructed so that each spectator will have a clear view.

SUMMERS LEADS IN SCHAEFER CLASSIC

Hank Summers, A. B. C. singles champion, rolled into the lead among the first two squads of bowlers in the annual Ed Schaefer pin classic, which began yesterday. Summers totaled 1691 for his eight games.

William White, with 1616, was second on the early squads, and Forrest Beye, with 1613, third.

Bowling will continue today, until six squads of 16 men each have rolled. Today's rolling starts at 2 p. m.

How Ban Johnson Used a Detective To Get Rube Waddell From Coast When Connie Mack Needed a Pitcher

BAN JOHNSON'S OWN STORY

Substantially as told by him in interviews extending over a period of a year, reported stenographically in many instances, and compiled in the present form

By John E. Wray and J. Roy Stockton.

CHAPTER XVII.
The Eccentric Rube Waddell.

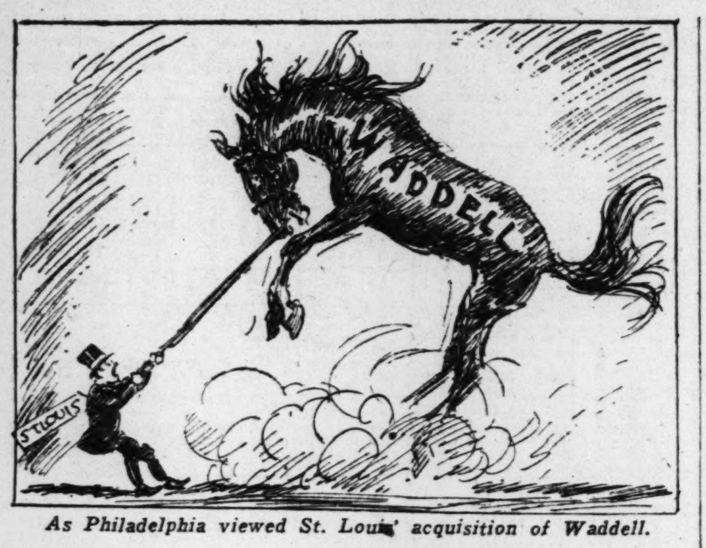
Copyright, 1929, by the Pulitzer Pub. Co. (The St. Louis Post-Dispatch).

BASEBALL has never known a more eccentric player than Rube Waddell and with present day conditions, there probably will never be another like him. He had perhaps the greatest pitching arm and surely one of the most powerful that the game had ever known. But with his great physique and stamina, he had the mind of a child.

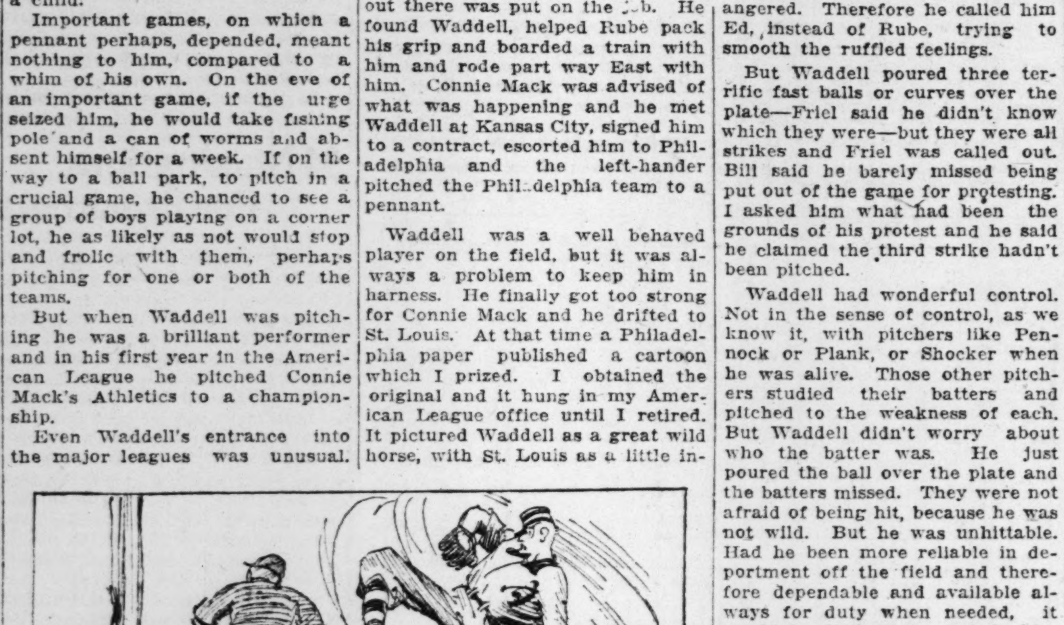
Important games, on which a pennant perhaps, depended, meant nothing to him, compared to a whim of his own. On the eve of an important game, if the urge seized him, he would take fishing pole and a can of worms and absent himself for a week. If on the way to a ball park, to pitch in a crucial game, he chanced to see a group of boys playing on a corner lot, he as likely as not would stop and frolic with them, perhaps pitching for one or both of the teams.

But when Waddell was pitching he was a brilliant performer and in his first year in the American League he pitched Connie Mack's Athletics to a championship.

Even Waddell's entrance into the major leagues was unusual. During the first year of the American League's expansion Mack's team was riddled by injunctions. After the Philadelphia club had signed Lajoie, Gardner, Flick and another star whose name I do not recall, Col. Rogers, from whom the players had been taken, obtained an injunction which prevented them from playing in Pennsylvania and Mack had to turn the players over to Cleveland. They would play no games in Philadelphia and when it was necessary to go through the state, they journeyed by night.



As Philadelphia viewed St. Louis' acquisition of Waddell.



"Throw a little harder, Rube."

Pinkerton Got Him.

CONNIE MACK told me of his troubles and said that if he could obtain the services of a pitcher named Waddell, who was playing for Los Angeles, it would help him out materially.

I offered to give whatever assistance I could and went to see my old friend Allen Pinkerton and told him we wanted Waddell. Pinkerton telegraphed his San Francisco office and a detective out there was put on the job. He found Waddell, helped Rube pack his grip and boarded a train with him and rode part way East with him. Connie Mack was advised of what was happening and he met Waddell at Kansas City, signed him to a contract, escorted him to Philadelphia and the left-hander pitched the Philadelphia team to a pennant.

Waddell was a well behaved player on the field, but it was always a problem to keep him in harness. He finally got too strong for Connie Mack and he drifted to St. Louis. At that time a Philadelphia paper published a cartoon which I prized. I obtained the original and it hung in my American League office until I retired. It pictured Waddell as a great wild horse, with St. Louis as a little individual in a plug hat, trying to hold the rearing, crazy horse.

Yes, He Had Speed.

WADDELL was a remarkable pitcher. He put the fear into the opposing batters' hearts. Bill Friel, now business manager of the Browns, once told me a story of his respect for the Rube's prowess.

Bill was with the Browns and was playing third base the day that Rube went into the stands at Philadelphia after a tantalizing fan. Bill was ready to take his turn at bat at the time and when Waddell returned to the field, as Bill says he did, Bill walked out to the big fellow and said, "Ed, you did exactly right." Bill thought to mollify the big fellow in the hope that the Rube would give him a good ball to hit at. Friel said he had made only an occasional foul off Waddell in years of trying and knowing that Rube was hard enough to hit when he wasn't mad, didn't relish the idea of trying to solve his curves and speed when angered. Therefore he called him Ed, instead of Rube, trying to smooth the ruffled feelings.

But Waddell poured three terrific fast balls or curves over the plate—Friel said he didn't know which they were—but they were all strikes and Friel was called out. Bill said he barely missed being put out of the game for protesting. I asked him what had been the grounds of his protest and he said he claimed the third strike hadn't been pitched.

Waddell had wonderful control. Not in the sense of control, as we know it, with pitchers like Pennock or Plank, or Shocker when he was alive. Those other pitchers studied their batters and pitched to the weakness of each. But Waddell didn't worry about who the batter was. He just poured the ball over the plate and the batters missed. They were not afraid of being hit, because he was not wild. But he was unhittable. Had he been more reliable in deportment off the field and therefore dependable and available always for duty when needed, it would be difficult to exclude him in selecting a pitching staff for an all-star all-time team.

A String, Not a Catch of Fish.

MANY are the stories and anecdotes told about Waddell. There is the one about his love for fishing. Time and again he would wander away, perhaps on the eve of a most important series. He would spend three or four days with rod and reel and then would come back and pitch.

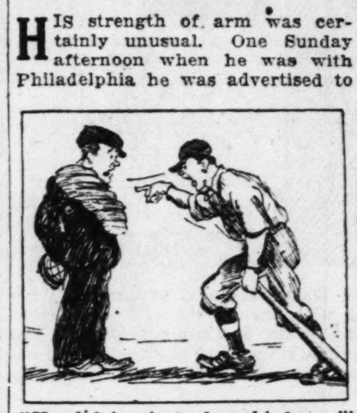
He was pitching for Joe Cantillon one year and Joe was always very fond of fish. Rube disappeared on the eve of an important series and stayed away day after day. With each passing afternoon, as the need for Rube's arm grew more acute, Cantillon's wrath increased. He announced a fine and doubled it and increased it as time went along. And then one afternoon the Rube appeared, with his fishing paraphernalia in one hand and a fine string of bass in the other.

Up to Cantillon he walked, presented him with the string of fish and went to the clubhouse and put on his uniform. Cantillon forgot all about his threats to fine Waddell, in his pleasure at the fine mess of fish. But a few days later Cantillon received a bill from the nearby fish market, for one basket of fish.

Waddell was a man of prodigious strength and with a wonderful constitution. He was generous to a fault and always eager to sacrifice himself for the good of others. He had a penchant for fire fighting and joined the volunteer fire department in every small town he entered. When thus enrolled at Hickman, Ky., where his team was training one spring, the fire department was called to help repair a levee, endangered gravely by floods. Bags of sand were being thrown feverishly in place to mend a patched place. Rube was helping. The supply of empty bags was exhausted unexpectedly and when it appeared that the water would break through at one spot before other bags were available, Rube threw his big body against the weak spot and stayed there until there were sand bags to take his place. That was told to me as an actual happening, story book legend though it may appear to be. The town newspapers made a great play of it and that night Waddell was forced to accept honorary membership in every lodge and benevolent organization in the place.

An Arm of Steel.

HIS strength of arm was certainly unusual. One Sunday afternoon when he was with Philadelphia he was advertised to pitch against the Browns at St. Louis. Willie Sudhoff, who was scheduled to do the pitching for St. Louis, knew that Waddell was to be his opponent and made an appointment with Rube for several hours before the game.



"He didn't pitch that third one!"

Waddell met Sudhoff and Willie talked Rube into giving an exhibition of his throwing arm. Waddell threw from the flag pole in center field to home plate at least 50 times during the exhibition, before Connie Mack finally arrived at the scene and put a stop to it.

Sudhoff figured the throwing would ruin Waddell's arm for the afternoon, but Waddell went in and pitched just the same, shut out the Browns, 1 to 0, and struck out 15 men.

Another story that Bill Friel told me recently about Waddell illustrates how Waddell's name stood for pitching perfection in the minds of the players. Friel met Joe Sugden, who did the catching for Waddell at St. Louis, and told him he'd been having trouble recalling his batting record against the Rube.

"I'm sure I got three fouls off him," Friel told Sugden, "but I'm uncertain in my mind whether I got them all in one year, one each year for three years, or how they were divided."

"I recall very well," Sugden replied. "You hit hell out of Rube the first year. That's when you got two of those fouls."

W. U. Civic Athletic Association, "No Longer Neccessary," Disbands

By James M. Gould.

The "Civic Athletic Association of Washington University," dedicated to the advancement of athletics at the university and active in securing scholarships for worthy student-athletes, has disbanded. According to a prominent alumnus and active worker in the association, this action was taken because of the feeling that its purpose had been accomplished in rousing University officials to the need for giving such scholarships to build up necessary and advantageous athletic programs. Hereafter, according to this alumnus, the university will take over the work.

Recently, the Civic Association sent out letters to its members regarding certain amounts due the university for these scholarships and appointing a committee to take up the matter and move toward a solution. According to the Post-Dispatch's informant, a meeting was held and an agreement reached whereby the university accepted a certain sum in payment of all claims and agreed or inferred that the matter of scholarships for those athletes who really deserved them would be regulated, in the future, by the university. The decision to disband the association followed this agreement, it is said.

Chancellor Throop of Washington declined to comment on the situation other than to say, "this question has been discussed before and last year there were several newspaper articles concerning it. So far as we are concerned, the university considers the entire matter a closed incident."

The circular letters sent out to members of the association under date of Feb. 19, pointed out that "there are students in the university at the present time who are dependent on the assistance of the association and of individuals for the completion of their college course."

WESTERN INDOOR NET EVENT OPENS MARCH 10

By the Associated Press.

CINCINNATI, O., Feb. 23.—The ninth annual Western indoor tennis tournament will be played at the Cincinnati Indoor Net Club March 10 to 17, L. B. Corlis, president of the club, announced today.

Five divisions of play will be held, men's singles and doubles, ladies' singles, mixed doubles and junior singles. Any player affiliated with tennis clubs in the Ohio Valley or Western Tennis Associations may compete.

Emmett Pare, Chicago, who won the singles championship the last two years, and Clara Zinke, Cincinnati, singles champion, will defend their titles.

Girls' Basket Fives To Play Tuesday At Crystal City

Officials of the Greater St. Louis Girls' Basketball Association have announced that this week's games will be played at the Crystal City High School gymnasium at Crystal City, Mo., Tuesday night.

The league lead will be at stake when the Crystal City and Bachelor teams, which won their second half opening games last week, clash in the feature contest. In the preliminary game, the Schenbergs will meet the Headlights.

The Headlights have lost four straight games by slight margins. The Schenbergs, kicked around unmercifully during the first six weeks of the season, have won their last two contests.

INDIANA SCHOOL FOR DEAF WINS CAGE TITLE

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 23.—Indiana school for the deaf today won the title in the Central States basketball tournament for deaf schools when they defeated the Wisconsin mutes 46-30.

Indiana led at the end of the first half 21-11. James, Indiana forward, was the star of the game, making a total of 21 points. Kuglitsch and Heser, Wisconsin, forwards, starred for the losers with 13 and 12 points respectively.

SOONERS WIN, SURE OF TIE FOR BIG SIX TITLE

NORMAN, Ok., Feb. 23.—The University of Oklahoma clinched at least a tie hold on the first Big Six basketball championship by defeating the Kansas Aggies, 41 to 28, here tonight.

DISTRICT NET BODY TO REVISE RULES MARCH 7

By Davison Obear.

Dr. Frank E. Dieckneite, president of the St. Louis District Tennis Association, has appointed 12 standing committees to serve during 1929 season. With several exceptions new chairmen have been appointed and the personnel of the committees includes a number who have heretofore not held membership on district committees.

During the coming season a number of local events will be added to the district schedule, and for this reason the Tournament Committee will have a busy time. William B Dalrymple, vice president of the Triple A Club, has been named chairman of this most important committee.

The Women's Committee will be headed by Miss Virginia Gordon, with Miss Melicent Endicott as vice chairman. Miss Gordon has been active in athletic organization work among women and girls in the St. Louis district. She is a sister of Jack and Sam Gordon, prominent tennis and squash players. The new Women's Committee held a meeting on Feb. 21, at which plans for the coming season were discussed. It is likely that a district girls' event and women's interclub matches will be added to the tournament program this year.

The St. Louis District Tennis Association will hold a special meeting on Thursday, March 7, at which the constitution and bylaws of the association will be revised. A committee is now at work preparing revisions to the constitution and bylaws, and recommendations will be sent out with a notice of the special meeting.

The committees appointed by President Dieckneite are as follows:

Finance Committee: Wray Brown, chairman; Davison Obear, W. D. Dalrymple, F. E. Dieckneite.

Membership Committee: C. W. Barnes, chairman; E. H. Serrano, Walter Pfeffer, C. A. Neavles, C. F. Stevens.

Tournament Committee: W. D. Dalrymple, chairman; E. H. Serrano, George Broeker, A. C. Frank.

Umpires' Committee: F. C. Stuckman, chairman; Fred Baehr, Harvey Frohlichstein.

Junior Development: M. J. Telle, chairman; Fred Clausen, Otto Thiele, Joseph Kelly, A. C. Frank.

Public Parks: Otto Thiele, chairman; A. C. Frank, Joseph Kelly.

Constitution and By-Laws: Davison Obear, chairman; W. D. Dalrymple, Otto Thiele, Dr. G. H. Rice.

Women's Committee: Virginia Gordon, chairman; Melicent Endicott, Lottie Hagemeyer, Delphine Rauch, Mrs. Charles Mullikin.

Interclub Committee: Fred Jossties, chairman; Elmer Koster, R. N. Skrainka.

Ranking Committee: Karl H. Hodge, chairman.

Publicity Committee: Karl Kammann, chairman.

Entertainment Committee: Dempster Godlove, chairman.

C. C. PELL TO MEET PHENOM IN FINAL OF RACQUETS EVENT

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—Clarence C. Pell, the defending titleholder and H. D. Sheldon, of New York, advanced to the final round of the National Amateur Racquets championship at the Racquet and Tennis Club today. They will meet for the title tomorrow.

Pell eliminated Hewitt C. Morgan, of New York, in decisive fashion 18-15, 15-10, 15-10 in one semifinal today, while Charles J. Coulter of Tuxedo, N. Y., was giving Sheldon a terrific struggle before going down, 15-10, 15-11, 11-15, 4-15, 15-1.

Sheldon has been the giant killer in the present tournament. His victory over Coulter today followed his unexpected triumph over Stanley G. Mortimer, in one of the quarter final matches yesterday.

PRINCIPIA SWIMMERS DEFEAT WESTERN M. A.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

ALTON, Ill., Feb. 23.—The Principia Academy swimming team defeated the Western Military Academy tank squad 39 to 21 in a dual meet in the Western pool here this afternoon. Principia captured six out of the seven events on the program. Blumenthal of Western swam a good race to win the 100-yard breast stroke event for his team.

The summary:

40-YARD FREE STYLE—Braun, Principia, first; Gannon, Principia, second; Roehle, Western, third. Time—20.4 seconds.

100-YARD BREAST STROKE—Blumentham, Western, first; Howell, Principia, second; Fernald, Western, third. Time—1 minute, 19.8 seconds.

100-YARD FREE STYLE—Braun, Principia, first; Boggess, Western, second; Morcon, Western, third. Time—1 minute, 3.3 seconds.

100-YARD BACKSTROKE—Holmes, Principia, first; Gannon, Principia, second; Darner, Western, third. Time—1 minute, 28.8 seconds.

FANCY DIVING—Martin, Principia, first; Bailey, Western, second; Hirshfield, Western, third.

220-YARD DASH—Hirsch, Principia, first; Boggess, Western, second; Child, Principia, third. Time—2 minutes, 58 seconds.

160-YARD RELAY—Won by Principia, (Braun, Howell, Hammell, Hamblin, Gannon.) Time—1 minute, 26.2 seconds.

Final score: Principia 39, Western 21.

Bayne Signs Contract.

BOSTON, Feb. 23.—The signed contract of Bill Bayne, left-handed pitcher, was received today at the Boston Red Sox headquarters. Bayne, whose home is in St. Louis, came to the Red Sox two months ago on waivers from Cleveland.

"Moose" Meyer Has Tallied 219 Of 507 Points Scored by Bears In 17 Basket Games This Year

By Jerry Bernoudy

In defeating Oklahoma for the second time at Norman recently, the Washington University basketball team brought to a close its campaign against Missouri Valley and Big Six rivals, and at the same time clearly established claim to recognition as one of the outstanding quintets in the Middle West.

To begin with, the Bears swept through the Missouri Valley schedule in a decisive fashion, winning seven straight games. In these contests, the Bruins displayed a powerful offense. In the two games against the Oklahoma Aggies, the Bears scored 43 and 52 points respectively; against Drake, 36 and 29 points were counted, and against Grinnell the locals scored 34 and 31 points. Creighton held White's tossers to the lowest score, but the Bears won a handy victory, 22-16. In these seven battles, Washington scored an average slightly over 25 points to 22 points for the opposition.

Against Big Six teams the Hilltoppers' performances was outstanding. Oklahoma, present leader and 1928 champion, fell twice before the onslaught of the Bears. In two very close games with their ancient Missouri rivals, the Bears split even, losing 30-28 at St. Louis in a thrilling battle only to turn the tables at Columbia a short time later, 29-24.

Strange to say, the Kansas Aggies, present occupants of last place, were the only other Big Six quintet to defeat the Bruins. The Aggies beat the locals 30-29 early in the season.

Meyer Scores 219 Points.

Three of Washington's setbacks came at the hands of Big Ten teams early in the season. After defeating Indiana, 31-30, in the season's opener the Bears succumbed in order to Purdue, Iowa and Illinois.

The only other defeat suffered came at the hands of the Billikens, 29—18, last month in the first game of the series to determine the city championship. Don White's tossers hope to make amends next Tuesday night when the two fives meet at the Field House. In the event Washington wins, it will be necessary for the two quintets to play a third and "rubber" game a week later.

Hardly less commendatory than the performance of the team as a whole, has been the achievement of Ed "Moose" Meyer, pivot man, who has scored a total of 219 points in the 17 games, an average of 13 points a game. Meyer's attainment is even more singular when it is considered that he is not unusually large, like such stars as "Stretch" Murphy of Purdue and Holt of Oklahoma.

Meyer's complete scoring record follows:

Opp. Pts.	Opponents	Wash. Total	Meyer
30	Indiana	31	14
38	Purdue	21	7
22	Iowa	18	5
38	Illinois	29	10

54—SNEAK PLAY.

THIS is a very effective play if opponents are bunched around the center. No. 1 tips to No. 2. No. 2 tips the ball to No. 4, who is breaking down the sideline. No. 2 may also use a shoulder or hook pass. No. 3 fakes. In tipping the ball from No. 2 to No. 4 the arch on the ball should be considerable.

Next—Scissors Play.

Mondt Is After Another Match With Jim Londos

Joe "Toots" Mondt, the Colorado heavyweight, who was defeated at the new Coliseum mat last Thursday night by Jimmy Londos, Greek wrestling champion, has requested a return match with Londos according to Promoter Tom Packs.

The New Coliseum matchmaker stated last night that he will not consider Mondt's request at this time and that he has advised the Colorado grappler he will have to take on either John Pecek, Dick Shikat or Nick Lutze and prove his right to meet Londos again by beating one of the trio mentioned.

Packs intends to depart today for New York and Philadelphia to confer with several grapplers he has under consideration for bouts, March 5.

BEAVIS DEFEATS WEST IN GOLF TOURNEY FINAL

HAMILTON, Bermuda, Feb. 23.—J. H. Beavis, veteran English golfer, defeated G. W. West, young Bermuda star, 3 and 2, in the final of the annual Spey Royal Trophy Tournament at the Belmont Manor Club here today.

Beavis reached the last round with an easy semi-final triumph over S. A. Scott of MacDonald, W. Va., this morning. The margin was 7 and 5. West won his semi-final match from W. J. Sweeney of New Britain, Conn., 4 and 3.

WISCONSIN WINS AND HOLDS LEAD IN THE BIG TEN

By the Associated Press.

EVANSTON, Ill., Feb. 23.—Wisconsin continued its leadership in the Big Ten basketball championship race by defeating Northwestern, 31 to 25, in a close, rough battle before a record-smashing throng of 6400 spectators tonight.

The victory gave the Badgers a season's record of eight won and one lost, whereas their rivals, Michigan and Purdue, are deadlocked for second place with seven victories and two defeats each.

Tonight's battle, the second in a week between the powerful teams, was anybody's game until the last few minutes, when Wisconsin pulled away. The Badgers came from behind to lead, 12 to 8, at the halfway mark.

A. B. C. Champion Will Compete in Elks' Tourney

Preparing for the Elks' twelfth national bowling tourney, to be rolled on the Schaefer-Delmar alleys, March 23 to April 21, the entire local Elks League has entered as a unit. However, the personnel of the nine teams has been re-aligned to muster the highest average pin topplers into two star teams, with the other teams graduated according to the averages.

The local bowlers never have succeeded in winning any of the championships in Elks' events. The local league has decided, according to an announcement by Dr. W. A. Le Gear, general chairman, that any money won in the five-man event will go to the league.

Hank Summers, who joined the Elks two weeks ago so he would be eligible to roll in the tourney, is a member of one of the two star teams, and his average eclipses all others. It is 205. The two star teams and the members' respective averages are: Schaefer, 193; Hermann, 193; White, 193; Fothergill, 185 and Summer, 205. Burle, 187; Le Gear, 179; Rottmann, 180; Sunkel, 183, and Schmelig, 188. Schaefer and Burle are respective captains of the two star teams and Borgmann, with an average of 190, will be an emergency roller for either outfit.

OHIO STATE TRACK TEAM DEFEATS W. VIRGINIA

By the Associated Press.

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Feb. 23.—Ohio State defeated West Virginia University, 70½ to 25½ in an indoor track and field meet here today. Ohio State scored 10 firsts and tied for first place in the pole vault. West Virginia took one first position, in the 35-pound weight throw.

CHICAGO U. WINS MAT MEET FROM SYRACUSE

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Feb. 23.—Chicago University's wrestling team defeated Syracuse here yesterday, 24 to 15, in the first of three intersectional meets the Maroons have carded. Chicago won four bouts by falls. The Orange took two on falls and one on a time decision.

FINANS MEET SOUTH SIDES IN MUNICIPAL SOCCER FEATURE, TODAY

ANGELICA TEAM FAVORED OVER TRUMBULLS IN OPENING GAME

By Dent McSkimming

Soccer fans who follow the fortunes of the public parks teams are anticipating an exciting and well played game when the South Side club opposes the Finans in the second game of a double-header at Fairground Park this afternoon. It is quite possible that this match, one of the semifinals of the Municipal Soccer League elimination series, will produce better football than the final.

The survivor of the South Side-Finan game will meet the winner of the Angelica-Trumbull match, which is the first game on the program. Starting time for the opening game is 1:15 p. m. The second game will start at 3:30 o'clock. An admission charge of 25 cents will be made to defray expenses of intercity matches. The four contending teams represent Sherman Park in the West End, Fairground Park on the North Side and Carondelet Park on the South Side.

Angelica Eleven Favored.

The Angelicas should not have a great deal of trouble winning over the Trumbulls, although the latter club is capable of springing a surprise. Last Sunday they upset the form by trouncing the Palermos.

Manager Pat DeMaggio and two players of the Trumbull team will not be able to compete today. All are suspended by the Executive Committee because of irregularities in signing contracts. The players are William Ortmann, center forward, and Ed Steufle, outside right, both drafted from the Benton Park team. Ortman scored two goals last Sunday and was indirectly responsible for two others. The two players in question starred against the Palermos but the latter club did not protest against them within the time limit specified in the rules.

In the second game, two of the strongest clubs ever assembled in the history of the Municipal League will meet and neither can be regarded a favorite. Both the Finans and the South Side club are stabilized teams in which there are a sufficient number of veterans to insure steadiness and just enough young players to put snap and dash into the attack.

In order to win their group championship, the South Side team, managed by Tom McHugh, had to come from far back of the leading St. Thomas team. After a slow start, due in part to experiments in the lineup and largely to the absence of Joe Hennessy, the South Sides finally took the upper hand by beating the St. Thomas club on Dec. 16, coming from behind to score four goals in the last 20 minutes of play. Bern Hennessy, the giant center forward, scored three goals that day and his brother Joe one.

Team Owns Scoring Punch.

For the league season, Bern Hennessy led in goal scoring with nine tallies; Joe and Luckett were next with four each, and L. Sullivan, who played only three games, scored three times. Twenty-three goals were scored by the South Sides and only 13 against. In addition to the players who showed to fine advantage during the season, Manager McHugh will use in today's game, as he did last Sunday, Jose Rodriguez and Henry Diaz, drafted from the Sociedad Espanola team.

Rodriguez probably will be used at center halfback in place of Tom Heidenry who has been suspended. In last Sunday's match with the Kock team, Heidenry was ejected from the game by Referee Harry Donovan for rough play. Manager McHugh yesterday protested vigorously against Heidenry's suspension by the Executive Committee but without avail. Long Tom is one of the outstanding stars of the South Side team. The Finans, having drawn a bye in the first round, appear to be getting another good break in playing against a weakened team in their second round.

In the Finan lineup are several players who have had professional league experience. Mike Delaney, the goal tender, is one of the outstanding players at his position in the city. Ed Delaney, center halfback, starred on the Olympic squad; Jerry Shea, Ollie Branconnier and Frankie Pastor, forwards, all played good football with professional teams in the past three or four years.

A full set of officials, including referee, goal linesmen, side linesmen and official timer will be in charge today and in the final. Forty-five minute halves will prevail and, in the event of a tie, extra periods will be ordered.

PRINCIPIA COLLEGE FIVE BEATS WESTERN

ALTON, Ill., Feb. 23.—Coming from behind in the second half, Principia Junior College basketball five tonight defeated Western Military Academy, 24 to 17. Western led at half-time, 12 to 8. Towle, the Principia right guard, was high scorer with 10 points. In A. B. C. contests, Principia Class A five defeated Western Class A, 38-19. The Western Class team defeated Principia B's, 28-10, and the Illinoisans also were successful in the Class C game, the score being, Western, 21; Principia, 9. The proposed handball team match was postponed.

DEPREMA RIDES THREE WINNERS AT NEW ORLEANS

By the Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 23.—In one of the prettiest finishes seen here this spring, A. B. Letellier's Smoldering scored in the Elm Hall Purse, fourth race on this afternoon's card at Jefferson Park. F. P. Kriss' Marshal Ney was second and F. W. Callaghan's Mineralogist third and T. J. Watts' Hot Time fourth.

Jockey R. Deprema rode three winners on the eight-race program, riding Maxie in the second, Shasta Orange in the third and Counsellor Connelly in the eighth.

It was a real race from the drop of the flag. The field broke well in motion. Hot Time, Marshal Ney and Smoldering were the quickest to get into their stride and they drew away from the rest of the field. Smoldering took the lead and Hot Time held on while Marshal Ney dropped back. This was the order in which they turned into the stretech. When the field straightened out for the run to the wire, Smoldering held his lead, but Marshal Ney was coming fast. It was a hard drive to the wire, Smoldering winning by half a length. Marshal Ney was second by a head.

L. McDermott rode the winner, which paid $20.70 in the mutuels.

94 Nominations For Preakness

BALTIMORE, Feb. 23.—The stables of W. R. Coe, lead the list of 51 owners who have nominated 94 of the past season's 2-year-olds for the Preakness of 1929, to be run at Pimlico on May 11, announced today by the Maryland Jockey Club. The event is worth $50,000 added to the winner and last year paid over $60,000.

But few of the season's leading 2-year-olds are not in the entries. Among those who made good records in their 2-year-old season are Gerry's High Strung, E. R. Bradley's Blue Larkspur, Loma Stable's Twink, Walter J. Salmon's Dr. Freeland, Edward B. McLean's Neddie, and several others.

W. R. Coe's list of nominations include Begorra, Dail, Cheers, Irish, Igloo, Progeny and Vanity. The Rancocas Stable is represented by Mei Foo, Expedite, Simba, Donnay and Leucite, while in addition to Neddie, who made an enviable record during the 1928 season, E. B. McLean has nominated Nymph King, The Okah and Mayor W er.

Harry Payne Whitney's named for the event is com of Bargello, Beacon Hill, and The Nut. Two other entered four horses with Walter Salmon being represented by Diamond, Windswept, Annapolis addition to Dr. Freeland, and the gram Stable by Beniah Way, rill, Lommern and The Sagamore Stable's is also listed as a starter. Sure Way to Get Rid of Dandruff

There is one sure way that never fails to remove dandruff completely and that is to dissolve it. Then you destroy it entirely.

To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and two or three more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store and four ounces is all you will need. This simple remedy has never been known to fail.

Team-Work: How Signals Are Used and Importance of Coach Outlined by Babe Ruth

By Babe Ruth

(Copyright, 1929.)

CHAPTER X.

BASEBALL always has been and always will be a game demanding team play. You can have the nine greatest individual ball players in the world, but if they don't play together the club won't be worth a dime.

Two things make for real team play. The first is players' knowledge of each other that comes from constant playing together. The second means of whipping play into teamwork is by means of signals or "signs."

BABE RUTH.

Everyone who ever played baseball knows about signs—but there are mighty few amateur clubs that know how to use them. Either they go along, hit-or-miss with no signs at all, or else they swing to the other extreme and get so many signs that no one can remember them all. Lots of folks think that big league ball players have signals for everything they do. That's bunk. As a matter of fact, a big league ball club has very few signs—but the ones they have they use.

In big league baseball the catcher and pitcher usually have three signs. One for a fast ball, one for a curve, and one for a pitch-out. On a curve ball sign the pitcher may throw a "hook" or he may throw a slow one or screw ball.

The Pitchout

THE pitch-out sign is an important one. The catcher who is on his toes is always watching the opponent's bench and the coaches for possible signs. If he thinks the opponents are putting on a hit and run or a steal, he calls for a pitch-out, which simply means that the pitcher tosses a ball wide of the plate, where it is impossible to hit. If he has caught the signal right and the play actually is on, the base runner is caught flat-footed and thrown out.

The pitcher and first baseman have a set of "signs" for throws to first base in an effort to catch a runner. The importance of such a sign is two-fold. In the first place the first basemen is in a better position to judge the lead a runner takes. And in the second place each knows what the other is doing and has his head up all the time. There's less chance for throws getting away or going wild and letting the runner advance.

Backing Up Throws

A THING that can make a team look either great or rotten, is the way they back up plays on balls hit to the outfield. The idea is to get as many men into each play as possible, in order to prevent a throw from getting away, and if a club is properly coached there will be four men lined up to protect the throw-in on every hit to the outfield.

The shift of the various players, of course, depends on where the ball is hit and where baserunners may be at the time. With a single to right for instance, with nobody on, you will note that the second baseman moves over and out toward the ball, the shortstop moves in to cover second, the third baseman shifts a little to the right of the bag and the pitcher goes over back of third base. On a ball hit to left field where the play is at second the shortstop goes out toward left for a possible relay, the second baseman covers the bag, the first baseman moves over toward second and the catcher moves down the first base line.

The "Cut-Off"

FOR instance there's a man on second and a man on first and the hitter singles to right. Naturally the runner on second will try to score on the play, and the right fielder's first thought when he gets the ball, will be to throw to the plate and try and cut off the run. The minute the ball is hit the second baseman cuts out to short right, the first baseman digs in to a spot about 10 feet in front of the catcher on a line with the throw-in, and the pitcher goes around behind the plate to back up the catcher in case the ball goes through.

In that case the first baseman is the "cut-off" man. He watches the speeding runners, and he watches the ball. As the throw comes in he senses that it's just a split-second late to nail the man at the plate but he sees that there is a chance to get the runner going to third base if he makes the play properly. So, instead of permitting the throw to go on to the catcher he takes it or "cuts it off" and whirls to throw to the third baseman and nail the other runner going to third.

IN the development of team play the most important man in the business is the coach who watches the scrap from the bench on defense, and occupies the base line coaching boxes when the team is at bat.

The coaches, out there on the lines, are the fellows who are in best position to grab an opposing team's signals and tip them off. Then they can see the flight of a ball, and are in a position to guide and direct the base runner.

In the present age the chief signal-stealing that is tried, is the effort to discover the batting team's hit and run, and sacrifice and base stealing signals. Those, of course, are valuable things to know, and if you can grab them successfully you've got two strikes on the other fellow before he ever steps up there to the plate.

One-Eye Connolly Tears Up Ticket Will Crash Gate

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 23.

"ONE EYE" CONNOLLY, the greatest gate crasher in the history of sport, will crash the gate at the Jack Sharkey and Young Stribling heavyweight bout here next Wednesday night. This was made certain today when Connolly tore up a ticket presented him by Jack Dempsey, saying:

"What do you want to do—insult me? I'm going to crash this show."

BEARS DEFEAT CINCINNATI U. IN TANK MEET

CINCINNATI, O., Feb. 23.—The Washington University Bears battled their way to a 35-31 victory over the University of Cincinnati Bearcats, although handicapped by the loss of Paul Kunkel, in a dual swimming meet at the University of Cincinnati tank this afternoon.

In the very first event Kunkel, lead-off man of the Bear's 160-yard relay team, took off and was battling for the lead when his arm suddenly slipped out of place, incapacitating him for the rest of the meet. Cincy took the event by default. Heideman, crack Mound City backstroke man, set a new pool record for 150-yard backstroke of one minute, 50 seconds. He was pushed by Byron Ahlburn, Cincinnati, to set the mark. Ahlburn swam one of the best races of his career.

Up until the final event, the medley relay, each team was tied with 29 points. Cincinnati had pulled from behind by pulling down a first and third in the diving to overtake Washington which had been leading since the completion of the second event.

Heideman started off in the medley by giving the next Bear man, Brenner, a 8-foot lead which the latter lengthened to 15 feet. Castle of Cincinnati then cut down the lead to eight feet but that was the best he could do with Moore striking a steady pace.

Doc Castle, Cincy dash man, was the high point-winner of the meet with 11 markers, but Washington's fish split up their 35 points evenly.

The summary:

160-YARD RELAY—Cincinnati won by default.

200-YARD BREAST STROKE—Brenner, Washington, first; Curtis, Washington, second; Parker, Cincinnati, third. Time, 2m. 45s.

40-YARD DASH—Castle, U. C. first; Sample, Washington, second; Bricks, Cincinnati, third. Time, 20 2-5s.

440-YARD SWIM—Skinner, Washington, first; Baxter, U. C., second; Brown, U. C., third. Time, 6m. 1 3-5s.

150-YARD BACKSTROKE — Heideman, Washington, first; Ahlburn, U. C., second; Barngrove, Washington, third. Time, 1m. 50s.

100-YARD DASH—Castle, U. C., first; Moore, Washington, second; Bricks, U. C., third. Time, 1m. 4-5s.

FANCY DIVING—Welsh, U. C., first; Nauert, Washington, second; Adams, U. C., third.

MEDLEY RELAY—Washington University, first; Cincinnati University, second.

Final score: Washington 35, Cincinnati 31.

GRADE CROSSING INVESTIGATION BY GRAND JURY

Recommendation Follows Open Verdict in Deaths of Father and Daughter at Eiler Street.

The grand jury will investigate railroad grade crossings in St. Louis with a view to reducing dangerous conditions as a result of seven persons being killed by Missouri Pacific trains at three South St. Louis crossings in the last three years.

Recommendation for the grand jury inquiry was made yesterday by Coroner Dever and Assistant Circuit Attorney Lennon after a Coroner's jury had returned an open verdict as to the latest victims—Servin Schwent, 53 years old, and his daughter, Mrs. Hilda Brecht, who were killed Friday morning when an automobile in which they were riding to work was struck and demolished by "The Tennessean," passenger train of the Missouri Pacific. The jury stated it could not ascertain whether the collision was "criminal or accidental."

On advice of counsel for the railroad, the locomotive engineer, Edward B. Williams, refused to testify. The fireman, D. C. Hart, testified the train was traveling between 30 and 35 miles an hour; that he saw the automobile when it was six or eight feet from the tracks and called to the engineer, who applied brakes and stopped the train within 14 car lengths.

Conductor W. D. Hammonds testified the train was about five minutes late. He said he heard the train whistle for the Bates street crossing, the one just before Eiler street, and then he heard the impact.

Coroner Dever said to a Post-Dispatch reporter after the inquest: "There is no doubt that there are improper conditions at various railroad crossings throughout the city, and the crossings are not safe.

"I visited the Eiler street scene. The automatic bell does not ring loud and might not be heard by a driver in a closed car. However, a driver should see the 'Railroad Crossing' sign and the 'wig-wag' signal.

"Separation of the grades rather than safety gates appears to be the solution. I am informed that Missouri Pacific records show many of their gates at other crossings have been knocked down by autos in the past 30 days, three of them in the last couple of days."

The Missouri Pacific has now pending before the State Public Service Commission an application to remove watchmen and safety gates at 13 additional crossings here and substitute automatic warning lights. Director of Streets Brooks and City Counselor Muench declared the city has protested against similar removals in the past and would oppose the present application.

"However, the Public Service Commission has the last word," Brooks said. "The commission allowed the railroad to remove watchmen at Minnesota avenue and a number of other crossings and replace them with flashing beacon lights.

"There have been accidents at crossings even when equipped with gates. The Eiler street crossing never had a gate, as there was little traffic there until the street was made recently."

"The trouble with flashing signals," remarked City Traffic Engineer Hoffman, "is that motorists know the lights begin operating a considerable time before the train gets to the crossing and even if they see the train coming they take a chance on getting by. They cannot do this so well with gates, as gates are an actual bar."

The grade crossings from which the Missouri Pacific now seeks to remove watchmen and gates are as fololws: Kingshighway, Macklind, Sulphur, Knox, Ecoff, Southwest, Taylor, Koeln, Chippewa and Meramec, Krauss, Steins, Courtois and Reilly, Courtois and Vulcan.

MILL OWNER DISINHERITED HIS SONS AND DAUGHTERS

Will of Late C. J. Twiellenmeier Says They and Divorced Wife Humiliated Him.

Casper J. Twiellenmeier, founder of the Western Planing Mill Co. and its principal owner, who died Feb. 18, disinherited his five daughters and three sons, his will filed in the Probate Court yesterday, disclosed. He also provided that his former wife, Mrs. Rose Twiellenmeier, who divorced him several years ago, shall not have any more from his estate than the amount to which she is legally entitled under her dower rights. This consists of the income from realty. The estate, with an estimated value of $25,000, is left in trust of Louis Bader, 4423 Clarence avenue.

In his will Twiellenmeier said his children had been disrespectful and not obedient and that they ridiculed and humiliated him in many ways.

In regard to Mrs. Twiellenmeier, the will asserts she caused Twiellenmeier humiliation by filing an information against him in the Probate Court eight years ago in which she asked that a guardian be appointed to handle his property. Later she sued him for divorce. According to Bader the guardianship case was won by Twiellenmeier, who proved he was capable of managing his own affairs.

The will leaves a total of $1100 to Catholic charities in addition to $1000 to St. Engelbert's Church to pay for masses. The residue, after taking care of Mrs. Twiellenmeier's dower, goes to Mrs. Frances Grote, a sister of Twiellenmeier. Twiellenmeier, who was 66 years old, lived at 4540 Pope avenue. His will was made March 30, 1927.

JUDGES DISCUSS SPEEDING UP CONDEMNATION SUITS

Test Suggested of Legality of Transferring Cases to Other Dockets.

A proposal to speed up condemnation suits now pending in Circuit Court No. 1, the assignment division, was discussed by the Circuit Judges in general term yesterday, and may be adopted if the Supreme Court holds it is legal.

James B. Steiner, Associate City Counselor in the condemnation department, pointed out that the work of assigning cases took up all of the time of Judge in No. 1, and suggested that the condemnation suits in that court should be tried before Judges whose dockets are less crowded.

Some of the Judges questioned the legality of such a move and recommended that Judge Pearcy, who now is sitting in No. 1, order a transfer and that the Judge to whose court it was transferred, refuse to hear the case. The city should then bring a mandamus action in the Supreme Court, and establish the legality of the plan. Steiner and the Judges did not indicate whether they would make a test case.

GOVERNOR FOR RIGID ENFORCEMENT OF LAW

Caulfield at Washington U. Alumni Dinner Discusses State's Problems.

A plea for co-operation in the administration's program for more rigid law enforcement and for governmental economy through consolidation of State bureaus and departments was made by Gov. Caulfield last night at the annual dinner of the Washington University Alumni Association at Hotel Statler. The meeting celebrated the seventy-sixth anniversary of the founding of the university on Washington's birthday

"Law enforcement is one of the greatest problems confronting the administration," said Gov. Caulfield. "Abnormal activity of the criminal element and its defiance of authority has reached a stage where it must be banished from the State before it banishes the law-abiding element."

Gov. Caulfield called attention to the fact that simplification of the State Government, by reason of the difficulty of eliminating individual departments as such, was a problem that called for aroused public opinion for its solution.

Chancellor Throop, in reviewing the past work of the university and its future plans, said that, although prevailing opinion held it to be an institution of enormous wealth, it faces a continuous need for funds to maintain its present high standing among the nation's universities. "Estimates placing the wealth of Washington University at $30,000,000, including an endowment of $20,000,000 and properties of $10,000,000, are fallacious," he said, "for any school is rich only to the extent that its income is sufficient for its needs. We need new buildings for the schools of architecture and engineering, a new library, a museum, a new union building."

Enrollment at the university is rapidly approaching a point beyond which the individual student would not receive the greatest benefit from a college education, Dr. Throop pointed out. "Only by practicing rigid economy and keeping enrollment within this point can we hope to maintain our high standing as an educational institution. We must rely on the generosity of individual St. Louisans interested in education to provide for the continuance of our place in the cultural world."

About 150 persons attended the dinner. Fannie Hurst, of the class of 1914, was among the alumnae present. Gov. Caulfield was graduated from the university in 1895.

Following the addresses, a play, "Great Moments," was presented by members of the Alumni Association.

CIRCUIT JUDGES WILLING TO HOLD COURT IN SUMMER

Express Selves at Meeting at Which Legislature's Unwillingness to Enlarge Bench Is Reported.

St. Louis Circuit Judges expressed their willingness to hold court during the summer at a special meeting yesterday following a report by Jacob M. Lashrly, president of the St. Louis Bar Association, that legislators have opposed two pending bills providing for additional Judges on the ground that their passage would prove an unnecessary burden to taxpayers. Each of the 16 Circuit Judges receives $8000 a year.

The Bar Association is sponsoring both bills, one of which, pending in the Senate, provides for two additional Judges, and the other, in the House, for four additional Judges. Objectors suggested that clearing of dockets be expedited by summer sessions, Lashly said, but were answered that it would be difficult to obtain juries during the vacation months. He expressed doubt that the Legislature would grant more than two additional Judges, if any at all.

It was also suggested at yesterday's meeting that after the new Courthouse is occupied, Sept. 1 instead of Oct. 1 should be set as the time for resuming court after vacation.

ST. LOUIS POLICE PENSION BILL ENGROSSED IN HOUSE

Measure Approved by Board of Estimate Is Advanced Without Opposition.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 23.—The St. Louis police pension bill, offered by the St. Louis Board of Estimate and Apportionment after an actuarial investigation to determine a sound method of financing police pensions in St. Louis, was engrossed today by the House, with no opposition. The bill was introduced by Speaker Parker at the request of city officials who previously had opposed other pension bills on the ground they did not make proper provision for financing.

A police pension bill introduced in the 1927 Legislature passed the House, but died on the calendar of the Senate at adjournment.

BOYS CONFESS FALSE ALARMS

Police, Tipped Off by Another Youth, Arrest Three.

A boy friend of Patrolman William Niggemann informed the officer yesterday afternoon that four boys were planning to turn in a false fire alarm at 8:30 o'clock last night from the signal at Frey avenue and Hickory street.

The officer and two others were waiting when three of the boys approached the signal. The trio were arrested and confessed turning in 18 false alarms in the last three weeks, police say. They implicated another youth, whom police are seeking.

ADMITS SHE KIDNAPED CHILD, CLEARS THREE OTHERS HELD

San Francisco Woman's Confession Results in Release of Suspects; Hearing to be Wednesday.

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 23.—Mrs. Edna Sharp, confessed kidnaper of 4-year-old Doris Smith-Murphy, today absolved three other persons arrested in connection with the disappearance of the child from a playground a week ago. In her confession to police, Mrs. Sharp took the entire blame. She exonerated her husband, Charles Sharp; C. C. Bidwell, a radio salesman who first suspected Doris' identity; and John A. Williams, 63-year-old employe of the United States mint here.

Williams was arrested early in the investigation when it was disclosed he had made a practice of purchasing candy for children at the playground where little Doris was kidnaped.

The child was returned to her parents yesterday by Mrs. Sharp, who told police she took Doris from the playground on an impulse because she reminded her of her own child, who is being cared for by relatives.

Police Judge Sylvain Lazarus set Mrs. Sharp's case for hearing Wednesday. She was taken to the city jail in lieu of $20,000 bail. Williams was freed by the Court, Sharp released on his own recognizance and Bidwell was designated a material witness in the case.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Murphy, parents of the child, have demanded that Mrs. Sharp be placed in the State prison or an insane asylum.

Many Farewell Fetes In Washington Society

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.

By the Associated Press.

RINGING down the curtain on the social life of this administration is proving a much larger affair than in former years, when there was just a gentle oozing out of society with everyone saving as much money as possible. Dinner parties are large, important and frequent, and luncheon parties scarcely ever number less than a hundred guests. Yet there is nothing at all pretentious about the social goings on, just rampant hospitality, and a joyous informality.

When the Secretary of Labor and Mrs. Davis gave their annual—and last—dinner for the President and Mrs. Coolidge early in the week, there was the same air of informal hospitality. It was the first Cabinet dinner to which diplomats were invited, the Secretary and Mrs. Davis asking their neighbors, the Minister of Hungary, Count Laszlo

First Member Enrolls In Theater Society

MRS. JOHN T. DAVIS JR., is the first person to enroll as a member in the Theater Society of St. Louis, a newly formed organization, sponsored by leading men and women of St. Louis, which will attempt to do for St. Louis what the Theater Guild has done for New York, by providing a winter season of stage productions. Dr. and Mrs. Walter Fischel of 14 Lenox place are No. 2, and Mrs. George L. Allen of 26 Westmoreland place, No. 3.

It is felt that with the development of plans and active work that a substantial membership will be enrolled.

Mrs. Arthur B. Shepley, 50 Westmoreland place, and her debutante daughter, Miss Mary Merwin Shepley, will depart Tuesday for Hollywood, Fla., to remain a fortnight.

Season at Peak At Palm Beach

By the Associated Press.

PALM BEACH, Fla., Feb. 23.

THe elaborate Washington's birthday costume ball at the Bath and Tennis Club last night and the Yacht Club Regatta closing yesterday marked the high peak of the social season at this resort by the deep blue gulf stream. Airplanes whirring through the clouds, speedboats churning through the lake and huge motors purring along palm shaded drives.

Numerous affairs have been given in honor of Aspasia of Greece who with Viscountess Fielding and Mrs. M. P. Horlick, of London, are among the most distinguished sojourners in Palm Beach. The Princess, Lady Fielding and Mrs. Horlick are guests of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas L. Chadbourne of New York, who have a villa on the ocean boulevard but are entertaining their guests at White Hall. The Princess and her party arrived on Friday of last week and on Saturday night were introduced to society by Mr. and Mrs. Chadbourne at a dinner dance at the Bath and Tennis Club which was attended by 200 guests.

Earlier in the day the Princess and her party had attended the luncheon at the Bath and Tennis Club which the honorable and Mrs. James Francis Burke of Pittsburg had given in honor of President-Elect and Mrs. Herbert Hoover.

A notable event of Monday evening was the dinner at which Mr. and Mrs. Edward F. Hutton of New York entertained at their oceanfront home, Mar-a-Lago. Dinner tables were placed in the loggia surrounding the patio and during the dinner a Hawaiian quartet entertained. A program of entertainment followed which included exhibition dancing by a famous broadway team. Princess Aspasia of Greece, Viscountess Fielding, Prince Cyril of Bulgaria, Baron and Baroness von Einem of Vienna, Baron and Baroness J. J. de Bondstetten of Berne, Switzerland, were among the 100 guests in attendance.

Rafaelo Diaz, Metropolitan tenor, sang at the dinner given on Tuesday night by Mr. and Mrs. Franklyn Hutton of New York at the Bath and Tennis Club in honor of Col. and Mrs. O'Malley Keyes of London. There were about 30 guests, among them Commissioner Grever Whalen, Judge William Walsh, Mrs. William Randolph Hearst, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Brokaw, Mr. and Mrs. Florenz Zeigfeld and Mr. and Mrs. James P. Donahue, all of New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Small Moore, Roslyn, L. I., entertained with a small dinner party on Tuesday evening at their Ocean boulevard home, Sinquidado, in honor of their guest, Hon. Oliver Malcolm Wallop, son of Earl and Countess of Portsmouth, who is their guest. Wallop, betrothed to Miss Jean Moore, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Moore, has spent a great part of his life in Wyoming, where his father lived many years before coming into his ttile.

The fourth concert of the Society of Arts was held Monday evening at the Everglades Club. Mischa Elman, violinist, was the artist. He was accompanied by Josef Lhevinne. Rafaelo Diaz and Madame Frances Alda, of the Metropolitan Opera were in the audience, which numbered about 200 members of the society and their guests. After the program, Edward T. Stotesbury, Philadelphia, president of the Society of Arts, together with John L. Pillsbury, Minneapolis, and Henry Seligman New York, held an informal reception for the artists in the great hall of the Everglades Club.

A large and distinguished gathering greeted Richard Washburn Child, former Ambassador to Italy, who lectured on Tuesday night under the auspices of the Current Events Class. The lecture was held at Qui Si Sana, Palm Beach home of Mr. and Mrs. Earle Perry Charlton, Fall River, Mass. Preceding the lecture, Mr. and Mrs. Child, who are spending a fortnight at Whitehall, were entertained at a dinner by Mr. and Mrs. Henry Seligman, New York. Meeting to Discuss Kellogg Peace Pact

THE characters of the leading nations of the world will be assumed by members of the League of Women Voters in a round-table discussion of international affairs in the Crystal Ballroom of the Chase Hotel tomorrow afternoon at 3 p. m. The question proposed for discussion is: "Now That the Kellogg Pact Has Been Ratified, Why Do Nations of the World Still Arm to the Teeth?"

The cast of characters is as follows:

Mr. International Public Opinion—Mrs. E. T. Senseney
Mrs. International Public Opinion—Mrs. George Gellhorn
Great Britain......Mrs. Harry C. January
United States......Mrs. Roscoe Anderson
France......Mrs. Oscar Marx
Germany......Mrs. Clark McAdams
Italy......Mrs. Haymer Lowenhaupt
Japan......Mrs. Louis T. Maguire

The program will begin with an estimate of the Kellogg pact and a discussion of the next steps toward world peace by Dr. Isaac Lippincott of Washington University.

The round table discussion is similar to the one planned and directed by Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt at the recent conference on the Cause and Cure of War, and is the last word in the development of discussions for adult education. Although the characters are to be free for spontaneous discussion, the ground covered in the "international conversation" at the Washington conference will be covered here.

Phi Delphia Meeting.

Phi Delphian Chapter held a meeting at Cabanne Library last Wednesday, with the president, Mrs. John C. Pritchard, presiding. Szechenyi and his American wife, formerly Miss Gladys Vanderbilt.

Mrs. William T. Nardin, Mrs. Frank P. Hays and Mrs. T. M. Jeffords were hostesses to Chapter O. P. E. O., Monday at the Wednesday Club. The president, Mrs. Lewis F. T. Thomas, presided. Mrs. C. E. Bushnell read a paper on "Aviation."

Ernest R. Kroger will present "The Emotional and Picturesque" in music at a lecture recital at the meeting of the Quest Club Tuesday at 2:30 p. m., in the lecture room of the Kingshighway Presbyterian Church, Kingshighway and Cabanne avenue. His lecture will also include, "Music of Different Nations" and "Descriptive Poetic and Dramatic Music."

The annual luncheon of the Twentieth Century Art Club will be held tomorrow at 12:30 p. m. at Coronado Hotel. Mrs. Thomas L. Horn has charge of the affair. The program to follow the luncheon will be devoted to Russian music and art. Mrs. Thelma Carroll will sing a group of Russian songs; Miss Virginia Walden, violinist, will play Russian numbers and Russian folk dances will be given by Willis Stiles. Mrs. H. P. Hunkins and Mrs. M. C. Younglove will play the accompaniments and tableaux will be presented by members of the club.

The next regular meeting of the club will be held March 11, when a program on "Literature" will be given under the direction of a committee composed of Miss Hazel Howe, Mrs. May Steinhauer and Mrs. C. P. Headley.

The Kirkwood Tuesday Club met Tuesday at the home of Mrs. W. W. Keysor, with Mrs. L. W. Coste as assisting hostess. The members wore colonial costumes. Miss Frances Brunner gave a paper on "Early Colonial Days" and Miss Laura Brunner read a paper on "Writers of the pre-Revolutionary Period." The next meeting will be held March 5, at the home of Mrs. F. J. Murtfeldt.

Senator Samuel M. Shortridge Jr., of California, Representative and Mrs. Clyde Kelly of Pennsylvania, Representative and Mrs. A. H. Vestal of Indiana, and the brother and sister-in-law of the hosts, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Davis of Detroit, were some of the guests.

Interest always centers about the detached men and women attending these important dinners, and this time they were Mrs. Henry F. Dimock of New York and Washington and Mrs. George Mesta, a pretty young widow of Pittsburg, who divides her time between Washington and New York. Early next week the President and Mrs. Coolidge will dine with the Speaker and Mrs. Longworth.

The night following the dinner for the Coolidges, the Secretary of Labor and Mrs. Davis gave another dinner. The Ambassador of Mexico and Senora Telles and the Ambassador of Germany and Frau von Prittwitz und Gaffron were diplomats attending. Mrs. Henry Alvah Strong and Mrs. Jacob Leander Loose, the latter from Kansas City, were the detached women. Matrons beyond the age of 50 are much sought for this filling-in at important dinner parties.

Society has vacillated on the subject of gloves and bags this winter until one scarcely knew what to do. Just when some important person appeared at the White House in long white gloves, carrying one of the huge tapestry bags, one naturally supposed them to be the latest vogue, but a little farther travel down the drawing room proved this not to be true, for here were just as stylish women without gloves and carrying small fancy evening bags.

At the reception given by the Congressional Club for the Speaker and Mrs. Longworth, the problem bobbed up again, and there stood Mrs. Longworth in the receiving line wearing long white gloves that covered the biceps of her plump arms. From one arm swung the huge tapestry bag from which she is seldom separated. By her side stood Mrs. Peter Goelet Gerry, who March 4 resigns her place as president of the club. She was gloveless and carried a small and ornate bag. However, Mrs. Longworth's gloves were about the only pair in the room.

Mrs. Porter H. Dale, wife of the Senator from Vermont, who succeeds Mrs. Gerry as president of the Congressional Club March 4, was unable to attend on account of illness. That terrible legislative night sessions, kept most of the Senators from the reception, but the House was out in full force to welcome the Speaker.

Mr. and Mrs. Longworth long ago established a rule of not tarrying late either at dinner parties or receptions, and while they were in line in the club auditorium ready to receive promptly at 9 o'clock, they had received the entire guests, taken a bite of supper with Mrs. Gerry and the other officers of the club and were leaving at 10:30 o'clock. Guests who first went to dinner parties and then the reception missed meeting the guests of honor.

Parent-Teachers' Congress Meets

THE St. Louis Council of the National Congress Parents-Teachers Association held a rally at the Roosevelt High School [illegible]day, to celebrate the founding of the National Congress by Mrs. Theodore Birney, Feb. 17, 1897. A great birthday cake of blue and gold was decorated with a wreath of oak leaves and a picture of a child.

Mrs. James F. Cook of Webster Groves, president of the St. Louis district read the history of the founding of the congress.

The different school associations responded to roll call with original songs, verses, stories and a playlet entitled "Please Pass the Cream."

Parent-Teachers' Congress Meets

THE St. Louis Council of the National Congress Parents-Teachers Association held a rally at the Roosevelt High School Thursday, to celebrate the founding of the National Congress by Mrs. Theodore Birney, Feb. 17, 1897. A great birthday cake of blue and gold was decorated with a wreath of oak leaves and a picture of a child.

Mrs. James F. Cook of Webster Groves, president of the St. Louis district read the history of the founding of the congress.

The different school associations responded to roll call with original songs, verses, stories and a playlet entitled "Please Pass the Cream."

ico and Senora Tellez and the Ambassador of Germany and Frau von Prittwitz und Gaffron were diplomats attending. Mrs. Henry Alvah Strong and Mrs. Jacob Leander Loose, the latter from Kansas City, were the detached women. Matrons beyond the age of 50 are much sought for this filling-in at important dinner parties.

Society has vacillated on the subject of gloves and bags this winter until one scarcely knew what to do. Just when some important person appeared at the White House in long white gloves, carrying one of the huge tapestry arm bags, one naturally supposed that to be the latest vogue, but a little farther travel down the drawing room proved this not to be true, for here were just as stylish women without gloves and carrying small fancy evening bags.

At the reception given by the Congressional Club for the Speaker and Mrs. Longworth, the problem bobbed up again, and there stood Mrs. Longworth in the receiving line wearing long white gloves that covered the biceps of her plump arms. From one arm swung the huge tapestry bag from which she is seldom separated. By her side stood Mrs. Peter Goelet Gerry, who March 4 resigns her place as president of the club. She was gloveless and carried a small and ornate bag. However, Mrs. Longworth's gloves were about the only pair in the room.

Mrs. Porter H. Dale, wife of the Senator from Vermont, who succeeds Mrs. Gerry as president of the Congressional Club March 4, was unable to attend on account of illness. That terrible bugaboo, night sessions, kept most of the Senators from the reception, but the House was out in full force to welcome the Speaker.

Mr. and Mrs. Longworth long ago established a rule of not tarrying late either at dinner parties or receptions, and while they were in line in the club audience room, ready to receive promptly at 9 o'clock, they had received the early guests, taken a bite of supper with Mrs. Gerry and the other officers of the club and were leaving by 10:30 o'clock. Guests who first went to dinner parties and then the reception missed meeting the guests of honor.

Engagements And Weddings

THE engagement of Miss Norma Schwarz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. I. Schwarz, 90 Aberdeen place, and Maurice Mendle, son of Mr. and Mrs. I. Mendle, 7029 Westmoreland drive, has been announced. Miss Schwarz is a graduate of Wellesley College and Mr. Mendle attended the University of Missouri. The wedding will take place early in March.

Mr. and Mrs. D. I. Bloom, 4557 Lewis place, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Gertrude Bloom, and David Goldberg of Springfield, Mass. Miss Bloom returned Friday, from a visit to her fiance's mother, Mrs. H. Bloom, in Springfield. The bride-elect is a former student at Lenox Hall.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Seiler, 4107 DeTonty street, announce the engagement of their daughter, Myrtle, to Sam Katkin of Detroit, Mich., son of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Katkin, 2600 Clara avenue. No date has been set for the wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Ernest Cramer of the Coronado Hotel have announced the marriage of their daughter, Laura Joan Schroers, and Franklin Howard White of Springfield, Ill. The wedding took place Friday, Feb. 8. Mr. and Mrs. White will make their home at the President Apartments after March 15.

Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Froussard, 3936 Hamilton terrace, have announced the marriage of their daughter, Verceda Kingsland, to Robert Lee Marquess of Hopkinsville, Ky., Friday, Feb. 1, at Hopkinsville. The bride attended Harris Teacher's College and is a member of Theta Lambda Sigma Sorority. Mr. Marquess was graduated from Gallatin Institute, Gallatin, Tenn. Mr. and Mrs. Marquess are making their home at 4756 Bonita avenue.

The marriage of Miss B. Adele Michel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward A. Michel, 6705 Michigan avenue, and J. Fred Helmerichs, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Helmerichs, 3632 Wyoming street, was solemnized Saturday evening, Feb. 16, at the Carondelet Presbyterian Church, Dr. Joseph Gauss officiating.

Mrs. Allen Clark of Cleveland, O., sister of the bridegroom, served as matron of honor, and Miss Thelma Koeln and Miss Dorothy Moodie were bridesmaids. Lucille Francis Bell was flower girl and Allen Clark Jr. was ringbearer. Edward F. Michel was best man for his brother and Dwight Moodie and Henry Schildknecht were groomsmen.

The bride attended Harris Teacher's College and Washington University and Mr. Helmerichs was graduated from the Missouri School of Mines. He is a member of Kappa Alpha Fraternity. Mr. and Mrs. Helmerichs will make their home at 3971 Vilmington avenue, after March 1.

The wedding of Miss Ruth Rasoland Yawitz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Yawitz, 5579 Waterman avenue, and Max Horwitz, 1292 Goodfellow avenue, will take place this evening at 8 o'clock in the Crystal ballroom of Hotel Chase. The room will be decorated in baskets of flowers arranged against a background of smilax and palms. A reception for 350 guests will follow the marriage service which will be read by Dr. Isaac Halpern.

Miss Yawitz will be attended by Mrs. Joseph Jankowsky as matron of honor; Miss Natalie Yawitz as maid of honor and Miss Corrinne Yawitz as bridesmaid. Mr. Horwitz will have as his best man Joseph Jankowsky and Jerome Yawitz and Sol Dubinsky as groomsmen.

The bride will be attired in white chiffon beaded in crystal and pearls and her veil of tulle will fall from a wreath of orange blossoms. She will carry a bouquet of orchids and lilies of the valley. Mrs. Jankowsky will wear a gown of orchid tulle; Miss Natalie Yawitz will be gowned in cream lace and Miss Corrinne Yawitz will wear yellow chiffon. They will carry roses the color of their dresses.

Several pre-nuptial parties have been given for the prospective bride.

Mr. and Mrs. Morris Goldstein of 5780 Westminster place have announced the engagement of their daughter, Birdie, to Harold Fursteberg of Centerville, Ia.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Wax, 1602 Clara avenue, announce the engagement of their daughter, Frances, to Frank Chervitz, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Chervitz, 750 Kingsland avenue.

An interesting wedding yesterday was that of Miss Irene W. Miller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Miller of Highland, Ill., and Edward Morcom Thomas, son of W. J. Thomas and the late Sarah Thomas of 6625 Vermont avenue. The civil service was read by the Judge James F. Green. Immediately after which the briday party proceeded to Winnebago Presbyterian Church where the religious ceremony was performed by the Rev. Jerrie Johnson. The only attendants were Miss Edna Miller, sister of the bride and Robert G. Thomas, brother of the groom. Mr. Thomas is a graduate of Benton College of Law.

After an extended Caribbean cruise Mr. and Mrs. Thomas will make their home at the Hutcheson Arms Apartments.

Fortnightly Club Meets.

Mrs. H. N. Henderson and Miss Clara Pullis were hostess to the Fortnightly Club of Kirkwood Feb. 14 at the home of Mrs. G. K. Weeks. Valentine greetings were given in answer to roll call. The speaker was A. E. Satterthwait of Webster Groves.

Tuesday Club Wins Program Contest

THE committee of judges from the Eighth District, Missouri Federation of Women's Clubs, consisting of Mrs. A. S. Hinchey of the Carondelet Women's Club, chairman, Mrs. Marvic E. Boisseau of the Uandi Literary Club and Mrs. Ida B. Cole of the Wednesday Club, has given a unanimous decision in favor of the Tuesday Literary Club of St. Louis in a club program contest. The subject for the current year was "French Culture." It was decided that the Tuesday Club program had perfect continuity, the theme being carried through smoothly and with no break of interest. The topics were well selected, and showed careful arrangement and knowledge of the subject matter on the part of the Program Committee, it was found. The president of the Tuesday Club is Mrs. Arthur Branch, and the Program Committee is composed of Mrs. A. V. L. Brokaw, chairman, Mrs. Victor E. Rhodes, Mrs. M. S. Eanes and Mrs. H. M. Whelpley.

New York Turns to Charity During Lent

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.

TIME was when Lent curtailed the activities of the fashionables until they presented the bleakness of semi-mourning. Not so today. Festivities simply assure a more somber tone and conduct themselves in the name of charity.

Dinners are smaller—and more intimate—and for that reason more enjoyable than the larger formal affairs of mid-season. Dances pursue their merry way for the benefit of some favorite philanthropy, and the sewing classes keep some of the most aristocratic fingers in town buy during morning hours with the construction of hospital shirts, children's frocks and rompers for charity. Nor are the activities of the sewing classes confined exclusively to needles and thread. The majority of the hostesses provide amusement for their workers and milady listens, as she bastes, to a voice she has often heard across the Metropolitan footlights or a reading by one of the most popular actresses in town.

One of the most active of the sewing classes is that which meets on Tuesday mornings for the Fresh Air Association of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine. Mrs. Frank Hunter Potter, Mrs. Morgan Jopling and Mrs. Augustus Field were among those who met at the home of Mrs. William T. Manning last Tuesday to sew rompers and frocks for next summer's "fresh air children." A musical program by Harry Byrleigh, baritone, and Harold Berkeley, violinist, furnished diversion for the social register seamstresses.

Washington's Birthday offered opportunity for gayer restivity with the colonial ball at the Hotel Roosevelt for the benefit of the Artists' and Teachers' Benevolent Society. The ball opened with a minuet and closed with a supper served in the early morning hours.

"Blue Butterfly," a children's operetta presented as a benefit for the New York Music Week Association, drew society to a midtown theater Monday and Tuesday afternoons in large numbers.

Large blocks of seats were purchased by socially prominent patrons for the entertainment of luncheon guests or the amusement of crippled children who could not otherwise have attended. Mrs. Roland Harriman, Mrs. Jay Gould and Countess Mercati were among the patronesses.

The affair was sponsored by a number of prominent musicians including Sergei Rachmaninoff, Mme. Efrem Zimbalist and Mme. Olga Samaroff.

In accordance with an old custom to celebrate Washington's birthday, the New York Southern Society gave a Dixie dinner dance Thursday evening at the Hotel Astor. The ballroom was decorated with the ensigns of the Southern states, and the tables bore placards indicating the state in which the members had formerly lived.

Delphian Council Meeting.

The Delphian Council, Mrs. John P. Austin, president, will hold its quarterly meeting at 10 a. m. next Friday at Central Library. Action will be taken on the revision of the constitution and by-laws and final plans for the annual luncheon will be announced.

Inaugural Day Dinner.

An inauguration dinner dance and Hoover jubilee party will be given by the members of the Engineers Hoover-for-President Clubs on March 6 at Hotel Chase, at 7 p. m. J. L. Hamilton is chairman of the men's division, and Mrs. John C. Pritchard is chairman of the woman's branch.

The Literary section, under the chairmanship of Mrs. S. Smith Stewart, will hold its regular monthly meeting Tuesday at 2:30 p. m. The leader of the day will be Mrs. Forrest C. Donnell, and the subject, "Western Literature of Our Country."

The program is as follows:

Abraham Lincoln's Gettysburg Address ... Mrs. B. A. Thompson
The Biography of Bret Harte ... Dr. Helen Gibson
A Story—"The Luck of Roaring Camp" .... Mrs. Herman F. Hoch
Mark Twain's Contribution ... Mrs. James Lewald
James Whitcomb Riley and Eugene Field ... Mrs. Walter G. G. Neun
Music—A Eugene Field poem in song ... Miss Mabel Henderson

The regular meeting of the executive board will be held Wednesday at 10 a. m. in the Cathedral. The president of the club, Mrs. Orie Leon Herlinger, will preside.

The music section, Miss Dorothy Rapp, chairman, will have a special program under the leadership of Mrs. J. J. Kessler, Friday, at 10 a. m. The section is rehearsing "A Day in Venice," Prof. O. Wade Fallert directing, to be presented at a Sunday afternoon concert in Scottish Rite Cathedral some time in March.

The Dramatic Art Section of Scottish Rite Women's Club, Mrs. E. R. Brown, chairman, meets Tuesday in the lounge of Scottish Rite Cathedral, 3637 Lindell boulevard. Rehearsal of plays, under the supervision of Mrs. W. R. Harris will take place at this time.

Parties and Other Social Events

MRS. ROBERT L. JORDAN of Clayton and McKnight roads will give a dinner dance at Glen Echo Country Club March 16, for 60 guests, Mrs. Jordan and her mother, Mrs. Eugene C. Gibson, will give a series of parties at the club during March and April.

Mrs. Harry J. Rakers, 5367 Maffitt avenue, gave a luncheon Wednesday, Feb. 6, in honor of her mother, Mrs. Andrew Takasch, who celebrated her birthday anniversary.

The Friendly Club will give a party this afternoon at 3 o'clock, at Barr Branch Library. After the program refreshments will be served. Visitors may attend.

Miss Louise D. Walz, 2628 North Eucild avenue, was hostess to the members of her class of the Cote-Brilliante Presbyterian Church, at a luncheon and valentine party, at her home, Friday evening, Feb. 15, in compliment to Miss Mabel Elizabeth Gilmore, who has just returned from a several months' visit as the guest of her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Walt Johnson of Chicago. She is the daughter of Walter Gilmore, 4412 St. Louis avenue.

The table was decorated in red and white. A red heart-shaped cake and red candles formed the center-piece. The following members of the class were present: Miss Louise D. Walz, Miss Mabel E. Gilmore, Miss Helen E. Gadd, Miss Mamie M. Goff, Miss Lorraine Kassing, Miss Esther Wood, Miss Virginia F. Schacht, and Mrs. Roy Walters.

Mrs. Samuel R. Abrams, 3528 Pestalozzi street, gave a luncheon and card party last week in honor of Mrs. O. W. Moore of Chicago. The guests were Mrs. Valley Havlin, Mrs. Ed Terry, Mrs. Frank Davis, Mrs. Anna Vaughn, Mrs. W. E. Jones, Mrs. Frank Adler, Mrs. B. McDonald, Mrs. Ben Schooler, Mrs. Adler Thomas and Mrs. Long Atkins.

Miss Eunice Robb, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. O. G. Robb, 4004 St. Louis avenue, was guest of honor at a surprise party Feb. 16 at her home, on her seventeenth birthday. The evening was spent in dancing and bridge. Covers were laid for 14 guests and the table was arranged with Valentine decorations.

Sorority Circle will give a bridge party at the home of Mrs. August Kohler Jr., 5818 Bartmer avenue, Friday at 1:30 p. m. Mrs. W. H. Sullivan is chairman of the Entertainment Committee.

The annual banquet of the Gamma Phi Beta Sorority was held last evening at the Hotel Jefferson. About 75 young women, including the members of the sorority and a number of guests, were present.

A tea was given by the Delta Chapter of the Omega Sorority, Sunday, Feb. 17, at the Winston Churchill Apartments. The hostesses were Miss Gladys Walker and Miss Virginia Howard.

Kindergarten at Kingdom House.

Miss Julia Prothero has been employed by the woman's board of Kingdom House to conduct a kindergarten for the children living in the neighborhood of that institution, which is at 1106 Hickory street. New equipment has been installed and necessary changes have been made in the day nursery to accommodate this feature. Kingdom House is an agency of the Community Fund.

SEAGLE, BARITONE, IN RECITAL

Oscar Seagle, eminent American baritone, gave a recital Friday night at the Wednesday Club auditorium before an enthusiastic audience. His program consisted of Italian operatic arias and groups of French, English and German songs.

Though not in the best of voice, Seagle's distinguished style and technique enabled to keep his recital up to the artistic standard expected of him. He was accompanied by Pauline Dobson Gold.

To Mark Confederate Graves.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—The Senate passed and sent to President Coolidge today a bill providing for the erection of headstones over the graves of Confederate soldiers in military or private cemeteries. Most of the graves in military cemeteries are already marked but some of them in private cemeteries are not. The bill also would provide that the names of Confederate dead whose graves are to be marked shall be kept on record in the War Department archives.

AN OBLIGING BEAUTY DOCTOR

A Beauty Specialist Gives Home-Made Recipe to Darken Gray Hair.

Mrs. M. D. Gillespie, a well-known beauty specialist of Kansas City, recently gave out the following statement regarding gray hair:

"Anyone can prepare a mixture at home that will darken gray hair, and make it glossy. To a half pint of water add 1 ounce of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and ¼ ounce of glycerine.

These ingredients can be purchased at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. This will make a gray-haired person look twenty years younger. It does not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and will not rub off."

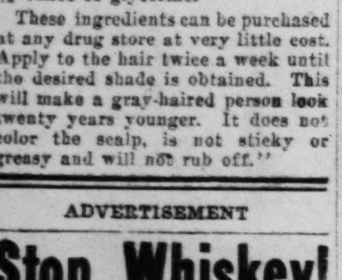
Stop Whiskey!

By John's Wife

I'm the happiest little woman
In all this little town;
And my merry laugh and singing
Takes the place of sigh and frown.
For JOHN HAS QUIT HIS DRINKING
And is like himself once more,
And the world is just a paradise
With such happiness in store!



One day I read some verses—
"Mary's Miracle," the name,
And I said, that's John exactly
And I'll send and get the same.
So I sent for GOLDEN TREATMENT.
(As sly as sly could be)
And I put it in John's supper
And I put it in his tea.
And it didn't taste a little bit;
Had no odor, so, you see—
It was smoothest kind of sailing
For little Doctor Me.
And I watched and prayed and waited,
(And cried some, too, I guess).
And I didn't have the greatest faith,
I'm ashamed now to confess.
And John never thought a minute
He was being cured of drink.
And soon he's as well as any one.
It makes me cry to think!
Just makes me cry for gladness,
I'm so proud to be his wife—
Since he is cured of drinking,
And leads a nice, new life.
"Since John he quit a-drinking!"
I can't say it times enough!
And hates and loathes a liquor
As he would a poison stuff.
And when I say my prayers at night
As thankful as can be—
I pray for John the most of all—
Then GOLDEN TREATMENT.

Home Treatment for Drunkards

Odorless and Tasteless—Any Lady Can Give It Secretly at Home in Tea, Coffee or Food.

Costs Nothing to Try

If you have a husband, son, brother, father or friend who is a victim of liquor, all you have to do is to send your name and address on the coupon below. You may be thankful as long as you live that you did it.

FREE TREATMENT COUPON

Fill in your name and address on blank lines below. Then cut out this coupon and mail it to Dr. J. W. Haines, 3135 Glenn Bldg., Cincinnati, Ohio. Doctor Found What is Be for Thin, Constipated Peop

W. B. Caldwell, M.D.
AT AGE 83

As a family doctor at Monticello, Illinois, the whole human body, not any small part of it, was Dr. Caldwell's practice. More than half his "calls" were on women, children and babies. They are the ones most often sick. But their illnesses were usually of a minor nature—colds, fevers, headaches, biliousness—and all of them required first a thorough evacuation. They were constipated.

In the course of his 47 years' practice (he was graduated from Rush Medical College back in 1875), he found a good deal of success in such cases with a prescription of his own containing simple laxative herbs with pepsin. In 1892 he decided to use this formula in the manufacture of a medicine to be known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and in that year his prescription was first placed on the market.

The preparation immediately had as great a success in the drug stores as it previously had in his private practice. Now, the third generation is using it. Mothers are giving it to their children who were given it by their mothers. Every second of the working day someone somewhere is going into a drug store to buy it. Millions of bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin are being used a year. Its great success is based on merit, on repeated buying, on one satisfied user telling another. There are thousands of homes in this country that are never without a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and we have gotten many hundreds of letters from grateful people telling us that it helped them when everything else failed. Every drug store sells Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

Activities of Women's Clubs

TWO committees of the Eighth District of the Missouri Federation of Women's Clubs will meet at the Town Club Wednesday at 10:30 a. m. Mrs. A. S. Langsdorf will speak before the American Homes Committee. Her subject will be the "Art of Living Together." Mrs. Karl R. Eaton is the chairman.

Mrs. Charles Ellis of the American Citizenship Committee has planned a special program for Thursday morning at 10:30 o'clock. Mrs. Donald McDonald will speak on "A Study of Indian Citizenship." "America Comes of Age" will be reviewed by Mrs. C. Golterman of the Carondelet Women's Club.

The Current Topics and Poetics sections of the Wednesday Club have outstanding programs for the last February meetings.

Edward C. Fisher will give an illustrated lecture before the Current Topics section on "From the Hex Mountains to the Congo," and Mrs. Henry Leverett Chase will give a short ta' on her impressions of India, gathered during a recent visit to her daughter there.

Mr. Fisher has spent much time in South America, and three years in South Africa, traveling more than 20,000 miles by oxcart and rail. His pictures are varied and most enlightening, his field covering the whole of South Africa from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

Miss Kate Roth is leader for the day, and Mrs. Carl F. G. Meyer chairman of the section.

Luncheon will follow the Current Topics section session to be held at 10:30 a. m. The Poetics Section convenes at 1:30 p. m.

The Missouri verse prize winner will be announced at the Poetics meeting by Mrs. Charles Noel, section chairman. This contest is open to any Missouri writer. The prize is given by the Wednesday Club.

Mrs. Lemoine Skinner has the program in charge, and is reading the contributions to the original verse contest for Wednesday Club members.

"Younger Poets and Newer Tendencies in Poetry" is the subject chosen by Lawrence H. Conrad, the speaker of the day. Mr. Conrad is an author and critic as well as head of the English department of the John Buroughs School.

The Ensee Study Circle met Monday, Feb. 11, at the home of Mrs. O. T. Johnson, 5244 Lansdowne. Following luncheon the meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Fred Armstrong. The next meeting will be held next Tuesday at the Forest Park Hotel.

Mrs. C. E. Close, 450 West Lockwood avenue, Webster Groves, was hostess to Kappa Delphian chapter at her home the afternoon of Feb. 15. Mrs. George A. Hill, the president, presided at a short business session. The program opened with a resume of "The Art of Illumination," given by Mrs. Hill. Mrs. C. J. Malone, leader, introduced the subject for study, "American Art." SAINT LOUIS women need no introduction to this event . . . an annual Sonnenfeld institution. The ever-increasing response that greets its announcement each year is conclusive proof of the esteem with which it is regarded by followers of Fashion and seekers of economy. This year, because of the heartier than usual co-operation of foremost creators, we believe every previous effort in assembling superlative fashions and noteworthy values has been surpassed, and . . . we urge every woman to attend and profit.

Replicas of Parisian Successes . . .

Many of the modes are exact replicas of foremost Parisian fashions . . . others are clever adaptations . . . still others are distinctive American creations. All of them, however, regardless of their inspirational source, embody an individuality customarily found only in Hats priced TWO to THREE TIMES MORE.

ACTIVITIES OF BOY SCOUTS

NATURE STUDY COURSE IS OFFERED LEADERS

Classes Will Be Conducted by Dr. Forrest Staley, Beginning March 4.

Boy Scout leaders in St. Louis who wish to specialize in nature study work, or those desiring to learn more of this subject, will be enabled to do so at a Nature Study course to be inaugurated by the St. Louis Boy Scout Council in connection with a Scoutmasters' Training Course to be given this spring. The nature course, which will be conducted by Dr. Forrest Staley, will begin April 8, although the regular training course is scheduled to start March 4. This is the first time a nature-study class has been formed by the local council.

Dr. Staley, who attended Marlin Perkins, of the St. Louis Zoo, when the latter was bitten by a Gaboon viper, has worked with the local scout organization for several years in the capacity of nature study instructor. He is an authority on reptiles and on snake poisons.

Staley will be assisted by five other leaders who have specialized in nature work, while Field Scout Executive S. C. Reaves will act as director of the course.

The regular classes of the course, beginning March 4, will be divided into a Standard Elementary Course, an advanced course, a first aid class, and a swimming and life-saving class. The first will be held Monday evenings in the auditorium of the Michael School, at Euclid avenue and Forest Park boulevard.

The first aid class will be held at the Washington University School of Medicine on Monday nights, under the direction of Capt. John R. Hall of the school, while the swimming class will meet at the Principia pool on Tuesdays. Fred Pothoff of the American Red Cross will act as instructor. The course, which is open to any class of swimmer or non-swimmer, will start March 5.

228 SIGN IN WEEK TO ENTER BOY SCOUTS

The North District, with 134 recruits, led in the number of new scouts signed last week, followed by the West District with 55, the South District with 54, and the Suburban with 45.

Two hundred and twenty-eight boys, all 12 years of age, signed as candidates for membership in the Boy Scouts of St. Louis last week, the largest membership increase for one week ever recorded by the local council. The new recruits were obtained in the final lap of a membership campaign held in connection with the seventh annual Scout Circus. The circus was given at the Coliseum Friday and yesterday.

Altogether more than 900 boys became scouts in the campaign which started the week before Christmas. All were taken into the organization at an investiture ceremony Friday night, at which time each recruit received a gold Tenderfoot badge, the gift of President Clarence Howard of the local council.

Troop Notes

South District.

Twenty-three scouts of Troop 157, of the Advent Lutheran Church, were ushers at a Washington-Lincoln celebration held at the Roosevelt High School last week. The scouts also escorted war veterans as they marched to their seats in the reserved section. The Flying Eagle patrol, under the leadership of Patrol Leader Edmund Detering, won in a two months' inter-patrol contest on the last night, just nosing out the Moose and Wolf patrols. The troop took part in the Evolution of the Flag at the Scout Circus.

Scout Vernon Semon of Troop 232, of the Blow School, acted as official troop representative in laying a wreath on Lincoln's tomb at Springfield, Ill., last Sunday. Scout Semon made the trip to Springfield at troop expense. While there an automobile was provided for him by Scout Executive A. J. Davis. He visited Lincoln's home, the Capitol, the centennial building and the armory. The ceremony of placing the wreath was witnessed by a large crowd of visitors.

Suburban District.

A special scout service, which Troops Overland 1 and 2 attended, was held at the Overland Baptist Church last Sunday, in connection with the nineteenth anniversary of the scout organization. The relation of the Scout oath to daily life was discussed by the pastor.

A stunt entitled "All a Matter of Leadership," was presented by eight scouts of the Suburban District at the annual Scout Leaders' banquet, held at Hotel Chase last Monday. The boys who praticipated were Scout Guy Brown, Webster Groves 8; Bob Dawson and William Perkins, Webster Groves 1; Douglas Jones, Webster Groves 2, James Corner, Webster Groves 5, Oliver Stone, Webster Groves 7, Russell Ellinger, Webster Groves 12, and Roy Greene, Webster Groves 14.

North District.

No meeting was held by Troop 161, of the Webster School, last week, because of the annual Scout Circus, in which the troop participated. The troop erected a tent at this event, and three of the members took part in the investiture ceremony. Practice in putting up the tent was held at the meeting week before last. Relay and chair races were also held. Scout Harold J. Seaborn is now troop reporter for 161.

Scouts from Troop 122, of the Sherman Park Community Center, had the part of John Cabot in the evolution of the flag at the Scout Circus, and other parts of the Eagle Scout ceremony. A schedule for an interpatrol contest, to run four months, was drawn up at the last meeting of the troop. All test-passing will be distributed among five of the officers: Junior Assistants Hugh Hanna and Victor Frank, Senior Patrol Leaders Andrew Aylward and Bertram Black and Scribe John Overman.

An all-day hike to the troop camping grounds was held last Sunday. The day was spent collecting for a troop museum, and coasting and skating. The new troop paper, "The Chief," will issue its first edition this week.

West District.

Practice in building various types of fires was held at the last meeting of Troop 30, of the Y. M. H. A., in preparation for giving a demonstration on this subject at the Scout circus. To each patrol was assigned a certain type, such as council fire, trapper's fire, star fire, cooking.

Two new scouts were admitted into Troop 123, of the Fountain Park Congregational Church, at an investiture ceremony held in celebration of the nineteenth anniversary of the Boy Scout movement last week.

The scoutmaster, assistant scoutmaster, and 12 scouts of Troop 127 hiked to the Meramec Quarry last Sunday. Several tests were passed.

The Eventful Day of Her Life

Popular St. Louis woman says she will always remember the day she started using Herb Extract, formerly called Herb Juice, as it was the turning point to better health.

"After suffering so long, now, what I consider the most eventful day of my life was when I started using your Herb Extract remedy."

(Signed) Mrs. A. Hanky,
4077 Concordia Avenue,
St. Louis, Missouri.

This great Herb Extract remedy called HERB JUICE is purely a vegetable medicine and one we recommend and guarantee.

Four Cities To Be Added To the Curtiss Flying System

Kansas City, Portland, Ore., Los Angeles and Oakland, Cal., Cities Named by President Jones After 7000-Mile Trip.

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—Back from a 7000-mile air-rail tour of inspection across the continent, C. S. (Casey) Jones, president of the Curtiss Flying Service, reports arrangements whereby Los Angeles, Oakland, Cal.; Portland, Ore.; Denver and Kansas City will soon be incorporated as operating units in the Curtiss Flying Service nation-wide system of 25 or more airports and flying fields.

Although no definite arrangements for a flying field were concluded during his visit at Kansas City, Jones said that several fields are still under consideration, and the selection will be announced later.

All arrangements have been made, Jones said, for the use of Mines Field, Los Angeles, by the Curtiss Flying Service. At this point sufficient ground space has been obtained for the construction of six hangars and nearby barracks for the use of approximately 300 students, who will be enrolled in the advance school of flying to be maintained by the Curtiss organization as the only such institution on the West Coast. Construction of the hangars and barracks will be carried out along Spanish Mission architectural lines.

All work at Mines Field will be under the supervision and management of Maj. C. C. Mosely, former operation manager of Western Air Express and Pulitzer Cup Race winner in 1921. Maj. Mosely, who will be vice president of the Curtiss Flying Service of California, organized the National Guard and the Reserve Squadron in Los Angeles. Operations in Los Angeles are expected to begin June 1.

Tentative arrangements have been completed, Jones reported, for the operation of a school and flying service at the Oakland Municipal Airport. On June 1 the Curtiss Flying Service also proposes to begin operation of a taxi service from Oakland to San Francisco. A Sikorsky 12-passenger tri-motored amphibian will be ordered to Oakland immediately, according to present plans.

At Denver preliminary negotiations have been undertaken for the operation of a flying service unit either at the National Guard Field or at Denver Union Field. While in Denver Jones held several conferences with Maj. Fissler, head of the National Guard unit there.

Negotiations at Portland call for the operation of a unit there by Tex Rankin of the Rankin Flying Service.

Although no definite arrangements have been complete for the use of an airport at Kansas City, two fields are still under consideration, and the selection will be announced later.

At the beginning of his coast-to-coast trip President Jones, who is a member of the Technical Committee of the Transcontinental Air Transport, was the companion of Col. Lindbergh, the two of them flying together in the tri-motored Ford, Christopher Columbus, the "flying office" of Col. Lindbergh, who is head of the technical committee. The Transcontinental Air Transport is known as the Lindbergh Line.

During his month's trip Jones was engaged in selecting airport sites for both the Curtiss Flying Service and the Transcontinental Air Transport.

Curtiss Flying Service was organized last year to establish a national system of airports at which flying instruction and all the facilities of an airport would be available. When the scheme is more advanced it will be possible to hire planes for point-to-point trips. Several airports have already been organized, including one at Curtiss Field, another at Bridgeport and one at Miami. Short local flights are available at these for a nominal charge.

Farm Truckage Showed Gain in 1928

PONTIAC, Mich., Feb. 23.—With more than 12,193,058 cattle, calves, hogs and sheep hauled by motor truck to 17 major markets in 1928, as compared with 8,393,101 in 1927, an increase of 46 per cent, the rapidity with which agriculture is motorizing its transportation is plainly indicated, in the opinion of Paul W. Seiler, president of the General Motors Truck Co.

"Within the past four years," Seiler declared yesterday," receipts of livestock by motor truck have more than doubled. Every business day, on the average, saw a 'million-dollar truck load' of livestock going to market last year. The money value of this stock hauled by truck in 1928 totaled more than $350,000,000.

Hoover Inaugural to Draw Many Motorists to Capitol

Motor Route Is Concrete Entire Way From St. Louis—Distance Is 823 Miles — Aero Display Planned.

Thousands of motorists from all parts of the country will tour to Washington, D. C., a few days before March 4 to witness the inauguration ceremonies on that day in which Herbert Hoover will be installed as President of the United States.

Motorists of Missouri and other surrounding states who pass through St. Louis on their journey will find the route concrete in its entirety. The route, which strikes eastward from St. Louis across Free Bridge, follows Illinois No. 11 across that State, U. S. 40 across Indiana, State No. 11 across Ohio, and U. S. 40 through West Virginia and Pennsylvania to Washington. The total distance from St. Louis is 823 miles.

Two full days will be consumed by the average motorist in making the trip and probably many will linger longer on the road. It is suggested that Columbus, O., the half-way mark between St. Louis and Washington, be stayed in the night of the first day on the road. This city, the capital of Ohio, has good hotels. Other information regarding the trip can be obtained at the Post-Dispatch Touring Bureau on the first floor of the Post-Dispatch Building at Twelfth and Olive streets.

Aviation this year will play an important part in the inauguration ceremonies. There is to be an areonautical display which will be in charge of Maj. John Derry, superintendent of the Cleveland, O., airport. Maj. Derry is an authority on airport construction and the staging of aero circus. He is best known as the man who put the lighting system across the continent for night flying of airmail.

N. A. C. C. to Open An Office in Paris

The National Automobile Chamber of Commerce in New York is to establish an European bureau of the organization in Paris. John V. Lawrence has been appointed to be manager of the bureau. Growth of European trade in the past several years has brought about the action, it was stated.

The Government is represented here by H. R. Buckley, automotive trade commissioner for Europe, and H. C. Schuette, his assistant, attached to the foreign staff of the Department of Commerce. They collect trade information for the benefit of American manufacturers and salesmen.

In addition, W. S. Hogan is the permanent Paris delegate of the Automobile Club of America, and W. F. Bradley represents the foreign interests of the Indianapolis Automobile Racing Association. Most American automobile manufacturers maintain their principal European offices at Paris, because of its central location, and the importance of France in the international automobile world.

The United States holds memberships in the International Association of Automobile Manufacturers, the International Federation of Automobile Clubs, the International Racing Commission, and the various international highway improvement associations. The industry is active in international matters that affect the future of the automobile business. Action of the N. A. C. C. is expected to strengthen the American position in Europe.

The American automobile industry led all other industries in imports to France during 1928, according to official government figures. American agents sold 4157 passenger cars. French purchases of foreign machines increased 83.4 per cent last year over 1927.

At the same time, French exports decreased 15.1 per cent during the year, as result of the stabilization of the franc, which has tended to increase manufacturing costs, and the triumphs of American automobiles in European markets. Americans have been getting the business. Algeria, a French colony, is the best customer of the French industry, with Spain second, Belgium third, and Great Britain fourth.

The Chrysler Motor Car Co. of Antwerp, assembling and distributing for Belgium, Holland and Switzerland, recently celebrated its third anniversary. S. D. Briggs was toastmaster, and Chrysler representatives were present from Germany, England, Italy, Egypt, Sweden, France and Holland. Vaudeville entertainment followed the dinner.

Foreign Road Building.

After making two trips to Europe and one to South America this year, Frank L. Hambly, Marmon export manager, reports that the market for American cars abroad is being stimulated to a considerable extent by record-breaking road building activity in foreign countries.

To Hold Commercial Car Show This Year

A national commercial vehicle show will be held in the middle west late in 1929, preliminary details of which have been announced by the Motor Truck Committee of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, which is directing the event.

The exhibition will include all types of trucks, busses, taxicabs, delivery wagons and special apparatus vehicles.

The committee will adopt the same sanctioned rule which has applied to national passenger car shows, providing that invitations to exhibit will be issued only to those makers who do not participate in unsanctioned shows. This show will be the only sanctioned commercial vehicle event this year, but the ruling will not affect such exhibitions as the good roads show, the American Electric Railway shows, state fairs and other events in which commercial vehicles play a subordinate part.

Listen to Your Exhaust.

There is no more pleasant sound to the motor lover than a purring exhaust. Turning it into a listening post occasionally is a good idea.

Elimination of Split Seconds In Race Timing Is Advocated Contest Board Questions Whether Clocking Instruments Are Reliable When Motor Cars Are Driven Over 200 M.P.H.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—All speed records from one to 10 miles must be bettered by a minimum of two miles per hour, under a proposal made by the contest board of the American Automobile Association to the International Sport Committee, which set the regulations for all international records.

The contest board says that while records over these distances must be the average of performances made in each direction within a period of one-half hour in order to equalize any wind or gradient conditions, speeds have become so fast that the timing of cars, especially for a mile, is a highly scientific matter, even with the most improved and technical of machinery.

The statement by the contest board continues:

"It costs at least $50,000 to challenge with any likelihood of success for the mile record. This figure will probably be doubled when it is necessary to cross the Atlantic with a car and a crew, as in the case of European challengers. The record is now held by an American car and driver. Ray Keech, in White's three-Liberty Triplex, set the mark at 17.345 second, which is 207.552 m. p. h., on April 22, 1928.

The performance was but 5-100ths of a second better than the 17.395 second figure reached by Malcolm Campbell, two months earlier. It may also be of interest that Campbell's performance was but 25-100ths of a second better than Maj. Segrave did in his Sunbeam just a year before.

"Such close timing is of course possible with the highly developed instruments used under laboratory conditions. The question does exist in the contest board's mind if it is always possible under the field conditions where the instruments have to be installed.

Famous French Ace to Race in Speedway Classic

Louis Chiron Says He Will Enter 500-Mile Memorial Day Contest at Indianapolis — Entry Blanks Sent to Drivers.

Louis Chiron, the famous French automobile race driver, will lend a touch of international color to the seventeenth annual running of the 500-mile Indianapolis speedway classic at Indianapolis, Ind., May 30. Chiron, in a letter to officials of the Speedway the past week, announced that he would enter a car of foreign make into the annual race.

In Europe, Chiron is regarded as the world's champion speed ace as the result of having won 56 major and minor events in Europe during the last two years.

Entry blanks for the annual speedway contest were placed in the mails the past week. The entry blanks call for the distribution of $50,000 to the first 10 drivers to complete the race, the fifteenth time that this amount of money has been offered by the Speedway, with an additional amount for a consolation prize to all starters not finishing among the first 10. The amount has not been announced, but for several years the Speedway owners have paid $10,000 in consolations.

The conditions in the main are the same as those governing the 1928 race, calling for a car not less than 1400 pounds in weight and powered with an engine not to exceed 91½ cubic inches piston displacement.

The race will be the final one of this class run over the two and one-half mile brick course, and the drivers, who are now scattered in all parts of the country, are preparing their cars for the Memorial day classic with one idea in mind—that of shattering the record established by Peter De Paolo at the wheel of a Duesenberg, an average of 101.13 for the 500 miles.

It will be the last appearance of the small-engined, narrow-bodied swift racing cars in the race which was recently voted the title of Grand Prize of America by the contest board of the American Automobile Association.

Next year's entry blanks will call for an entirely different and larger type of motor car.

California Volcanic Park Is Enlarged

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 23.—Lassen Volcanic National Park in Northern California has been enlarged by the inclusion of approximately 24,280 acres of additional land, according to the Automobile Club of Southern California. The newly added area contains some interesting scenic spectacles associated with the volcanic phenomena, which was primarily responsible for the establishment of the park.

Gas Tax Can Be Deducted From Income In Tax Report

Motorist May Also List Losses sustained Through Damage by Accident, and for Depreciation and Maintenance.

By ROBERT H. HALL,
Automobile Editor.

Under the regulations of the Federal Bureau of Internal Revenue, motorists may deduct certain automobile expenses from their income tax reports. Among these deductions are all sums paid during the calendar year in the form of registration fees, driver's licenses, State personal property taxes and municipal taxes.

Motorists also may deduct the total amount expended during the calendar year on gasoline tax in all cases where such taxes are "consumer taxes," but not where it is specifically enacted as a "distributers' tax." This ruling is applicable in Missouri, where the gasoline tax is a "consumers'" tax.

Interest on money borrowed for the purchase of an automobile is deductible, irrespective of whether

CITIES SERVICE CHIEF VISITS OFFICE HERE

W. H. Merritt, Vice President, Tells of Expansions Planned.

W. H. Merritt, vice president and general manager of the Cities Service Oil Co. of Tulsa, Ok., the subsidiary of the $800,000,000 Cities Service Co. of New York, which is planning to establish a chain of 30 oil and gasoline stations here in the next two years, visited the St. Louis office of the firm Wednesday of the past week.

While here Merritt went over the plans for expanding his firm's business here with William L. Lund, newly appointed district manager. Merritt reiterated Lund's statement of last week that the firm plans to erect a large sales and warehouse building on a plot recently purchased at the corner of Chippewa and Meramec streets. Merritt stated that the architect's plans are to be completed at Tulsa within the next several weeks and that construction on the building will begin early in spring.

At St. Louis Merritt concluded a two weeks' trip covering the Middle West, during which time he inspected several plants of independent oil and gas operators which the Cities Service Oil Co. may purchase. He refused to divulge where these plants were located or the amount of money that would be involved if they were purchased. As told last week, the company recently purchased the chain of stations operated here by the Commonwealth Oil Co., an independent distributer.

Miniature Packard To Seville Fair

One of the most interesting automobiles ever built by the Packard Motor Car Co. has just been delivered to the United States Government. It is 38 inches long and 26 inches high, an exact miniature of the Packard eight machines used by the radio division of the Department of Commerce in all parts of the United States to check radio broadcasting. It was built for the Department of Commerce for the international exhibition shortly to be held at Seville, Spain.

The body was just like a regular Packard. The chassis frame, tiny bumpers and like parts were hand wrought from bronze. The steering wheel, not much larger than a quarter, was carved out of a wood block and nearly a week was spent by one man in its making.

The inside of the body is made of polished mahogany and has cabinets and drawers exactly like the big cars operated by the Department. The interior also is completely equipped with tiny models of all the intricate pieces of radio apparatus of the regular radio cars. The big Department of Commerce radio cars scour the entire country and maintain constant supervision of all broadcasting and other radio stations.

Gas Tax Can Be Deducted From U. S. Income Tax

the car is used for business purposes or for pleasure. If the taxpayer keeps his accounts on a cash basis such interest will be deductible only for the year in which paid. If accounts are kept on an accrued basis, interest may be deducted as it accrues.

If a passenger car is used wholly for business purposes, all expenses incident to maintenance, including depreciation at the rate of 20 per cent per annum, may be deducted. Where the car is used "chiefly" or more than 50 per cent for business and incidentally for pleasure, the expense may be deducted on a pro rata basis.

Loss sustained by reason of damage to a passenger automobile which being used for pleasure is deductible. The loss, however, must be actual loss to the person claiming the deduction. In other words, if it is compensated for by insurance or otherwise, it is not deductible.

The Bureau of Internal Revenue has ruled that where a motorist paid damages for injury to a pedestrian, such amount is deductible, provided at the time the injury occurred the car was being used for business. There has never been a decision, however, on whether a fine paid by a motorist might be deducted as a business expense where, at the time the expense was incurred, the car was being used for business or professional purposes.

The amount paid for insurance on automobiles used for business purposes and also the amount of finance charges on a purchased car which covers interest and risk on the loan, but not the amount covering the premium on insurance to protect the finance company's interest.

It has been pointed out that in no case is a loss deductible where it is sustained when an automobile used for pleasure is traded in for a new car. At the same time, it is stated that in no case is the amount paid for an automobile used either for business or pleasure allowed as a deduction.

This is regarded by the bureau as a capital investment, but is subject to claim for depreciation when used for business purposes. In the case of purchase by a farmer for strictly farm use, only the expense incident to operation is deductible, as in the case of any other business or professional use.

Campbell to Race In Syrian Desert

Malcolm Campbell, idol of the British automobile speedways, is out to regain the speed title which he lost last summer to Ray Keech, American.

Campbell did 206 miles an hour in his "Bluebird" at Daytona Beach early in 1928, setting a new world's record for automobile speed. A few weeks later, however, Ray Keech marked up a 207.55260-miles-an-hour record, and his crown has been undisputed ever since.

Now Campbell has designed a new automobile which he claims will do better than 220 miles an hour, and in company with Brian E. Lewis, son of Sir Henry Lewis and the managing director of Malcolm Campbell, Ltd., Auburn distributors in London, has left for Africa, where the test will be made.

Campbell, who is distributor for Auburn in London, discussed his plans for regaining the championship with R. S. Wiley, export manager for Auburn, recently in Europe, where Wiley spent a few days with the British racing king.

"It is my purpose," Campbell told Wiley, "to take this new car to the Syrian desert to a place about a day's journey from Damascus and try for a new world's record for automobile speed.

"At this particular spot there is a 16-mile stretch of sun-baked mud which is as hard as asphalt pavement. Here, under official supervision, the test will be made.

"The car which I have designed to make this test in, is a streamline with 1000-horsepower motor."

Another Englishman will attempt to take back the automobile speed crown to England. He is Maj. H. O. D. Segrave and he will make his try at Daytona Beach some time in March, 1929.

Segrave will use a car that weighs approximately 6000 pounds and has a 12-cylinder engine which develops 900 horsepower. Segrave claims his car will do between 240 and 250 miles an hour. The car which is now being built will be christened the "Golden Arrow."

G.-P. Cars Victors in Australian Contest

DETROIT, Mich., Feb. 23.—Graham-Paige four-speed models again proved their superiority over European makes in acceleration and speed tests conducted last month by the Royal Automobile Club of Victoria (Australia) at Dormana, near Melbourne, factory officials declared here today.

"The contest was held on a course slightly over two miles in circuit, on gravel roads, with four right-angle turns. Each event started with an acceleration test from standstill, the cars continuing around the course against time. There were 50 entrants, European and American cars, the officials reported.

"In the event for closed cars, a Graham-Paige model won the acceleration test and made the fastest circuit. As there were no open models at hand, a Graham-Paige sedan was entered in the event open to all cars—sports models, racing cars and specials—and made the fastest time in its class (cars of 2200 to 3300 cc. displacement).

"In the class for large cars, the Graham-Paige sedan made the circuit in the best time, defeating open models of other makes.

"A recapitulaiton of the score shows that the Graham-Paige made the best time of all American entries, best time of all closed cars, best acceleration of all closed cars, and the best time of all competitors except an eight-cylinder French Ballot race model guaranteed to do 125 m. p. h."

Besides the American cars entered, the entrants included Delage, Bugatti, Panhard, Lancia-Lambda, Fiat, Vauxhall, Riley, Salmson and Ballot, it was said.

Baker's Driving Time Was Actually 3:59

It was stated in this section last Sunday that Cannonball Baker, in setting a new record in a Franklin sedan between Kansas City and St. Louis in a Franklin sedan that he had driven the 252 miles between the two cities in four hours and 9 minutes. As a matter of fact, Baker's actual driving time was three hours and 59 minutes, according to officials of the Franklin Motor Car Co. of St. Louis.

Baker drove from St. Louis to Kansas City in four hours and three minutes. Thus, as the figures show, the time between Kansas City and St. Louis lowered that mark very considerably.

Andrews Joins Oliver-Cadillac Wholesale Staff

Roland R. Andrews, for a number of years metropolitan sales manager of the Hudson-Frampton Motor Car Co., has accepted a position with the Oliver Cadillac Co., Cadillac-La Salle distributer here. It was announced yesterday by Ray Wice, general manager for the adillac distributer. Andrews will handle all wholesale sales for Cadillac-La Salle in the State of Illinois, Wice reported.

Borim, New Radiator Cleaning Compound

Borim, a new cleaning compound for automobile radiators, which is guaranteed not to injure the radiator or rubber attachments, has recently been introduced by the H. B. Smythe Co., 2422 Rexford avenue, Maplewood, Mo.

To clean the radiator, one tablespoonful of Borim is used to a gallon of water. The motor is then run for 30 minutes after which the solution is drained from the radiator. Borim can also be used to clean the outside of the motor. A solution of four tablespoonsful of Borim to a gallon of warm water, applied with a soft cloth or waste, will clean oil, grime and grease from the motor.

Under Hood Cleanliness.

Crankcase ventilators that discharge the fumes and oily vapors underneath the engine pan are used on all Graham-Paige engines. Those who work around motors will find that everything is much cleaner when these vapors are not blown over the engine by the blast from the fan.

PROVING THAT STYLE IS INDEPENDENT OF PRICE

THE tremendous popular enthusiasm which is everywhere greeting the new style Willys-Knight Six proves how widespread is the demand for just such a car.

By the thousands who have always desired a Knight-motored car, but who until now have been restrained by the necessarily higher cost of the patented double sleeve-valve engine, this beautiful new Six is welcomed as history's finest Willys-Knight value.

By present Willys-Knight owners, the new car is acclaimed as still further proof of Willys-Overland's constant progress in engineering, body design and refinement of detail.

Grace of line, richness of color, perfect symmetry and proportion distinguish the new style Willys-Knight Six as the outstanding creation of the foremost style specialists, and make available—at a low price—the beauty and artistry previously associated only with costly custom-built cars.

In presenting this new Willys-Knight—the largest and most powerful ever offered at so low a price—there has been no sacrifice in quality of materials or workmanship. Quantity production, improved manufacturing and merchandising methods, and volume sales have effected this notable achievement.

Be sure to see the new style Willys-Knight Six, and arrange for a demonstration at your earliest convenience.

At St. Louis Air Fields

In the absence of runways, spring thaws may cause a suspension of operations at Lambert Field.

On warm days at this time of the year the field becomes a morass. Pilots are forced to taxi far out into the field to gain ground for a takeoff. A mass of ruts is formed and subsequently freeze, causing numerous broken tail skids. "Billy" Brock of Detroit, of the round-the-world team of Brock and Schlee, nosed over his plane in striking a rut in landing at the field Wednesday. The propeller of the plane was damaged and Brock was delayed until repairs could be made. Col. Lindbergh, on his visit Thursday in a Falcon, flew low over the field several times before picking a likely spot on which to land. "This place is awful," he told Field Manager Scott after his plane had slithered and skidded through the mud and water. The same day a mail pilot barely cleared the hangars at one end of the field because of difficulty in getting off the ground. Runways are the only solution to the problem.

Robertson Considers Offers.

The resignation of Frank Robertson as vice president and operations manager of the Universal Air Lines System marks the temporary withdrawal from the flying industry of one of the city's aviation pioneers. Frank and his brother "Major Bill," and Maj. Lambert located the present airport, then a wheat field, from the air, in 1921. The brothers struggled through several years of "hay wire" period and kept interest in aviation alive. Robertson has several attractive aviation propositions under consideration and will return to an active place in the industry this summer, he says.

New Parks Sales Manager.

J. A. Van Loon, formerly wholesale manager for the Oliver-Cadillac Co., has been appointed sales manager of Parks Aircraft Inc., and will have charge of the distribution of the new "Parks Arrow," a cabin monoplane. Van Loon and Clyde Brayton flew to Kansas City Friday.

Air Line to El Paso.

Erle P. Halliburton, Duncan, Ok., oil man and president of the recently organized Southwestern Air Fast Express, stopped over at Lambert Field last Sunday in a tri-motored Ford, and announced his plans for a passenger line between El Paso, Tex., St. Louis and Kansas City.

The tri-motored ship, piloted by "Bob" Cantwell, cross-country flyer, is the first of five Fords ordered by Halliburton for the new route which will begin operation about May 1. Halliburton believes that aerial transportation will appeal to the oil men of the Southwest. The line will make various rail connections and stops will include Fort Worth, Dallas, Tulsa and Oklahoma City, with a "flag" stop at Springfield, Mo. Southwestern Air Fast Express, a $1,000,000 concern, was so named because the initials spell "SAFE." Cantwell will be chief pilot for the concern and while at Lambert Field invited Field Manager O. E. Scott to take a job flying one of the big ships when the company gets underway.

Photographic Course to Start.

Parks Air College photographic course will start March 15 under the direction of Lawrence Gahn, former air service and newspaper photographer. The course will be 17 weeks, including nine weeks of aerial work. Map making, mosaic composition and oblique photography will be included in the aerial division of the course. Special equipment has been purchased for the course at a cost of $10,000, according to Oliver Parks.

Ensign Geppert Commended.

Ensign John W. Geppert of the St. Louis Naval Reserve Air Squadron has been commended by Admiral R. H. Leigh, Chief of the Navy Bureau of Navigation, for successfully completing the "B" course in navigation.

Ensign Geppert was the first reserve officer to finish the course and received a high grade. He will shortly start a course in navigation for members of the Naval Reserve Squadron and a limited number of men connected with other military organizations.

Parks Plans Two Buildings.

Contracts for a new three-story administration building and for a mechanics' school building 150 by 125 feet in area, to be erected at Parks Airport, will be let this week. The structures will be of brick and steel construction and the administration building will contain a cafeteria and an assemble room, in addition to offices.

Ryan Plane Used in Canton.

A Ryan brougham was used to inaugurate the first air mail service of the Canton Government in China last week. The pilot was Gen. W. J. Chang, China's leading aviator.

Capt. Hawks Gets Robin Plane.

Capt. Frank Hawks, holder of the cross-continent nonstop record, called at the Curtiss-Robertson plant yesterday for a new Challenger-Robin, which was purchased for him by the Texas Oil Co. Capt. Hawks is connected with the sales staff of the oil company and will use the plane for business trips.

Gardner Cup Race Entries.

Entries for the Gardner Cup Race, to be held at Parks Airport on Memorial day, are being received by E. R. Alexander, race manager. The contest, a speed test for commercial planes, will be for $10,000 in prizes.

Flying School Contract Let.

The contract for the new Von Hoffmann Flying School buildings, two hangars and a barracks for 100 students, has been let to J. S. Alberici, who recently completed other buildings at Lambert Field. The Von Hoffmann buildings, on the south side of the field, will be finished in stucco and the barracks will be of residential design. Work will begin in about 10 days.

New Robertson Salesmen.

Charles O. Bedell, a graduate of the Robertson Flying School, has been placed in charge of sales of the school at Lambert Field. J. K. Cummings, another Robertson graduate, has taken a position in the downtown office of the Universal Aviation Corporation.

Order for 50 Altimeters.

The Mahoney-Ryan Aircraft Co. last week placed orders for 50 altimeters and tachometers for new Ryan broughams powered with Wright J-6 motors. The instrumenst will be supplied by the Consolidated Instrument Co. of America.

Airport Attaches Elect.

The Parks Airport Chapter of the N. A. A., composed of 95 attaches of the airport, met Wednesday night and elected Lieutenant-Colonel John A. Paegelow, commandant of Scott Field; Maj. Albert Bond Lambert, and Phil Love honorary members. About 300 students and guests attended the meeting, in addition to members, and were entertained with an illustrated lecture on bombing by Lieut. W. R. Taylor of Scott Field.

325 Motors Received.

Four freight cars, containing 325 OX-5 motors* were received last week by the Robertson Aircraft Corporation from the Curtiss Aeroplane Co., to be overhauled. The Robertson company had previously received two carloads of motors from the Curtiss company.

Plane Delivered in Florida.

E. P. Lott, operations manager for National Air Transport at the Chicago terminal, and Mrs. Lott arrived at Lambert Field Tuesday in the regular passenger plane and departed next day for Florida in a new Curtiss-Robin, which is to be delivered to a purchaser.

Barling Plane Gives Thrill.

Barney Zimmerly of Marshall, Mo., who is demonstrating the new Barling training plane, gave the students at Parks Airport a thrill last week. Zimmerly's handling of the little ship was spectacular.

Start Erecting Radio Station.

M. L. Erickson and F. R. Robinson of the Aeronautical Division, Department of Commerce, are here to superintend the installation of the new radio station for Lambert Field. The station and tower will be erected on Natural Bridge road at the extreme Southeast corner of the airport sites, well out of the way of planes coming in for landings. Weather reports and other data necessary to air travel will be sent direct to the operating companies over direct telephone and ticker system.

Universal Selects Sales Manager.

J. G. Lamb, formerly with the Mid-plane Flying School, Minneapolis, has been appointed sales manager of the Universal Aviation School with headquarters here.

Buys Ryan Brougham.

S. V. Kramer, chief pilot for the United States Air Lines of Cleveland, accepted delivery on a new Ryan brougham Friday and flew the ship to Cleveland.

Fourteen Robins Built in Week.

Fourteen new "Robins" were turned out at the Curtiss-Robertson plant during the week. All of the planes were immediately shipped or flown to purchasers in various parts of the country. Gentry Shelton flew one of the ships to Fort Worth, Tex., for the Texas Air Transport Co., and another, powered with a Challenger engine, will be placed in the mail service between Houston, Tex., and Atlanta, Ga.

Inspector for Lambert Field.

G. W. Faulkner, an inspector for the Engineering Division of the Department of Commerce, is now stationed at Lambert Field to pass on each plane manufactured or overhauled there. All new planes approved by Faulkner will bear a Government insignia.

Sight-Seeing Fare Reduced.

The charge for brief aerial sight-seeing trips in planes of the Universal Air Lines has been reduced from $5 to $3. A large sight-seeing business is anticipated this summer with the reduced price.

Distributer Visits Ryan Plant.

W. T. Ponder, the new Mahoney-Ryan distributer in Northern Texas, visited the plant here during the week. Ponder was an American ace and has a record of 11 enemy planes, which he shot down while flying with the Lafayette Escadrille and the American air forces.

St. Louis-Chicago Travel Grows.

The number of passengers on the St. Louis-Chicago route has been increasing gradually. The planes have been operating close to schedule despite bad weather.

Wright Engine Tested.

The first of the new Wright J-6 engines to be tried out here was tested in flight by J. J. Harrigan, test pilot for Mahoney-Ryan, Thursday.

Students Buy Old Plane.

Four students of the Robertson Flying School pooled funds and bought an old Standard training plane to practice on. The Standards have been replaced by new production ships in the school. A number of the old planes have been purchased by students.

Three Women Enter School.

Following the success of Mrs. — W. Stewart, 8005 Kingsbury place, in qualifying for a Private Pilot's License, three other young women have enrolled in the Von Hoffmann Flying School and are hopeful of becoming pilots shortly. Mrs. Stewart plans to buy a plane this summer for a vacation tour.

Aerial Tour of Florida.

"Red" Jackson, test pilot for the Curtiss-Robertson Co., returned home during the week following an aerial tour to Florida and New York. "Red" had his picture taken with Mayor "Jimmie" Walker at New York, where he received an enthusiastic reception because of his recent achievement in setting the "barrel-roll" record.

Fokker Refueled at Port.

A Fokker transport, one of the Western Air Express fleet, was refueled at Lambert Field Wednesday en route from New Jersey to San Francisco. Cy Morehouse was the pilot.

Phil Ball Flies West.

Phil DeC. Ball, baseball magnate, his pilot, Frank Dunn, and Capt. Harry Young, regular army instructor for the Thirty-fifth Division Air Unit, took off last Sunday in Ball's Ryan brougham for California. Capt. Young is expected back this week with a new Douglas 02H observation plane, and will return immediately to the Douglas factory at Santa Monica for a second ship.

Home from Tour of Southwest.

Bernard Von Hoffmann, vice-president of the Von Hoffmann Aircraft Co., accompanied by Mrs. Von Hoffmann and their pilot, Elmer Lindenberg, returned to St. Louis during the week from an aerial tour of the Southwest.

Parks Airport Visitors.

Visitors at Parks Airport during the week included J. J. Watson of the Pittsburg Plate Glass Co., in a Pitcairn; H. S. Myhrer, in a Simplex monoplane, from Los Angeles; M. M. Ruber from Chicago in a Commandaire, and E. S. Beardsley, in a Stinson, bound for Hot Springs, Ark., from Chicago.

Two New Branches For Frampton Co.

Opening of two new Hudson-Essex agencies, to be operated by the Hudson-Frampton Motor Co., Hudson-Essex distributer here, was announced yesterday by S. E. Hanes, general sales manager.

One of the new agencies is located at 7195 Manchester avenue Maplewood. The other is at 317 Lindenwood avenue, St. Charles, Mo. James E. Hilton, a member of the Hudson-Frampton sales promotion staff for the past years, will be manager of the Maplewood branch, with L. M. Baum in charge of used car and service activities.

Norman E. Thaxton will be manager of the St. Charles branch.

Self Adjustable Tie Rod Ends.

The ball and socket type of steering knuckle tie rod ends on Dodge Brothers Senior Six are provided with a unique arrangement for taking up wear and play automatically. Two crescent-shaped hardened steel pieces held in place by a retaining spring surround the ball. The spring automatically moves the shoe in a circular path far enough to take up any lost motion.

MEN WANTED FOR AVIATION

That the 1929 manufacture of airplanes in the United States will create big pay jobs for over 100,000 skilled workmen is the statement of a prominent aircraft official.

Eight men are needed on the ground for every pilot in the air, it is stated, and salaries range from $50 per week up for aviation trained men.

The five fundamentals of aviation which Government-licensed aviation experts must know can now be mastered in a home study course available from Los Angeles, which is rapidly becoming the aviation center of the nation.

Those interested in taking up aviation are urged to immediately write the Ace School of Aviation, Suite 502, 6636 Hollywood Blvd., Los Angeles, Calif.

THE RECORD-BREAKING NEW NASH "400" from 9th to 4th place in just 6 months!

IN DOLLARS AND CENTS VOLUME, ACCORDING TO OFFICIAL FIGURES

(Ford Excluded)

On July 1, 1928, Nash stood ninth in dollars and cents volume of sales, exclusive of Ford, according to the official figures for the year ending at that date.

On January 1, 1929, just six months later, according to the same official figures, Nash stood fourth.

In this very brief period of time the new Nash "400" has completely changed the automobile picture of America.

With unmistakable enthusiasm, motorists everywhere have placed their stamp of approval upon this new Nash—making it, by a tremendous margin, the outstanding motor car success of modern automobile history.

Why? Because Nash gives them the Twin-Ignition motor . . . gives them cars equipped with the Bijur centralized chassis lubrication system . . . with hydraulic shock absorbers . . . with bumpers front and rear . . . spare tire lock . . . cars completely, luxuriously equipped . . . at no extra cost.

Ninth to fourth place in just six months, because the new Nash "400" is the only car of all the new cars with every new and progressive feature!

The New NASH "400"

Leads the World in Motor Car Value

IMPORTANT "400" FEATURES—
Twin-Ignition motor
12 Aircraft-type spark plugs

VALUE OF 1928 CAR EXPORTS WAS $522,097,974

Total in 1927 Was $117,398,369 Less Than Figure for Last Year.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

DETROIT, Mich., Feb. 23.—During the year ended Dec. 31, 1928, the total value of automotive exports amounted to $522,097,974. The 1928 export value total exceeded the corresponding 1927 figures by $117,398,369 or 29 per cent. The relative importance of the automotive export market can be rather readily illustrated by showing that during the eyar just closed, the value of automotive exports was nearly $75,000,000 in excess of the total wholesale value of passenger cars and trucks produced in the United States during 1914.

The recent expansion that has taken place in the automotive export field over the past few years is easily understood when we compare the annual value figures of automotive exports for the past few years. For example, in 1921, the total value of automotive exports amounted to $81,928,347, while in 1928 exports had increased to approximately $525,000,000, thereby indicating an increase during the period of 541 per cent. During the period between the two years just mentioned, an uninterrupted increase has taken place. The following table of figures clearly illustrate the steady expansion that has taken place in the export market:

Value of Automotive Exports.

1921..	$ 81,928,347	1925..	$316,909,125
1922..	97,618,756	1926..	335,799,814
1923..	164,985,237	1927..	404,783,120
1924..	205,489,889	1928..	522,097,974

A study of the growth in the number of units exported from the United States also illustrates the remarkable expansion that has taken place in the automotive export market. During 1921, 30,950 passenger cars and trucks were exported from the United States. During the following two years, a marked increase took place in the automotive export market. This expansion can be readily comprehended if a comparison is made of the 1921 figures with the 1923 exports of 127,035 passenger cars and 24,861 trucks. During the period between 1925 and 1927, passenger car exports do not show anywhere near the same rate of increase that was evident during the few years previous to that time.

The expansion already noted in the value of automotive exports during 1928, naturally held true in the number of units exported, 368,328 passenger cars were exported from the United States during 1928. This represented an increase of 89,580 units, or 32.1 per cent over the 278,748 passenger cars exported during the previous year. The total number of passenger cars exported from the United States in 1928 amounted to 9.6 per cent of the 3,826,613 cars produced in the United States during this same period.

Two-Shoe, 4-Wheel Brakes on Essex

Full floating, self aligning, two shoe four wheel brakes provide two-way braking efficiency on new Essex Challenger. The brake shoes float in position and present the full surface of the lining at the instant of brake application. According to R. C. Frampton, president of the Hudson-Frampton Motor Co., Hudson-Essex distributer.

With this design of floating shoe it is impossible for the brakes to drag. This improvement will increase the service life of the brake and furnish a trouble free braking system. Ordinary brakes have from 30 per cent to 50 per cent efficiency upon application when the car is reversing. The Essex Challenger full floating brake shoes provide 100 per cent efficiency either forward or back," Frampton says.

"These shoes are lined with a pressure molded lining. This lining is impervious to water and oil, providing full brake pressure power under all weather conditions. Tests conducted showed that service wear did not detract from their efficiency because the lining is identical in texture throughout.

"The whole braking system is an example of simplified design typical in the new Essex. A single adjustment easily made without tools is provided to compensate for wear. This is the only adjustment necessary to maintain the full effectiveness of the braking system.

New Distributers Signed by Gardner

Since the close of the National Automobile Show in New York City on Jan. 12, 25 new Gardner distributers and dealers have been added, according to Russell E. Gardner Jr., president of the Gardner Motor Co. These merchandisers are located in 25 cities in 14 States of the country.

In the past six months more than 200 distributers and dealers have joined the Gardner organization. This representation covers 26 States, extending from coast to coast, and from the Gulf to Canada, and embraces some 87 cities. This is another good indication of the success of our product and of the soundness of our adherence to the policy of manufacturing eight-in-line automobiles exclusively—incidentally an idea which Gardner pioneered.

More Marmon Dealers.

Marmon has increased its organization of distributors and dealers to the highest point in its history as a result of the popularity that has been attained by the two lines of Marmon straight eights this year.

CAPT. IRA EAKER,

WHO won distinction as the chief pilot of the record-breaking Question Mark, is about to attempt a dawn to dusk flight from the United States to Panama. Capt. Eaker will use the latest model P-12 pursuit ship for the 2000-mile hop, making five stops for refueling, using special transfer equipment evolved from the Question Mark's recent flight.

International Car Race to Be Held in Ireland This Year

The Royal Automobile Club has announced that it will again hold an International Touring Car Road race in Ireland this year.

Prizes totaling nearly $10,000 will be distributed, plus the Tourist Trophy, a gift of the R. A. C.

This race was inaugurated last year and attained considerable popularity, seven foreign countries participating in it.

It is a sort of "Poor Man's Race" in which only touring cars compete. That is, models of types which are being sold to the public. Manufacturers, providing they do not alter engine dimensions, are permitted to improve these existing models and incorporate experimental features.

The race is a test of equipment as well as cars, for all the equipment of the normal touring car must be carried. Engines will have to be started by means of a self-starter.

Aug. 17 is the date for the start. All entries must be in by Aug. 1.

The road course over which the race will be contested is in the vicinity of Belfast and is known as the Ards Circuit. It is 13½ miles long and cars will have to cover the circuit 30 times, a distance of approximately 400 miles.

Although it is a handicap event a system is being adopted whereby the first car past the winning post is the actual winner and all cars start together. This is made possible by crediting the handicaped cars with a specified number of laps before the race.

A model of the car entered must have been described fully in a catalogue published by the manufacturers, or agents, of that car prior to Jan. 31, 1929. The car must be normally constructed and not what is commonly known as a racing car.

Judging from the regulation inquiries which have been received by the R. A. C., including eight from five foreign countries, the race promises to be a greater event this year than in 1928.

Italy, it is understood, is preparing a special car for the race.

Heavy Orders for New Senior

Public acceptance of the new Senior Six models recently announced by Dodge Brothers Corporation is reflected by hundreds of unfilled orders from dealers over the country. Production on the six body types is being pushed on overtime schedules to eliminate all possible delays in retail deliveries.

"Typical Dodge dependability with a new era in motor car style was the verdict of those who first drove the new Senior Six," a dealer wrote. "Its appearance, mechanical refinements and added luxury have made an immediate appeal to the buying public. Its smooth, powerful performance is more than meeting the expectations of those who purchased following the introduction of the car.

"Interior appointments of the car are attracting most favorable comment from women who demand the latest refinements in upholstery and finish. Graceful exterior body lines have been attained at no sacrifice to comfort or roominess for every passenger."

Lurie Opens Store At 3504 S. Grand

A new South Side branch for the Lurie Motor Car Co., Studebaker distributer, was opened at 3504 South Grand boulevard yesterday, with both sales and service facilities being offered motorists. Oscar G. Snippen, formerly on the sales staff of a prominent South St Louis automobile agency, has been appointed manager of the new store.

Express Highway to New York.

Work is being completed on New Jersey's superhighway, leading from New York's Holland vehicular tunnel to Trenton, and accounted the msot extensive accommodation for motorists in the world. It is estimated that this roadway will carry more than 20,000,000 automobiles in a single year, or nearly as many as the entire registration of the United States. The entire route is protected from cross traffic, with a number of ramps providing for local connections.

Public Demand Cause of Better Cars Being Built

Buick Sales Chief Tells of 25 Years' Progress of Industry.

FLINT, Mich., Feb. 23.—"No one attending the recent National Automobile Show in New York could escape the conviction that the motor cars now being offered to the public are by long odds the finest motor cars ever built. No matter from what angle they are viewed —appearance, performance or durability—the automobiles for 1929 reveal a tremendous margin of progress over those of any other year since the industry's inception," C. W. Churchill, general sales manager of the Buick Motor Car Co., declared in an interview today.

"All this," Churchill said, "is probably only natural, for never has greater attention been focused by manufacturers on the one objective of making motor cars better. The manufacturer has no choice in the matter, for the public has learned to judge automobile values accurately, and the demand for real value in return for the public's dollar can not be disregarded," Churchill declared.

"And progress in greater values was evident on all sides, at the show. Progress in motor car appearance—in engineering design—and in every other phase of motor car value.

"A fact which we have long recognized at Buick, and which has guided the whole process of designing and building our cars, is that mere change does not necessarily represent progress. Because this is true, we have adhered consistently to definite principles of chassis design and the valve-in-head principle of engine design, which Buick not only pioneered but developed over 25 years, and to numerous other features long associated with Buick cars.

The tendency to seek the real facts bearing on every situation will be found pervading the industry today. It has spurred the development of such facilities as the famous General Motors proving ground, which introduced a new and—at the time of its establishment—higher appreciation of the lengths to which manufacturers should go in preparation of their product. It has accounted very largely for the tremendously increased dollar value represented by the cars at this year's show as compared with those of, say, five years ago—an increase really amazing.

It was apparent at the show that the improvements in the motor cars before the public during 1929 cover the whole range of automotive value. There is extremely heavy emphasis upon appearance, as a well-defined trend toward graceful lines and appealing color effects. There is, in many directions, evidence of continued effort toward performance—an item of value which we have always considered paramount, particularly when interpreted to include endurance. The fact that sixes, as evidenced by volume, very nearly monopolize the industry today contains within itself full justification for the assertion that motor car values for 1929 will be far and away greater than ever before, and that six-cylinder cars will lead in greater volume than ever before. And the recently noted attention to the comfort of driver and passengers has obviously been continued in preparation of virtually all the new cars.

Speaking in the light of careful observation at the show—as well as with intimate knowledge of the advances embodied in every element of our own 1929 car's value, it is possible to predict for the coming 12 months an era of unprecedented acceptance of motor cars—a period during which their usefulness will attain new peaks, and the service they render become more indispensable than ever.

Peerless Output To Be Increased

Seventy cars a day is the present production of Peerless Motor Car Corporation, according to information from the factory in Cleveland. By the end of February this will have been increased to 100 cars a day if the plans of Peerless executives materialize.

It is further predicted by R. N. Mosher, general sales manager of the company, that the continuance of the present influx of orders might present difficulties in meeting spring demands. The past month was the largest January in Peerless history, during which shipments from the factory exceeded 1200 cars, outstepping all previous January records by 400 units, he reported.

Other records established in the month of January were a single day's orders for 8236 cars, taken at the New York automobile show, and one day's shipment from the factory of 142 cars.

During the recent Chicago automobile show the incentive was to gain dealer connections. By the closing date, 71 new dealer contracts had been signed.

Studebaker Radio Over N. B. C. Chains

Studebaker has gone on the air. Starting Feb. 3, the first of a series of weekly broadcasts was introduced Studebaker Champions to radio listeners through a coast-to-coast hook-up of stations associated with the National Broadcasting chain. They will be heard every Sunday evening from 10:15 to 10:45, Eastern standard time.

The Studebaker Champions are a 30-piece orchestra led by Jean Goldkette, who, in the opinion of well-known critics, has organized more outstanding dance orchestras than any other leader.

Lincoln Sales Gain By 75 Per Cent

The Lincoln Motor Co. has enjoyed during the past automobile show season the largest volume of sales in its history, with 75 per cent more orders on hand now than at the same time last year, according to an announcement by the company.

Purchases of the Lincoln were heavy both at the Automobile Salon in New York in December and at the same exhibition in Chicago in late January and early February. At these salons the custom body builders displayed several new body creations developed for the Lincoln chassis.

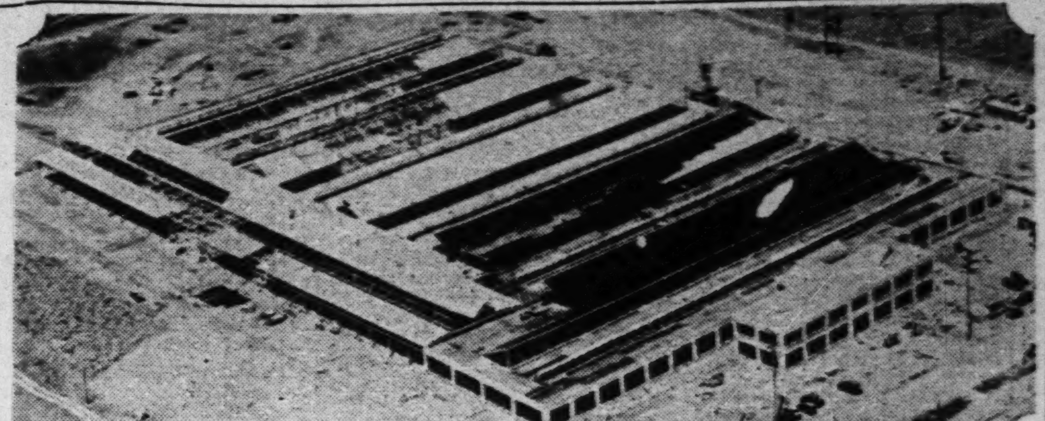
Sales of Lincolns in New York were approximately 100 per cent higher than at any previous salon. The Lincoln company now reports that dealers' orders for January were the largest ever received for that month. The Lincoln plant is operating at full capacity.

While impetus to Lincoln sales no doubt has been given by the addition of many new body types and also to important chassis improvements, based on the results of continued test work carried on by Lincoln engineers, Lincoln officials were inclined to attribute the sales increase largely to a growing appreciation on the part of the public for what the Lincoln car offers in the way of precision, workmanship, beauty and comfort.

Nile-Congo Highway Opened.

A new motor road connecting the rivers Nile and Congo in Africa has been opened. It runs from Stanleyville, in Belgian Congo, north to Buta and then west Rejaf, in Anglo-Egyptian Sudan. The length of the new road is 700

MAMMOTH LOS ANGELES OVERLAND PLANT



AN aerial view of the new manufacturing unit of Willys-Overland, Inc., opened last week in Los Angeles by special ceremonies, attended by President John N. Willys. The plant covers 20 acres and has 300,000 square feet of factory floor space.

Saturation Point Distant, Says Willys

Continued growth of the automobile industry may be expected for many years to come in the opinion of John N. Willys, president of Willys-Overland, Inc., and chairman of the foreign trade committee of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce.

"Numerous factors," Willys declared, "have combined to make the much-discussed saturation point look like a vanishing point at present." Specifically, the Toledo manufacturer cited the discovery that used cars could be accepted as part payment of new cars; installment selling; removal of the excise tax; car-per-person ownership, and the recent swift expansion of sales in foreign countries.

"It was all of 15 years ago that the 'saturation point' began to be regarded with interest and alarm," Willys continued. "Each year, at automobile show time, the question of saturation comes up for discussion. Meanwhile, however, the market has continued to absorb more automobiles. The industry passed the 4,500,000 production mark in 1928, and has an excellent prospect of reaching 5,000,000 in 1929. Whenever the mythical saturation point seems to be near, some new impetus arrives to drive it away.

Gardner Griffin On Radiator Cap

One of the most strikingly beautiful ornamental features of the new Gardner Eight-in-line series for 1929 is the newly designed, chromo nickel-finished Griffin surmounting the radiator cap. This emblem, known as the Gardner Griffin, is an allegorical animal symbolizing speed and stamina—two of the outstanding characteristics of the Gardner Eight-in-line. This Griffin had its inception in the Gardner family coat-of-arms many generations ago.

Shock Absorbe Test Succe

Probably for the history of the auto every type of road of the country has "proving ground" for tive device before it the public.

"It is very doubtful device was ever put natural tests before to the motorists of th was the new Gabriel ic shock absorber," H. C. who is introducing here, declared.

"It is literally a new type of hydraulic under actual driving many different make the roads of virtually —the smoothest of ways, over the Rocky across the southwest and over the roughest er sections. This was ble because of the Gabriel Co. and the tributing service organ reaches into every part of try."

DE SOTO SIX
A CHRYSLER MOTORS PRODUCT

Shock Absorbers Test Successfully

Probably for the first time in the history of the automobile business every type of road in every section of the country has been used as the "proving ground" for an automotive device before it was shown to the public.

"It is very doubtful whether any device was ever put to such rigid natural tests before being offered to the motorists of the nation as was the new Gabriel triple-hydraulic shock absorber," H. C. Merry, who is introducing this product here, declared.

"It is literally a fact that this new type of hydraulic was proved under actual driving, installed on many different makes of cars, over the roads of virtually every State—the smoothest of modern highways, over the Rocky Mountains, across the southwestern deserts, and over the roughest trails of other sections. This was made possible because of the resources of the Gabriel Co. and the complete distributing service organization which reaches into every part of the country."

AUTO OUTPUT FOR WEEK WAS 122,500 CARS

This Was 49 Per Cent Gain Over Same Period Last Year.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

DETROIT, Mich., Feb. 23.—There has been but little change during the past two weeks in the favorable situation surrounding the automobile industry. Production of the passenger car manufacturers is increasing gradually and is holding strong to record levels.

Output for the past week was approximately 122,500 units which shows an increase of 2.2 per cent above that of last week and an increase of 49 per cent above the corresponding week last year.

The most aggressive production schedules are to be found in the low-priced field where Ford, Chevrolet, Whippet and others in that class are enjoying an unusually early seasonal demand. Sales are still strong and give indication of further improvement in the near future. New car stocks are increasing but may be classified as low.

Medium-priced car sales have dropped off recently but the weakness in this market is not expected to develop further. High-priced cars are moving better. The next few weeks, showing possibilities of more seasonal weather, should witness a general expansion of the new car market.

For the first time in several weeks truck production has not increased quite as rapidly as passenger car output. While operations are still heavy and activities are maintained at around record levels, the improvement is seen to be more gradual. Conditions affecting this branch of the industry, however, appear to be sound and no weakness is expected to develop in the near future. Sales are strong, with heavy duty units receiving more than average amount of public interest.

The tire industry is operating on production schedules that seem to be the highest in its history. Production which a month ago was said to be at peak levels has increased substantially. Original equipment business continues to be the most active, while consumer sales are to be classified as fair and showing but little tendency to improve during the past few weeks. Better weather conditions, however, will undoubtedly remedy this situation and release a flood of consumer orders.

Passport Not Needed In Touring Mexico

LAREDO, Tex., Feb. 23. — In order to encourage American automobile tourists to visit Mexico, the Government has issued an order which does away with the passport requirement. In its place, all that is now necessary is for the visitor to obtain a credential from a Chamber of Commerce anywhere in the United States certifying as to his identity and good character. This certificate will be recognized by immigration and custom officials at all border gateways and the tourists admitted expeditiously.

The new highway between Laredo and Monterey, is now being placed in excellent condition in expectation of heavy tourist traffic during the coming summer. Even tourist camps, similar to those that are found in the United States, are being built at points along the highway. This is something new in the way of accommodations for tourists in Mexico. A regular bus line has also been established between Laredo and Monterey.

Nash Now Fourth In Auto Industry

KENOSHA, Wis. Feb. 23.—Letters and telegrams of congratulation came to Charles W. Nash from all points of the compass Tuesday of the past week when he celebrated his sixty-fifth birthday.

On the same day it was announced that the Nash Motors Co. has risen from ninth to fourth place among national automobile manufacturers, not including Ford, in the last six months of 1928, and since the bringing out of its new "400" series cars.

The announcement covering the automobile year which runs from July to July was based on the dollars and cents business done by the various companies.

Windsor Chief Home After Eastern Tour

Helm Walker, vice president in charge of sales of Windsor Corp., has just returned from an Eastern tour, making stopovers at New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Pittsburg and Chicago, as well as several points in Canada.

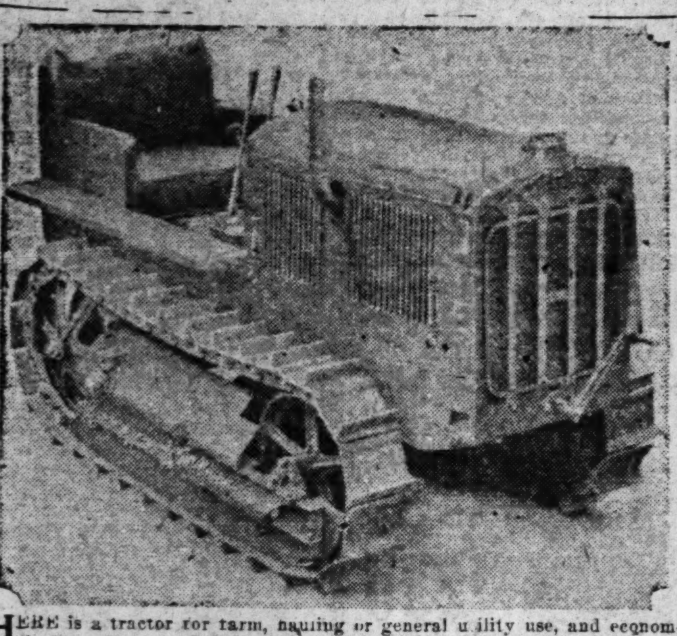
Walker reports he found a most healthy condition existing among Windsor dealers and he predicts a wonderful future for the new Windsor White Prince line.

Windsor Corp., is a division of the Moon Motor Car Co.

Spark Knock Cause

Detonation, or spark noises, familiar to experienced motorists, is caused by unburned combustible gas retreating before the fire emanating from the spark plug. This unburned gas is forced into recesses in the combustion chamber until the pressure rises to a point that causes it to ignite with great force. This, then, causes a noise known as spark knock. A symmetrical chamber, such as the Nash "400," and twin ignition reduces the tendency toward spark noises as well as adding to power and speed.

SOMETHING NEW IN TRACTORS



HERE is a tractor for farm, hauling or general utility use, and economical to operate. It is the Caterpillar, No. 10, distributed here by the Fabick Tractor Co. Models of the line were exhibited at Auto Show.

Let a Friend Take the Wheel Occasionally

You Will Be Surprised at the Number of Mechanical Shortcomings That Will Be Disclosed—Things That You Have Overlooked.

Allowing another person to drive one's automobile, as a valuable means of determining the car's shortcomings, is a method advised by many service authorities.

A driver can get so accustomed to pampering a certain part of the car that he is not conscious of in convenience. He drives along day after day never really aware of what annoyance he is putting up with.

Let him invite someone else to drive the car, and he may be startled at the number of inconveniences he has been taking as a matter of course.

These folks who ride along in the car and "Yes" at everything that requires a "No" aggravate the trouble. If the car owner has the slightest idea that everything is not as it should be, his advisers promptly discourage the thought. "The car is a corker," they tell him. And he believes it.

Perhaps the fallacy of this process would strike home rather forcibly if it were set down here as fact that much of the inefficiency of brakes is due to owners not being fully aware that the brakes are out of adjustment. Many a clutch is just bordering on chronic slipping, but the driver is not entirely acquainted with this sort of thing and does not realize that he is courting trouble. He goes on indefinitely shifting gears on hills he ought to be able to climb in "high," and dragging behind when traffic picks up. He figures it is simply normal aging of the car and lets it go at that.

Every motorist appreciates quietness in engine operation and yet anyone who stands along the road will hear enough loose tappets to lead to the conclusion that cars are selected for their noise. Motorists gradually get accustomed to the tapping, never noticing it when one or two more valves join the chorus. The result is they are soon standing for the most unbelievable sort of annoyances.

The best way for the motorist to find out what's wrong with his own car is to let someone else try it. The moment a car owner tries it he will be surprised at the process of psycho-analysis which it entails.

Decarbonizer Keeps Chryslers Clean

Announcement by Chrysler, through L. M. Stewart, president of Midwest Motors, Inc., distributer here, of a "decarbonizer," a device employing a new fluid, "Carbosolve," to free accumulation of excessive carbon deposits, causing carbon "ping" in engines, and to assure the continued satisfaction of "clean engine" performance, is being hailed as a real boon by motorists throughout the country.

"Carbon and other foreign matter becomes bound to the cylinder heads and upper walls and to the piston heads by a tarry substance, and this formation, as it increases, becomes a source of annoyance and expense to motorists. The more-or-less frequent removal of the engine head and mechanical scraping away of the carbon has come to be accepted generally as an unavoidable nuisance, because it has been a necessary periodical step in keeping automobile engines clean and operating properly ever since the first automobile was built.

"After long and extensive research, working in conjunction with leading chemists, we have developed 'Carbosolve,' a fluid which dissolves the carbon binder effectively, freeing the carbon particles and allowing them to be blown out the exhaust. We have also devised the 'Decarbonizer' equipment, which provides a convenient, economical method for periodic use of 'Carbosolve' by motorists who want to enjoy the superior performance of a 'clean' engine at all times.

"The 'Decarbonizer' equipment includes a fixture—located on the body dash under the hood on the right side—which holds a small standard screw-top container in which are six ounces of the 'Carbosolve' fluid. The design permits easy replacement of empty containers without handling of the fluid.

"The fixture is connected to the inlet manifold and is controlled by a plunger on the back of the body dash under the cowl. When the plunger is pulled, with the engine running at a fair speed and a normal driving temperature the 'Carbosolve' is drawn into the engine, thoroughly saturating the combustion chambers, and the engine is stopped.

"After the injection of the 'Carbosolve' into the engine, the engine should be allowed to stand for several hours, or preferably over night to allow the carbon binder to be dissolved. When the engine is again started the loosened carbon particles and other foreign matter will be blown out the exhaust.

"This chemical process minimizes the customary mechanical operation of removing the cylinder head and cleaning out the combustion chamber."

Essex Precision Standards High

"There used to be a time," says S. G. Bates, chief engineer of the Hudson Motor Car Co., "when folks ascribed a certain mechanical superiority to high-priced cars of European manufacture and justified the opinion by referring to Old World precision standards that were more exacting than the standards in use in American automobile plants.

"The fact is that we, of Hudson, observe rather unusual precision standards, which are perhaps best exemplified by citing the standards which we observe in building the Essex. The paper on which the average newspaper is printed is about 5-1000th inch thick. Thinnest tissue paper, such as the finest cigarette paper, measures about 1-1000th inch in thickness. Now, with the Essex, we have 139 operations in which the absolutely insisted upon accuracy standard is just half of 1-1000th inch. And there are quite a number of operations such, for instance, as pertain to the crankshaft, where the accuracy must be as great as a quarter of 1-1000th inch. Another 509 operations call for a tolerance of 1-1000th inch; 610 demand no more than 2-1000th inch and so on, the coarsest tolerance, limited to only 195 operations being 5-1000th inch.

"To many persons such close standards, equaling and in not a few instances surpassing best high-price car standards in vogue in Europe, may seem unusual when applied to the lower-priced Essex. But it is also true that our quantity production is the one thing that makes adherence to so rigid an accuracy code possible."

Continental Motors Making Aero Engines

Continental Motors Corporation of Detroit and Muskegon, Mich., has announced a new line of aircraft motors. A special aeronautical department has been installed at the Detroit plant.

The first Continental series, in which there will be three types of radial engines, five, seven and nine cylinders—embodies the proven factors of foreign and American built aircraft motors, plus a number of new features. Robert Insley, one of the well-known experts in aircraft engine production, is chief of this division.

The first of the new aircraft engines to be shown is the seven-cylinder, air-cooled, fixed radial, direct drive. The cylinders are 4⅝ inch bore, 4⅝ inch stroke, 77.7 cubic inches displacement per cylinder, 543 cubic inches total piston displacement, five to one compression ratio. This engine has 150 brake horsepower at 1840 revolutions per minute. Fuel consumption is 13 gallons per hour full throttle or eight gallons per hour cruising. Oil consumption is one-third gallon per hour full throttle and one-quarter gallon per hour cruising.

METAL TIRE COVERS MAKE APPEARANCE

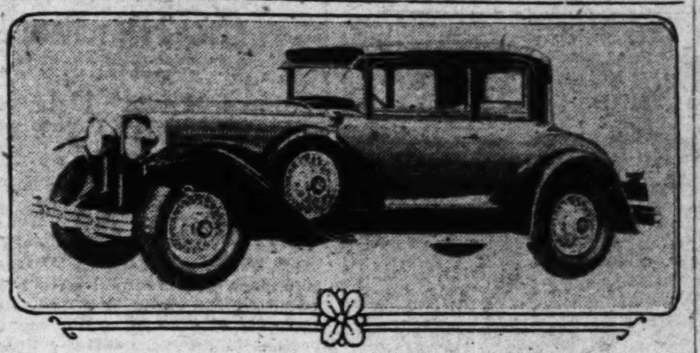
Being Offered Exclusively by Hupmobile Factory.

Metal tire covers, an innovation in accessories, are now being supplied to cover the spare tires in the fender wells of all Hupmobile sport model cars, according to George Weber, president of the Weber Implement and Automobile Co., Hupmobile distributer here.

The new covers fit over the tires in the same manner that cloth covers do and are made of the same metal that goes into automobile bodies. They are said to be more practicable since there is no wearing them out, and, as they are done in Duco, they retain their luster, adding an unusual note of neatness.

A Milwaukee manufacturer is now supplying the metal covers exclusively to the Hupp Motor Car Co., according to Weber, and they are being distributed only by Hupmobile distributers and dealers. Motorists who have older Hupmobile sport model cars equipped with cloth tire covers can obtain the newer kind at a nominal sum, Weber stated.

NEW 4-PASSENGER BUICK COUPE



HERE is a new addition to the Buick Silver Anniversary line. It is the four-passenger coupe on 121-inch chassis, powered by the 91 h. p. engine. The Vesper Buick Auto Co., has it on display.

Pierce-Arrow Adds More Men to Staff

BUFFALO, N. Y., Feb. 23.—The tremendous demand for the new Pierce-Arrow straight eight, which won such popular favor at automobile shows throughout the country, is reflected in the big increase in the number of men employed in the 45-acre plant of the Pierce-Arrow Motor Car Co. here.

"The company is now employing more men than at any time during recent years," B. H. Warner, vice president in charge of manufacturing declared today.

"During the past six weeks more than 1000 men have been added, until at present we have almost reached the peak.

"According to present indications, the steadily increasing demand for the new cars will require the services of more men than have been employed at any time in previous years.

Present employment at the Pierce-Arrow plant is 75 per cent above last year's total during the corresponding period, according to Warner.

G. M. Williams, Marmon president, was the head of one of the country's largest airplane manufacturing companies during the war. He supervised the production of more than 3500 airplanes for the allied forces.

Poiret Purchases Oldsmobile Landau

The beauty of an American designed and manufactured automobile has received the official seal of approval from one of the leading style experts of the world. M. Paul Poiret, famous Parisian designer and stylist, during a recent visit to this country, admired and purchased an Oldsmobile de luxe landau for his personal use.

Arrangements were made for the Oldsmobile de luxe landau to be delivered by the General Motors Export Co. to M. Poiret when he arrived in France on the S. S. Paris, which sailed from New York last week.

The entire transaction was started and consummated within the first few minutes following the opening of the General Motors special exhibit held concurrently with the Chicago Automobile Show. M. Poiret had just arrived in Chicago while on a lecture tour of the United States when he chanced into the General Motors display. An Oldsmobile de luxe landau in the lobby at once attracted his attention. Admiration turned to desire of ownership and soon he signed an order for the car, the first order taken at the special exhibit.

Seven Buicks Sold To Professional Men

What is thought to be a record for delivery of automobiles to professional men was made in January by the Travis Motor Car Co., St. Charles, Mo., Buick dealer, who delivered seven Silver Anniversary Buick cars to seven professional men. Of these two were lawyers, one a minister, another a dentist and three physicians.

The GREATER HUDSON

acclaimed by the smartest buyers the outstanding value above $1,000

The secret ballot that forecast what all motordom is now saying - - -

The Greater Hudson was first shown to groups of motor dealers who were asked to examine it from the standpoint of general attractiveness in lines, appearance, comfort, fittings, performance and value, and then to cast a secret ballot on which they checked their individual appraisement of every detail.

The idea was to obtain an advance indication of what the public might think of the Greater Hudson. Successful dealers are sensitive as to what the public will favor.

They are critical as to what constitutes genuine value. Self-interest dictates their choice of the cars they want to sell. It was the first time in history that a manufacturer has allowed his product to speak for itself in this manner. No claims were made. No high-powered sales pressure was applied.

These expert judges of automobile values with their own future and millions of dollars at stake registered their appraisal with the sole influence of individual self-interest.

Ordinarily dealers do not decide what cars they will sell until they know exactly what cars the public will favor. But the vote by these many dealers gave a true indication of public acceptance with the result that twice as many dealers have contracted for Hudson this year as had signed at this time one year ago. And 1928, by the way, was Hudson's biggest year.

Now by tens and tens of thousands automobile buyers are likewise casting their secret and unanimous vote for the Greater Hudson. You will see the score in 5,000 salesrooms. It is conclusive proof that the Greater Hudson is the public favorite of all cars selling above $1,000.

Won't you, too, go to your nearest Hudson dealer and make your appraisement as so many thousands have already done?

CHEVROLET TO EXHIBIT TRUCK UNITS

Armory Secured for Display Beginning Tomorrow.

An exclusive showing of every type of commercial and truck vehicle made by the Chevrolet Motor Car Co., will be held at the National Guard Armory the week beginning Monday, Feb. 25. While the public will be invited to attend, the exhibit is primarily for prospective purchasers of commercial automobile vehicles. In connection with the showing there will be on display every type of body now made for Chevrolet chassis. E. W. Burger, sales promotion manager of the Chevrolet Motor Car Co. factory here, will be the show manager.

The Chevrolet chassis to be on display will range from ½-ton to 1½-ton in size. Represented in the body displays will be stake, truck and panel body models, coupes with detachable box deck bodies and several types of school bus bodies.

Among the St. Louis body makers to display at the show are: The Bailey Auto Body Co., the Martin-Parry Co., Hummell Body Co., Herman Body Co., Springfield Wagon and Trailer Co., Whitehead & Kales Co. and the St. Louis Body & Equipment Co. In all, 91 vehicles and bodies will be on display.

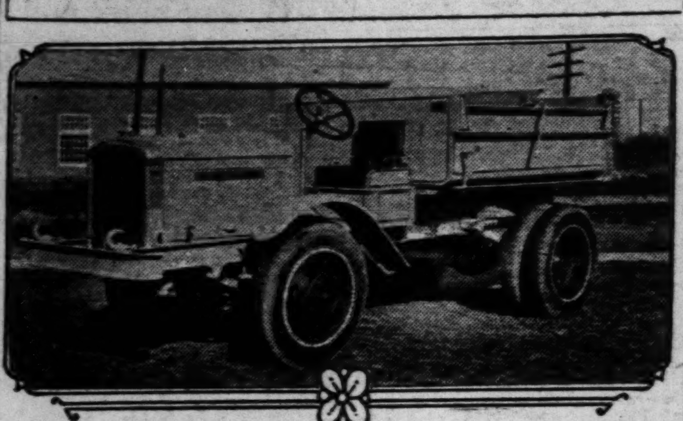
Chevrolet Holds Demonstration Week

DETROIT, Feb. 23.—Ten thousand Chevrolet dealers in every part of the country, assisted by more than 20,000 salesmen, participated the past week in National Demonstration Week, and thousands of persons took their first rides in the new Chevrolet six-cylinder car.

Although it was the first time the company had undertaken a project of this sort, sales executives, basing their opinion on the enthusiastic reports of dealers and salesmen, have already judged it as overwhelmingly successful.

Demonstration week began simultaneously last Monday in every city, town and hamlet of the country in which a Chevrolet dealer is located. Dealers arranged special mechanical displays in their salesrooms. In all cases the demonstration rides led over routes chosen to bring out every performance feature of the new six.

NEW HUG ROADBUILDER MODEL



INCLUDED in the exhibit of the Hug Truck Co., of Highland, Ill., at the recent automobile show here was this new type Hug roadbuilder truck, a vehicle especially designed for use in highway construction work. It is powered by a six-cylinder Buda engine, with five forward and two reverse speeds. It will attain a speed of 35 m. p. h. It has a maximum load capacity of 10,000 pounds.

Lack of Rail Gauge Unity Aids Trucks in Australia

Since Three Widths of Tracks Are Used, Cost of Transportation From One End of Country to Other Is Extremely Costly.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

DETROIT, Mich., Feb. 23.—"The motor truck is looked upon as a great boon to interstate commerce in Australia, which for many years has been handicapped by the lack of systematized railroad transportation facilities," says C. E. Stebbins, Australian representative of the Federal Motor Truck Co., upon his return to Detroit.

"The fundamental difficulty," Stebbins declared, "is the lack of a common gauge rail system. There are three widths of track in the Australian Commonwealth, making interstate rail shipments both costly and complicated.

"The reason for this lack of standardization in rail gauges is the fact that many of the present Australian states originated as separate settlements. Each settlement had its own government and as it prospered, put in force whatever civic improvements and transportation facilities it needed within its own territory. The chance of the individual settlements ever combining in either commerce or government was apparently either overlooked or neglected.

"Victoria uses one rail-gauge, but the adjoining State of New South Wales uses another. West Australia, uses the same gauge tracks as Queensland, on the extreme opposite side of the continent. In order to ship goods from one State to a neighboring one, the transferring of the goods from a narrow gauge rail to a wider one, or vice versa, causes endless delay and additional expense.

"The handicap to interstate rail shipments of any volume has led Australian engineers and statesmen to devote much thought and planning toward bringing about a unification of all the railroads. But the cost, reported to be $300,000,000, is considered high for a Commonwealth of 6,000,000 people to finance. Consequently, the introduction of the motor truck and the increased activity in road and highway construction are looked upon as a probable solution to this national difficulty.

Chevrolet February Output Here Set At 26,000 Units

A total output of 26,000 cars in February is planned by the production executives of the local factory of the Chevrolet Motor Car Co., it was announced yesterday by O. E. Nonn, zone sales manager. The total production here in January was 16,937 units, according to Nonn.

Can Drive by Night As Fast as by Day

With the high speeds now attainable through the development of its air-cooled motor and road-holding chassis, the Franklin Automobile Co. has adopted as standard on its new 1929 line, the headlight invented by Walter D'Arcy Ryan, director of the illuminating laboratories of General Electric Co.

The Ryan invention possesses paradoxical qualities, in that it gives a complete illumination without a semblance of glare. Thereby it combines the advantages of a long beam with the nonglare features of a short beam.

These results were obtained by Ryan after months of research, which brought about a unique combination of reflector, lamp position and a lens of his own design.

With their Ilco-Ryan lights, Franklin owners will illuminate the road for hundreds of feet ahead. The arc of the light's range is so wide that it illuminates the area 13 degrees behind the headlight position. Road signs opposite the driver's seat are clearly revealed and curves on unfamiliar highways may safely be taken at high speed. A further safety factor of the lamp rests in the fact that, because of the wide arc, illumination may be seen by drivers approaching at a right angle.

Tests have shown the headlight capable of revealing an automobile at a distance of 1000 feet, while a man walking along a road plainly comes into view at 500 feet. Yet without resort to a dimmer, refrector-tilt or other manual control, the Franklin owner may drive through city streets secure in the knowledge that no glare is being thrown into a traffic officer's eyes.

Studebaker Leader In Bus Production

Since its inception 3½ years ago, the commercial car division of the Studebaker Corporation has grown until today it is one of the three largest producers of busses in the United States, and by far the largest producer of funeral cars and ambulances, according to officials of the Lurie Motor Car Co., Studebaker distributer here.

The Studebaker commercial car line is unusually complete. It consists of the standard types of busses on the three straight eight bus chassis, the Model "77" Junior of 158-inch wheelbase, the Model "88" Special of 184-inch wheelbase and the Model "99" Heavy Duty of 184-inch wheelbase. Delivery units are offered in one-half-ton and one ton cars of panel and screen type, and in 2½, three and 3½ ton chassis for fast commercial hauling. Two funeral cars, two ambulances, police patrols and fire equipment complete the Studebaker commercial line.

N. A. C. C. Issues Annual Motor Car Handbook

Volume Gives Detailed Information on Auto Industry.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—Looking dress, bound in boards, the Official Handbook of Automobiles for 1929 issued by the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce this month begins its second quarter-century of consecutive publication.

The book has been increased in size to 6 by 9 inches. The cover is of green stock grained in the pattern of Morocco leather with lettering and embossed design in gold. The pages are printed with a tint border harmonizing with the cover.

The book gives illustrations and principal specifications of the motor vehicles now manufactured by the members of the chamber. This time there is a total of 148, made up of 91 passenger cars, two taxicabs, four motor busses and 51 commercial cars and trucks, all gasoline driven except two electric commercial vehicles.

The Handbook has several added features, among them the Preliminary Facts and Figures of the Automobile Industry that are announced each year by the Chamber just before the Automobile Shows, giving the main statistics for the past year covering production, registration, etc.

There is also a table of makes, models and prices of American passenger cars arranged alphabetically by makes. Another table gives the production and registration figures for passenger cars and motor trucks from the beginning of the industry (1895) to date.

A directory of national associations in or allied to the automobile field gives their headquarters and branch office addresses, officers, executive officials and something of their activities. Finally, there is given the organization of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce and the personnel of its score of standing committees.

"The Handbook has been in more and more demand from the motoring public in guiding their purchases of new cars and trucks, comparing the appearance and main features of the different lines.

Individuals may secure copies by sending $1 to the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, 366 Madison avenue, New York City.

New Chrysler "65" 4-Door Sedan $1145

CHRYSLER engineers from the outset disregarded all other performance standards and all other design. They set themselves to establish definitely the most modern principles and fundamentals of engineering and to apply them in a brand new way.

The same processes which based the new Chrysler style on the canons of classic beauty worked step by step to provide performance unlike any other in the industry—founded on a new and fresh interpretation of the basic principles of engineering design.

It is because of this Chrysler plan and the achievement of this plan, that an entirely new motor car performance has been brought into being.

The extraordinary acceleration, smooth speed, ease of handling and control, compactness, comfort, durability and long life, together with the unusual safety and stamina which characterize Chrysler, have all been combined in a car whose qualities can only be approached by other cars costing hundreds, yes, even a thousand dollars more.

It is no wonder that Chrysler engineers working with that singleness of idea and surety of approach to every problem, should create a product built as none ever built before and better than any other.

TRAINLOAD OF DURANT CARS SHIPPED HERE

New Memphis Distributor to Absorb Majority of Autos.

Appointment of a new Durant distributer at Memphis was made Thursday of the past week by W. S. Cook, general manager of the St. Louis factory branch of Durant Motors at a distributer-dealer meeting held at the Colonial Country Club at Memphis.

The new distributer, the F. M. White Motor Co., one of the largest motor sales organizations in Memphis, replaces the former distributer, the Richardson Motor Sales Co., which will continue as a Durant dealer. The new distributer has a distributing organization of 28 dealers.

Cook, who returned to St. Louis Friday, announced that a trainload of Durant automobiles had been received here, a majority of which will be sent to the new Memphis distributer for his dealer organization. The train contained 44 freight cars, each with a capacity of four automobiles, one of the largest automobile factory shipments ever received here. Its approximate total value was set at around $125,000 by Cook.

A wire Cook received from the Durant Motors factory at Elizabethtown, N. J., Friday, declared that enough orders are on file so that, if production would permit, ten such trainloads of cars could be shipped from the factory daily.

200 New Dealers For Marmion Firm

Following closely in the wake of the most successful show season in Marmon history is the announcement by T. E. Jarrard, new Marmon general sales director, of a remarkable increase throughout the country in the distributer and dealer organization of the company. Since the New York show approximately 200 new retail dealers have been added, bringing the total number of Marmon distributers and dealers to the highest figure on record, Jarrard said.

Coincident with the important expansion in the distributive organization of the Marmon company, several new factory field representatives have been appointed by Jarrard to operate in the East, Middle West and South. These men are in addition to several other appointments made by Jarrard early in January, and the Marmon field staff now is the largest ever maintained by the company.

Durant Sales Chief Industry Veteran

R. T. Hodgkins, director and newly appointed general sales manager of Durant Motors, has a long and distinguished record in automobile manufacture.

He came to his new position with Durant Motors from the Federal Truck Co., Detroit, where he was vice president. He was for many years general sales manager of the Studebaker Corporation and is considered one of the ablest sales executives in the business.

Concrete Runway For Ford Airport

DETROIT, Mich., Feb. 23.—With the dedication of the first concrete airport runway in America at Ford Airport here today, Henry Ford became a pioneer in highways for airplanes just as, 20 years ago, as a member of the original Wayne County Road Commission, he pioneered the first concrete highway for automobiles in this country.

The Ford Airport runway, half a mile long and 75 feet wide, is the first of several to be installed at that port, at which is located the factory where five and six ton air liners are manufactured.

"Increasing weight of large, passenger carrying planes points definitely toward the general adoption of concrete runways," said W. B. Stout, designer of Ford-Stout airplanes. "These big planes must have smooth, hard surfaces, especially to facilitate speedy and safe takeoffs. Five and six tons of fast moving machinery cannot rely on ordinary field surfaces. Uniform smoothness and durability are essential. I confidently look forward to the general adoption of concrete runways in airports throughout the country."

New Service Chief At Chevrolet Plant

E. N. Banks, who for the past year has been service manager for the St. Louis factory of the Chevrolet Motor Car Co., has gone to Denver to become service manager for the Olds Motor Works factory branch there. Banks is replaced here by H. A. Hale, who served in the same capacity with the Chevrolet Motor Car Co. at Kansas City for seven years.

To Rebuild Cycle Engines for Planes

Installation of special machinery for rebuilding and converting Henderson motorcycle engines for use in light aircraft has just been completed by the John F. Ballak Co., 100 North Twelfth boulevard. The firm plans to be in a position to supply economical engines for light training planes.

New White Truck With 6-Cylinder Engine in Demand

Following the recent announcement of a new White 6-cylinder truck designed for light delivery service the White Company of Cleveland, O., has received a large number of orders for the new model, according to President Walter C. White.

Operators, according to White, are displaying much interest in the new six because of its many features. Its seven-bearing crankshaft motor is extremely powerful and flexible, giving quick acceleration and pulling ability which makes possible high daily mileage without excessive use of its reserve speed. Four-wheel hydraulic brakes and low swung sturdy frame provide ample safety. Other mechanical features include thermostatic water control, hot-spot manifold and improved carburetion. Radiator, lamps and bumpers are chromium plated. The new truck has a gross weight rating of 6000 to 8000 pounds and is White built throughout. Every refinement for customer satisfaction and driver comfort has been built into the job.

"The new six," says President White, "has the same rugged strength and dependability that characterizes all White truck models and which is responsible for the 100,000 to 300,000 mile records made by thousands of White units. In the gruelling tests to which White six stock units have been put they have shown an average speed of 36½ miles per hour over a 329-mile run, 110 miles of which was mountain country and an average of 30 miles per hour on a 12,947-mile run."

The new White 6-cylinder truck is being displayed at the St. Louis factory branch and all principal cities by White Company dealers.

Studebaker Retail Deliveries High

During January dealers reported the largest January retail deliveries in history, according to J. M. Cleary, sales manager of Studebaker Corp. More than 2000 unfilled orders were carried over into February by the Studebaker factory.

This increase in Studebaker sales during 1929 was predicted early in January by many motor experts, following the introduction of a new Commander Eight, and improved models of the President Eight and Commander Six series at the New York Automobile Show.

THE MURDER IN THE BLIND PIG

by

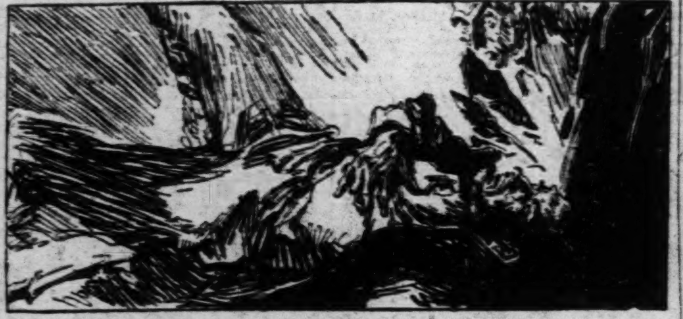
and

GRETTA PALMER



IT WAS almost closing hour in Tony's, the basement speakeasy in which affairs were conducted with a decorum almost worthy of the staid citizen who had originally built the now shabby brownstone-front house.

The crowd which gathered nightly about the marble-topped tables in the three connecting rooms was composed of members of the literary and theatrical world, who made this their club between the hours of 11 p. m. and 1 a. m.

It was Tony's pride that he received more free tickets to first nights and more autographed books than any bootlegger in town.

This particular night there had been an opening of importance in the theater and an unusually desirable collection of celebrities was present. The group, indeed, would have stirred the envy of many a society hostess to offers of free champagne instead of the rather dubious Scotch that Tony handed out at a dollar a drink.

As Tony flitted from table to table with the beaming hospitality of a medieval innkeeper, he tried hard to keep his mind centered on the pleasant gathering that was here and to forget the disagreeable warning he had received a few hours before.

It was O'Toole, who ran a place in the next block, who had sent the tidings to Tony that Bruno was after him. Bruno had formerly had a speakeasy on the same block. He had enjoyed a profitable business until Tony's had become "the place to go."

Bruno's belief was that the Federal agents had been antagonized against him by Tony. One particularly severe raid in which axes played a leading part, had wrecked his place so badly that he had had to close.

And the wholesale liquor men, who ought by rights to have helped him to his feet again, had turned a deaf ear when he asked for credit to start up a new place. Bruno, it was said, was out for Tony's scalp.

Being an Italian, with an operabred love of melodrama, Tony would ordinarily have impressed on his doorman the necessity for greater caution in admitting people and have laughed it all off. But things were becoming too dangerous even for his Italian taste. His testimony a week before had lost Patrolman Flaherty his job when that worthy was on trial for unnecessary brutality in beating up a drunk on his beat. Tony, in the face of all wisdom, had told the truth and incurred the enmity of the old Irishman.

He felt himself capable of taking precautions gainst the wrath of an Italian or an Irishman—but against the possible moves attractive to either race, there was almost nothing one could do. Tony had decided not to stir out of his place of business for the next few days. He would sleep in the back kitchen until things blew over.

The cry of "last call for drinks" went around and the noise took an upward trend as the patrons felt the dread hour of bedtime drawing near. For the last half hour Tony was so busy filling orders and leading recalcitrant drunks tactfully to the door that he had no time to worry about the enemies who endangered his life.

It was only after his two helpers, Gus and Emil, had washed the last glass and wiped the top of the last marble that Tony was left alone. With a slight shiver of premonition he examined the bolts on the front door and windows with more than usual care and retired into the back room to cast up his accounts.

This room also was safeguarded as carefully as a small-town bank. The door, it is true, locked with a simple key on either side. The key was always kept hanging on a nail on the wall at right angles to the door, some five or six feet away.

Next to the door was a heavily barred window which gave, as did the back door, into a courtyard surrounded by eight-foot board fences. The only persons who ever entered this courtyard were the woman who kept the rooming house that occupied the other floors of Tony's brownstone building and the laundress who had rented the former kitchen and whose clothes line and poles were scattered about the yard. There was no direct entrance to the yard except through Tony's basement door and by the fire escape which led by several occupied rooms of the rooming house and the bathroom on the second floor, just above the barred window.

Although the front door of the rooming house was always kept open, Tony, secure behind his barred windows and locked doors, felt no fear. Neither Flaherty nor the wiry little Bruno could slip through the bars of the open window and cross the room to the horsehair couch opposite, where he intended to pass the night.

At 2 o'clock the last gill of gin had been accounted for and a very respectable amount was set down on the day's ledger. Tony turned out the lights, took off his coat and shoes, and lay on the couch. He was safe enough, he felt, to relax his vigilance. As he gazed through the window at the sickle moon that glimmered over the chimney pots, he found himself thinking of his native Venice and of the gondolas, once a commonplace means of conveyance, on which he now turned an eye tinged with as much romance as any honeymooning American.

The next morning Tony was left to sleep in peace until noon. Even the conspicuously early customers rarely turned up before 1 o'clock and then the demand was more often for an eye-opening gin tonic than for a before-luncheon cocktail. The waiters were quite safe in not arriving until 12.

At 12 o'clock on the dot, Gus arrived and opened the front door with the pass key, as was his custom. He had quite forgotten the tremors which had assailed Tony on the day before. When he stepped into the back kitchen and saw his employer lying prone on the couch, he was startled, and came closer. There was little in the appearance of the body to reassure him.

From ear to ear Tony's throat had been cut as neatly as a blade would do it, but with several slashes, which ruled out the possibility of suicide.

One of the kitchen knives belonging to the place was on the floor next to the body, covered with blood. Tony's own gun, known to Gus and to all his employes, was found in his pocket, without a single bullet missing. Gus' startled eyes wandered to the back-door key. It was in its place, as usual, on the nail.

No one could possibly have crawled through closed bars of any of the windows or of the grilled front door, which he himself had opened with the only key available. And Tony, he knew, was a light sleeper. Any untoward noise would have awakened him, his hand already on the trigger.

If Gus was puzzled, the police when they arrived, were not able to give him any material assistance in clearing up the mystery. Yes, it was strange, they agreed, that anyone could have entered the place without breaking the locks or leaving any traces. Neither doors nor windows, in their expert eyes, showed any signs of having been tampered with.

The key to the backdoor, hanging on the nail, had a slight odor of peppermint which puzzled the Inspector, but he finally decided that the last person who used it had been pouring out creme de menthe, and did not enter the incident in his report.

Otherwise, everything was as usual. An inspection of the backyard showed nothing out of place. Several clothes-poles and lines there. But no one, it was agreed, could possibly have utilized these objects to push a knife through the bars of the open window and slit the throat of the unsuspecting Tony so neatly—especially as it was his own knife, always kept in the kitchen drawer.

It was quite possible for someone to have gained access into the courtyard but who, said the Sergeant, fully aware of the rhetorical nature of his question, could have thrown a knife through the bars of a window so that it would not only penetrate a throat but slide efficiently from ear to ear? Not even the greatest curved ball pitcher could be expected to perform such a feat.

None the less, the officers, with the distrust of their face for the sly ways of the Latins, immediately brought their talents to focus on the cringing Bruno. His alibi, although plausible, proved impossible to check. Flaherty was then asked to submit to a friendly examination. He presented an alibi of much the same nature, but pointed out the racial prejudice of the Italian in favor of a knife as being distinctly in his favor and against Bruno. The problem was never solved by the police.

Who killed Tony and how?

Who Was Guilty

Solution of "Red Head to Win" in last Sunday's Post-Dispatch.

ETHAN HEWLITT had stolen into the rival stables and placed a sponge in the nostrils of "Filly Mignon," the formidable favorite, to make sure that his brother's "Red Head" would win and his bets would be successful. He had hoped that the sponge would not be discovered, but when he overheard the conversation in the library between the club president and Grant, he realized that disgrace and suspicion must fall on either his brother or himself.

Ethan determined that the blame should fall on his brother, whose extreme intoxication helped his plan. When he got the drunken man back to the bungalow in which the two lived alone, he aroused his brother enough to induce him to give Ethan a check for his share of the winnings on the race. Folding a blank sheet of paper in half, he handed it to John and suggested that he try out his signature on the bottom half before signing the check, to make sure it would be legible. He permitted his brother to make out the check and then let him fall back into a drunken stupor.

Ethan then went over to John's typewriter and typed the confession on the upper half of the page being careful to protect his hands with gloves so that he would leave no fingerprints. His error lay in misspelling the word "batalion," which is abbreviated in dispatches in the British army to "Batt." and which an army man could not conceivably misspell.

Ethan then folded the fingers of his brother about the open razor and drew John's hand across his throat, killing him in his deep sleep.

Downtown Work Council Organizes "Find Yourself" Drive Among Youths.

Contending that 60 per cent of all employed boys are doing a particular line of work simply because they happened to get the job and not because of any fitness or because it holds out a bright future, the Downtown Boy's Work Council has organized a "Find Yourself Campaign" which will be launched Wednesday evening at the Neighborhood Association, 1000 North Nineteenth street.

Alfred Fairbank, campaign director for the Community Fund last year, will deliver an address on "How to Choose Your Life Work" and each boy will fill out a "self-analysis" blank which will be studied later by a committee of prominent business and professional men. A second meeting will be held March 13. Lansing F. Smith of the American Educational Society, is chairman of the campaign.

--take that drive to-day!

THE only way to judge motor car performance—the only way to make certain that any automobile provides top-notch abilities—is to drive before you buy . . . and this is all the more important today when Buick holds forth to prospective buyers an order of performance that definitely obsoletes previous standards of motoring!

Prove this to your own satisfaction—confirm Buick leadership in all elements of performance—by making your own tests of this dynamic car in comparison with any other you may have in mind.

Check Buick getaway—flexibility—acceleration! Experience the almost limitless power of Buick's famous Valve-in-Head engine—the most powerful automobile engine of its size in the world. Test Buick swiftness, smoothness, stamina—all of the phenomenal performance qualities that distinguish Buick from any other automobile of the day!

More than twice as many people purchased Buicks during the past year as any other car listing above $1200 . . . but even in the light of this overwhelming buyer endorsement Buick invites you to "get behind the wheel and get the facts."

An hour in the car—a single drive—will demonstrate Buick superiority with such thrilling finality that you, too, will make Buick your choice.

These Accurate, Sparkling Sports Reports

At the Ringside With Wray

When the gong sounds next Wednesday night for the opening of the heavyweight fight between Young Stribling and Jack Sharkey, J. E. Wray, Sports Editor of the Post-Dispatch, will be at the ringside. He'll tell you everything he sees—and he'll see everything—in his story in the Post-Dispatch Thursday.

Wray has won renown as one of the most vigorous and authoritative writers on boxing in the country. You can be sure of getting all the details of the fight . . . all the thrills and drama of the spectacle, if you read his story next Thursday.

In addition to Wray's word picture, all the big moments of the contest will be shown in photographs, sent by wire to the Post-Dispatch.

—and now it is winning greater and greater public favor in every section of the country. . . .

With all its desirable improvements . . . with all its additional smartness, luxury, comfort and performance . . . the 1929 Oldsmobile is lower than ever in price . . . now only $875.

The 1929 Oldsmobile is more beautiful than ever in appearance—the result of new style refinements and new color combinations now presented in its composite bodies by Fisher.

The 1929 Oldsmobile is more luxurious, more comfortable and offers new conveniences for driver and passengers. Roominess is a feature. Seat cushions are deeper and softer. Upholsteries are richer. And the new Fisher adjustable front seat, combined with Oldsmobile's adjustable steering wheel, makes the driving position a matter of individual choice.

The 1929 Oldsmobile provides even more gratifying and dependable performance. Its big high-compression engine now develops 62 horsepower. Typical of its fine car design, oil is forced directly to the piston pins through rifle-drilled connecting rods—a feature heretofore characteristic of high-priced cars.

Oldsmobile was a remarkable value before. Now that it is finer than ever—and lower in price—it is the outstanding value of its class. Come and see this finer Oldsmobile. Drive it yourself. Compare it with other cars. Know why it is winning greater and greater public favor in every section of the country.

Other important features include double-ribbed crankcase . . . balanced crankshaft . . . rubber engine mountings . . . full pressure-lubrication . . . crankcase ventilation . . . oil filter . . . air-cleaner . . . controlled cooling . . . full-length vertical radiator shutters . . . motor-driven fuel pump . . . silenced chassis . . . silenced interior . . . double-cushioned universal joint system . . . spring-cushioned clutch core . . . self-adjusting spring shackles . . . extra-heavy, "low-dropped" tapered frame . . . quick, positive four-wheel brakes . . . 16 to 1 steering gear ratio . . . high-pressure chassis lubricating system . . . four Lovejoy hydraulic shock absorbers . . . Record Hook-up Is Indicated For Broadcast of Inauguration

Preparations by Networks on Most Elaborate Scale in Radio History—Pick of Nation's Announcers to Take Part.

Broadcasting of the Hoover inauguration ceremonies, which will be put on the air by KSD, is expected to set a new record for number of stations hooked up and scale of preparation by the broadcasters. Stations in the regular National Broadcasting Co. and Columbia System networks number 100, and many other broadcasters are expected to join the chains for the occasion.

For five hours—from 10 a. m. to 3 p. m. St. Louis time—the broadcast will continue. Climaxes of the broadcast should come when Hoover is sworn in on the capitol steps as President and in the Senate chamber when Curtis takes the oath of office as Vice President.

Thirty microphones, manned by the ablest announcers and by noted newspapermen, will pick up the ceremonies for KSD listeners.

The National Broadcasting Co. will detail to Washington its crack announcers, including Graham McNamee, Milton J. Cross, John B. Daniel and William S. Lynch. Washington men who know notables from all over this country and members of the diplomatic corps will take part. Radio reporters who have assisted in great broadcasts, such as the national party conventions, will assist the announcers.

A sound-proof booth will be erected in the Senate chamber, the first case of the Senate yielding to invasion by modernity. This booth will stand in a corner and will be designed to be as inconspicuous as possible. In the booth, David Lawrence, noted newspaper man whose weekly talks on Government are a KSD feature on Sunday nights, will stand before a microphone to describe the swearing-in of Curtis as Vice President.

The program will continue with the inauguration of the President, the progress of the Presidential party back up Pennsylvania avenue to the White House, and the parade in its wake. This will be followed by a two-hour review of the parade as it passes the Court of Honor at the White House.

Senator George H. Moses, of New Hampshire, chairman of the Joint Inaugural Board, is in charge for Congress of arrangements for the broadcast.

The broadcast will go by short wave transmission to Europe and elsewhere.

With Henry A. Bellows, former Radio Commissioner, in charge, equally elaborate preparations for the inauguration broadcast are being made by the Columbia chain, of which KMOX is the St. Louis link. Bellows will have his headquarters in the studios of WMAL, Washington. The general Washington service of the Columbia System is in charge of its new vice president, Sam Pickard, who recently resigned from the Radio Commission.

Frederick William Wile, radio political expert, will be the Columbia announcer in the Senate chamber. Norman Brokenshire, one of the best known of announcers to Eastern listeners, will announce from the Capitol steps. William S. Hedges, manager of WMAQ, Chicago, and president of the National Association of Broadcasters, will assist, while a small army of other announcers and newspaper men will be stationed all along the line to acquaint Columbia chain listeners with every happening of the five hours.

It is possible that attempts will be made by both the NBC and the CBS to broadcast stories by observers flying over the route of the procession. There has been talk of this, but definite plans have not been announced.

Some of the Canadian stations may be linked into one or the other of the hookups for the occasion.

The colorful inaugural charity ball on the night of March 4 is also to be broadcast over an NBC coast-to-coast network, with Philips Carlin as chief announcer. This broadcast is to begin at 10 p. m. St. Louis time and continue for an hour and a half.

The music of five nationally famous bands will be heard. The orchestra of the United States Marine Band, a dance orchestra from the United States Navy Band and a similar unit from the United States Army Band will play from

Irene Bordoni Will Open New Sonatron Series

Sunday evening, March 3, will bring a new Sonatron program over a chain of 27 Columbia chain stations, including WABC, KMOX, WBBM, KOIL, WOWO, KMBC and several Pacific Coast transmitters.

Irene Bordoni has been engaged to open the series, and a special half-hour program has been prepared for her.

Ben Burney and Phil Baker, Helen Morgan, star of "Show Boat;" Andrew Mack, Helen Kane and other stage stars have been signed for this series, it is announced.

A contract for a 52-week broad cast schedule has been executed with the Columbia System by Nathan Chirelstein, president of the Sonatron Tube Co. The program are to go on the air from 7 to 7:30 o'clock Sunday evenings.

"Negotiations are under way to book still more stars," Chirelstein said. "Only artists and entertainers known from coast to coast as the best will be on our programs."

The Sonatron series is said to involve at least $1,000,000.

Moutain Drama In KSD Broadcast

The discovery of Marias Pass in the Rocky Mountains—a discovery delayed for years because of its elusiveness and the fact that Indian legends wove around it many fear-inspiring tales—and the personal narrative of John F. Stevens, who discovered it under dramatic circumstances in the winter of 1889, will be the theme of the "Empire Builder" broadcast over KSD tomorrow night.

Stevens has been referred to as "the most famous living civil engineer." He served with distinction as chief engineer of the Panama Canal, and later was chairman of the Inter-Allied Board, in charge of the rehabilitation of Russian and Chinese railways during and after the World War. In 1925, Stevens was awarded the John Fritz Medal, the highest honor conferred by the engineering profession.

"The story of the discovery of Marias Pass is the more interesting because in 1853, the year John F. Stevens was born, another Stevens—Gov. Isaac I. Stevens, whose experiences also will be a part of the same program—made a futile effort to discover this same pass while in the United States Government's Pacific Railroad survey through the Northwest.

Miners, trappers and settlers penetrated the mountains, yet Marias Pass remained undiscovered until John F. Stevens, then assistant engineer on the Great Northern Railway, located it for James J. Hill, founder of the Great Northern.

Newspaper Men On KSD Broadcast

"Appropriation Bills—Uncle Sam's Money and What It Does," will be discussed in the Voters' Service broadcast over KSD next Tuesday night by two Washington newspaper correspondents. One of them will be Paul Y. Anderson of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. The other will be Warren W. Wheaton of the Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Stress will be laid by the speakers on the historical background of Federal appropriations and budget making and the current situation with regard to Federal expenditures.

Radio Debut of Alma Gluck on Sunday Next

A long list of operatic and concert artists, among them Mary Garden, Feodor Chaliapin, Alma Gluck, Frances Alda, Anna Case, Richard Bonelli, Charles Hackell, Rudolph Ganz and the Russian Symphonic Choir, are to be heard in an all-star De Forest broadcast series on the Columbia chain.

Alma Gluck will start the series Sunday night, March 3. The others will follow at intervals of two weeks, the intervening weekly broadcasts presenting the De Forest Band, Arthur Pryor conducting.

Alma Gluck, in opening this series, will do her first broadcasting, while the other stars have faced the microphone only a few times.

The artists who have been signed thus far for this series, and the dates when they are to broadcast are as follows:

Alma Gluck, March 3; Feodor Chaliapin, March 17; Charles Hackett and Rudolph Ganz, April 14; Frances Alda, April 28; Richard Bonelli and Anna Case, May 12; the Russian Symphonic Choir, May 26.

Radio Commission Tells How It Will Rate Stations

Definite Principles for Determining Comparative Merits of Broadcasters Laid Down—Longest Records Carry Much Weight.

By THOMAS STEVENSON.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23 — For the first time the Federal Radio Commission has announced definitely principles to serve as a basis for determining the comparative merits of broadcasting stations.

The principles were outlined in a brief filed by the commission in the Court of Appeals in connection with appeals by WENR, WLS and WCBD for more time.

"Of the 635 remaining broadcasting stations," said the commission brief, "some have better claims than others; to state the matter in a different way, the listening public of some stations have superior rights to the listening public of others.

"All things being equal, the stations with the longest record of continuous service are superior in right. The late-comers cannot urge that by the simple act of invading the crowded field they succeeded in appropriating to themselves what was previously being enjoyed by others performing a good service.

"When two contesting broadcasting stations do not have otherwise equal claims, the principle of priority loses its significance in proportion to the disparity between the claims. In a word, the principle does not mean that the situation in the broadcasting band is 'frozen' and that stations enjoying favorable assignments may not have to give way to others more recently established.

"Another exception to the rule of priority arises when the controversy is between stations of different classes with respect to power. Radio engineering principles and the needs of the public for different classes of service require that broadcasting stations be grouped under three headings:

"(1) Stations using 5000 watts or more, which are capable of serving wide areas and reaching the rural population and which, to give service free from interference, must be on cleared channels.

"(2) Stations using from 250 to 1000 watts, which are capable of serving limited regions and which may be duplicated from two to five times on the same channel without undue interference.

"(3) Stations using 100 watts or less, which are capable of serving restricted localities, and which may be duplicated many times on the same channel without undue interference.

"When a controversy arises between a cleared channel station and a regional or local station, or between any stations of different classes, the principle of priority cannot control. Neither a 100 watt nor a 1000 watt station can give service over a sufficiently large area to justify its being assigned to a cleared channel occupied by a 5000-watt station in the same locality.

"The commission does not mean to hold, however, that a station of one class may never apply for or obtain the assignment enjoyed by a station of another class.

"Once the issue of priority has been determined, there remains only the service rendered as the basis of applying the test of public interest, convenience or necessity.

"An indispensable condition to good service by any station is, of course, modern, efficient apparatus, equipped with all devices necessary to insure fidelity in the transmission of voice and music and to avoid frequency instability or other causes of interference.

"There are a few negative guides. First are the injunctions of the law itself, such, for example, as the requirement for nondiscrimination between political candi-

KSD to Broadcast Result of Stribling-Sharkey Fight.

The outcome of the Stribling-Sharkey fight will be announced over KSD as soon as the wires can bring it to St. Louis.

Development of Network Broadcasting Accelerated

Radio Commission Expected to Rescind Program Duplication Order—Competition by Chains Rapidly Growing in Intensity.

Development of chain broadcasting in this country is progressing so rapidly that it is difficult to recall offhand the names of stations that do not use programs from networks at least several times a week. Plans for new chains are numerous, and at least one is expected to materialize. Even the great so-called independents—WLW, Cincinnati; WGN, WMAQ, WSL and WBBM, Chicago, and WCCO, Minneapolis-St. Paul—broadcast chain features in some of the choicest hours. Few are the stations not linked into chains that would not welcome the opportunity to join.

Officials of the networks and promoters are encouraged by a growing belief in Washington that the Federal Radio Commission eventually will rescind its often postponed order aimed at duplication of programs by stations on national cleared channels within 300 miles of one another. The date on which this order is to go into effect has been postponed again—this time until June 1.

Mid-West stations not affiliated with the National Broadcasting Co. or the Columbia Broadcasting System are being approached by promoters of a proposed chain to be headed by WGBS, a 500-watt New York transmitter, as key station. There have been carefully worded hints for some time that WGBS was to play such a part, but now active promotion work is under way. If the WGBS project fails to work out, it is regarded as a certainty that another chain, in addition to the NBC, Red and Blue and the Columbia networks, will be established, probably before the end of this year. Too many stations that cannot be hooked up

A New Triumph in Tone

"There is nothing finer than a Stromberg-Carlson"

AGAIN Stromberg-Carlson leads radio forward!! In this magnificent new No. 638 Console Receiver with self-contained dynamic speaker, tonal advantages heretofore only approximated are now fully achieved.

Through special arrangement of the internal construction of the cabinet it is now possible to present a Receiver having the compactness afforded by a built-in speaker, and at same time the superlative tonal excellence always associated with a Stromberg-Carlson.

The Console embodying this latest triumph is unsurpassed for beauty of graceful line, ornamentation and proportion. It is of the usual Stromberg-Carlson high standard of two-toned Walnut cabinet-work.

The No. 638 Stromberg-Carlson for A.C. areas employs 5 UY-227, 2 UX-171-A and one UX-280 Radiotron Tubes. Built-in Dynamic Speaker concealed by sliding panels. Totally shielded. Tunes with single selector, illuminated. Operates direct from any house-lighting circuit. Unique provision for playing records—turning Receiver's volume control counter clockwise switches phonograph connection into the circuit of the Receiver while phonograph connection is made permanently at the back. Chassis base of sheet steel of sufficient height to enclose all wiring. Coil windings enclosed in compact metal casings and filled with sealing compound to protect against moisture and mechanical damage. All exposed surfaces of select beautifully grained Walnut, panels of five ply construction, other parts including legs and stretcher of solid Walnut. Prices without tubes: 60 cycle, $380; 25-60 cycle, $385; D. C., $370.

There are All-Electric Stromberg-Carlson Receivers for alternating current areas, and for direct current areas, as well as Receivers operated with batteries,—ranging in price from $185 to $1205 with the present chains want New York and Chicago programs, especially between 7 and 10 o'clock at night, for all the plans for a fourth network to fall through. Incidentally it was stated recently that the National Broadcasting Co. had on file applications from 150 stations that it was unable to accept.

CHAIN BROADCAST DEVELOPMENT IS BEING SPEEDED

Competition between the chains is steadily becoming keener. Both NBC and CBS are considering elaborate projects to make Washington a broadcasting center of importance to that of New York, and more and more big programs will be put on the air from Chicago. The NBC already has large studios in Washington and M. H. Aylesworth, president of the company has offered to broadcast congressional debates from coast to coast. Sam Pickard's resignation from the Radio Commission, to become an executive vice president of the Columbia System, is generally regarded as preliminary to important CBS programs originating in the national capital.

Several ambitious projects to educate the nation by radio are reported, but thus far none has gotten past the talk stage. True a construction permit has been granted for a 50,000 watt station in California to broadcast educational features and addresses and lectures by notables. But the station has not been erected.

There is much activity by promoters of chains to broadcast recorded programs prepared in New York. One corporation that proposes to furnish these radio films to stations reports almost daily accessions of stations in the East, the Mid-West and the South.

Meanwhile the Continental Broadcasting Corporation of New Jersey, whose project to synchronize 100 low powered stations and operate them on the same wave length was noted last Sunday, has been granted permission to experiment with a station in Richmond, Va., another in Alexandria, Va., and two in Fredericksburg, Va.

The two Fredericksburg stations will be operated simultaneously on short wave channels to produce a heterodyne frequency of 1539 kilocycles. This frequency, which is just below the lower edge of the broadcast band (1500 to 550 kilocycles) will be picked up by the stations in Richmond and Fredericksburg, amplified and broadcast. If these two stations can broadcast simultaneously, the experiment will be expanded to include more and more stations until the Radio Commission is convinced that such large scale synchronization is feasible day in and day out.

However, even if the corporation succeeds in its tests, there will be the difficulty of finding short wave channels that can be assigned to it. Engineers of the Commission say that four to six short wave lengths would have to be assigned to insure effective transmission at all times day and night, because of "skip distance" effects and atmospheric conditions.

This project involves use by synchronized stations of cylindrical records, 18 inches long and seven inches in diameter, carrying an hour's program.

Keep all leads short and direct as possible when wiring a short-wave set. This applies particularly to grid leads.

Quartet Back on KMOX.

The Do-Re-Mi Quartet, after a year's absence, is back on KMOX as a regular Friday evening feature. They broadcast from 6 to 6:30 o'clock, under the direction of F. D. Anderson. Until a year ago, the four were a regular KMOX feature for 18 months.

Dr. Cadman on Air at 2 P. M.

"The Original American" is the topic on which Dr. S. Parkes S. Cadman is to speak in his broadcast at 2 o'clock this afternoon over WSAI, WOW, WHAS, WSM, WSB, KVOO, WKY, KOA and WOC-WHO.

Coleman Sings For Talking Film

Jack Coleman, staff tenor for WIL, has been making records for a new synchronized talkie film to be used in motion picture theaters. His screen tests are said to have been very successful.

Coleman plans to resume the Sunday afternoon WIL grand opera concerts within a week or two. He probably will begin with a recital of favorite arias for tenor.

AUTOMATIC TUNING
These six pictures illustrate the striking simplicity of Zenith Automatic Tuning or any favorite stations that you choose

KFI

When you first get your Zenith Automatic, you tune in your favorite stations one by one on the dial, by hand. For instance you tune in KDKA.

You lock this tuning on the first Zenith Automatic button, without tools, by merely loosening the button, depressing the arm and tightening the button again, and mark the name of the station in the first space on the card.

Any time after that anyone—child or adult—can repeat your expert tuning by just pressing the button. You will never have to tune KDKA by hand again, never have to hunt for it on the dial, or jiggle back and forth to get it right. Forever after, KDKA comes in perfectly, instantly, automatically.

There are nine such buttons on Zenith Automatic sets. This means that you can record (log automatically) nine stations on the automatic. People seldom have more than nine favorite stations that they listen to repeatedly and that means that you scarcely ever have to tune again.

However, you can always get these and any other desired stations on the band dial in the old way.

And whenever you want to replace one favorite station for another on the automatic, you can instantly do so.

'Nat' Shilkret Will Lead Orchestra in Columbia Feature

Noted Conductor in His First Broadcast Over That Network on March 1.

Nathaniel Shilkret, who has won fame as conductor of radio and recording orchestras, is to make his first appearance before a Columbia chain microphone on Friday night, March 1, when he will give his first performance as regular conductor of a new Eastman broadcast series.

Cornelia Otis Skinner, daughter of the famous actor, and Dorris Doe, a contralto widely known in the East, are to take part in the opening program.

These programs, sponsored by the Eastman Kodak Co., are to be broadcast over WOR, KMOX and 40 other stations. Music ranging from jazz to classical, in the salon arrangements for which Shilkret is noted, will be played.

Miss Skinner is to give several of the character sketches with which she has won a stage and radio following.

TRYING OUT FOR SHRADERTOWN BAND

Gus and Louie doing their stunt in costume for the Shradertown Band broadcast over KSD.

Damrosch Back on Air Saturday Night

Walter Damrosch, who has been on vacation in Florida, is to be back at the conductor's desk for the General Electric Hour concert over KSD and allied NBC stations next Saturday night.

Of chief interest in this concert, probably, will be the playing of the Andante and Finale from the Symphony No. 1 of Kalinikow, who at one time was conductor of the Italian Opera at Moscow.

The concert will begin with the "Fingal's Cave" overture of Mendelssohn, and will include the Andante from the Serenade for Strings of Tschaikowsky; the familiar Saint-Saens "Danse Macabre," and the Von Blon "Whispering of the Flowers" and "Grainger's "Shepherd's Hey."

Property Right to Full Time Claimed

Declaring that WGY, Schenectady, has a property right to operate on full time, and that prohibition of use of that right is a violation of the Fifth Amendment to the Constitution, counsel for the General Electric Co. have filed an appeal in the District of Columbia Court of Appeals from the Radio Commission's order that it share a cleared channel with KGO, Oakland, Cal.

Washington opinion is that the decision of this appeal will determine the constitutionality of the radio law.

Horn Solos in Roxy Concert.

Dominick Caputo, French horn player, is to be soloist in the Roxy Symphony concert at 1 o'clock this afternoon. This program may be tuned in on WLW.

ion, and the prohibition against utterance of 'any obscene, in-nt or profane language.'

"In the same connection may be tioned rules and regulations of Commission, including the re-ements as to the announcing of l letters and the accurate de-ption of mechanical reproduc-s (such as phonograph rec-s) in announcements. There e been decisions of the Com-ssion bearing on particular prac-s such as the broadcasting of private disputes and of offensive ect advertising, the excessive of phonograph records of the ordinary commercial type and fraudulent solicitation of contribu-tions by radio.

"The service of broadcasting stations must be continuous during hours when the public usually lis-tens and must be on a schedule upon which the public may rely.

"Furthermore, the service ren-dered by broadcasting stations must be without discrimination as between its listeners.

"The entire listening public within the service area of a station, or of a group of stations in one community, is entitled to service from that station or sta-tions. If all the programs trans-mitted are intended for, and inter-esting and valuable to only a small portion of that public, the rest of the listeners are being discrimi-nated against.

There is not room in the broadcast band for every school of thought, religious, polit-ical, social and economic, each to have a separate broadcasting sta-tion, its mouthpiece in the ether.

Propaganda Stations.

"Propaganda stations are not consistent with the most beneficial sort of discussion of public ques-tions.

"If the question were now raised for the first time the commission would not license any propaganda station, at least, to an exclusive position on a cleared channel.

"While the commission is of the opinion that a broadcasting sta-tion engaged in general public service has, ordinarily, a claim to preference over a propaganda sta-tion, it will apply this principle to existing stations by giving prefer-ential facilities to the former and assigning less desirable positions to the latter to the extent that engineering principles admit.

"In rare cases, it is possible to combine a general public service station and a high-class religious station in a division of time which will approximate a well-rounded program. In other cases, religious stations must accept part time on inferior channels or on daylight assignments where they are still able to transmit during the hours when religious services are usually expected by listeners.

"It may be urged that the same reasoning applies to advertising. In a sense this is true. The Com-mission must, however, recognize that without advertising broadcast-ing would not exist, so it must confine itself to limiting this ad-vertising in amount and in char-acter.

"If a rule against advertising were enforced, the public would be deprived of millions of dollars' worth of programs.

"Advertising must be accepted for the present as the sole means of support for broadcasting, and regulation must be relied upon to prevent abuse and over-use of the privilege.

"It may be urged that the listen-ing public is left at the mercy of the broadcaster. That this is not so is demonstrable. The listener has complete power of censorship by turning his dial away from a program which he does not like. This results in a keen apprecia-tion by the broadcaster of the necessity of pleasing a large por-tion of his listeners if he is to hold his audience, and of not displeas-ing, annoying or offending the sensibilities of any substantial por-tion of the public.

"In the second place, the licens-ing authority will have occasion, both in connection with renewals of licenses and in connection with applications of others for privi-leges, to review past performances and to determine whether a station has met the standard.

"A safeguard which some of the leading stations employ, and which appeals to the commission as a wise precaution, is association with the station of an advisory board made up of men and women whose character, standing and occupa-tions would insure a well-rounded program best calculated to serve the greatest part of the population in the region to be served.

"Evidence such as is frequently offered to the commission as to comparative popularity of broad-casting stations is exceedingly un-trustworthy. No matter how iron-clad the safeguards claimed to have been thrown around the tak-ing of so-called polls of listeners, the result is usually that the sta-tion for whose benefit the poll is taken is shown to be the most popular station. Such popularity, at best, is fleeting. A particular entertainer, or a particular bit of advertising, may be responsible for one station's temporary ascendency in the minds of a public momen-tarily forgetful of the more serious and important service being con-tinuously rendered by another sta-tion.

"It has become a regrettable practice for stations appearing be-fore the commission to comb their listening public for affidavits, signers of petitions, letters and telegrams to support their claims. In the opinion of the commission, this in most cases results only in encumberance of the record with-out any particular significance. Even a comparatively unimportant and unpopular station, by an-nouncements from the station and by recourse to friends of the licen-see, can make a formidable show-ing.

"If any restriction is imposed on free speech, it is by the laws of radio physics, which make it im-possible to crowd the same amount of utterances into the few chan-nels of the ether that can be ac-commodated in the press or on the public platform."

German Theater Program on KMOX

Members of the German Theater Company will present a German program over KMOX from 6 to 6:30 o'clock next Wednesday eve-ning, with O. K. Richter and Mrs. Angela Schaefer as piano accom-panists.

The program:

"The Girl From the Rhine," Alfred Laertz, tenor; "Yours Forever," Miss Else Muessig, soprano; "The Real Victor," Julius Segal's poem, to be recited by L. Koppee; solo from "The Gypsy Baron," Miss Helene Roth; solo by Paul Gehring; poem, by Freiherr V. Huenefeld, recited by Alex Ritter; "To Scenes of Peace Retir-ing," Max Glaeser, basso, and a recitation by Miss Gerda Holmgren.

The same night from 10:30 to 11 o'clock, the male chorus of the Caledonian Society will sing over KMOX.

Dulcimer Trio on WMAQ.

The Dulcimer trio will play over WMAQ at 10:10 tonight. Elsa Becker, violinist; Lillian Pringle, cellist; and Emma Menke, pian-ist, are the members of the trio.

'Flying' Cellist' To Play Over KWK

Mlle. Lucienne Radisse, a French 'cellist who has attracted considerable attention abroad by flying from city to city for concert appearances, is to be broadcast at 9 o'clock tomorrow night over WJZ, KWK, WREN and other NBC stations. She will play in the Blue Danube Nights program.

Since 1923, Mlle. Radisse has been a radio artist in France. She won the grand prize for excellence in 'cello musicianship on complet-ing her Paris Conservatoire course. Mlle. Radisse, on her return next month to France, is to be given a pilot's license. She says she will fly her own plane to Berlin where she is to give a radio concert.

Utica Jubilee Singers on KDKA.

The Utica Jubilee Singers are scheduled to sing at 9:15 tonight over KDKA and WJZ.

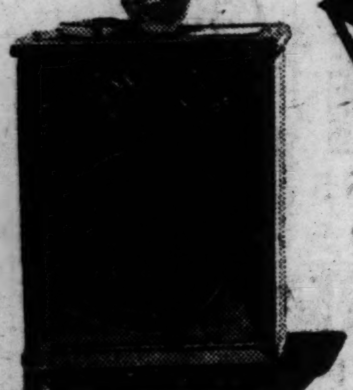
Studebaker Concert On Many Stations

The Studebaker concert at 9:15 tonight may be tuned in on WGY, WGN, WOC, WHO, WOW, KSTP, WTMJ, WHAS, WMC, WSB, WKY, KPRC, WSM or WOAI.

The feature number will be two American sketches, a nocturne and a march, by Thomas Griselle, that were awarded prizes on the judg-ment that they were the most sig-nificant compositions in modern music.

Other music to be played under direction of Jean Goldkette in-cludes: "On the Alamo," Chon's "Ridin' on the Clouds," an arrange-ment of "In a Mist," Youman's "Lucky Bird," arranged for strings and wood-winds; "Raisin' the Roof," from the new Ziegfield mu-sical comedy, and a specialty num-ber by the two pianists.

ATWATER KENT RADIO
ELECTRO-DYNAMIC



MODEL 53. New, all-in-one set with Atwater Kent Electro-Dynamic speaker. FULL-VISION Dial. Without tubes, $117.

MODEL 46. New, Electro-Dynamic receiver. FULL-VISION Dial. Uses 7 A. C. tubes (2 power tubes) and 1 rectifying tube. Without tubes, $83.

MODEL F-2. Electro-Dynamic speaker. $34.

Listen to HOOVER
and hear him as he really sounds!

YOU'LL hear the Inauguration through this new Atwater Kent Electro-Dynamic as clearly as if you were on the platform. The perfection of the Electro-Dynamic principle in the Atwater Kent laboratory, thousandth-of-an-inch accuracy in construction, and the Atwater Kent rule—test, test, and test again—give you a radio that's in a class by itself.

Now the personality of the speaker reaches you. The voice—man's or woman's—that goes into the microphone is the voice you hear. The broadcasters are themselves. Musical instruments are themselves. The deep bass of an organ is just as clear, just as real, as are the violins and flutes. Everything is natural!

Get the fine programs right now—with this set that tells you the truth about everything! And listen to Hoover! Be at the side of the new President as he takes the oath of office.

Novelty Orchestra And Tenor in New Tuesday Broadcast

Music of Popular Type to Make Up Programs for Williams Synomatics.

The Williams Synomatics, a 25-piece novelty orchestra directed by Josef Koestner, will play over WJZ, KWK, WLW, WGN, KDKA, WBAL and WHAM from 9 to 9:30 o'clock Tuesday night, beginning this week.

Programs will be made up of music of popular appeal. Jack Frost, tenor, is to be soloist. The sponsor will be the Williams Oilomatic Heating Corporation.

Music programed for next Tuesday night's opening broadcast includes: "To Know You Is to Love You," Bernard's "Venetian Nights," "The Song I Love," from "Follow Through," "My Lucky Star" as a xylophone solo, "Ragamuffin" and "The One Girl."

New Feature for Thursday Nights

A new Mallory orchestra is to be featured in a series of programs over KWK, WLW, WLS, KDKA and WJZ that will begin next Thursday night. Music of the popular type will be played.

The first program includes such pieces as "Right Out of Heaven", "Carressing You" and "How About Me?"

RICHARD BUHLIG

Richard Buhlig, Pianist, on KWK Tonight.

For Film Radio Programs.

A public demonstration is to be given in Syracuse, N. Y., this week by the Federated Broadcasting System, Inc., of New York, which is forming a chain of radio stations to put special recorded film programs on the air. WSYR, at Syracuse, is to assist in the demonstration.

The first Federated programs were filmed the past week.

Another Feature On Columbia Chain Planned for April

A new series of broadcasts to be known as "The Temple of the Air," will start early in April and will feature an internationally known orchestra.

This series will be heard over 22 key stations of the Columbia Broadcasting System and will cover the East and Middle West.

These programs will be sponsored by the Temple Corporation of Chicago, and will be made up of classical and novelty music. It is planned to supplement these programs each week with famous vocal and instrumental soloists.

Rapee Music on KSD

In next Thursday night's Sieberling concert over KSD, a special symphonic arrangement by Erno Rapee of his best known motion picture theme songs will be played. Included will be "Angela Mia," "Charmaine," "Diane," "Little Mother" and "Marion," all written, arranged and conducted by Rapee.

Elizabeth Lennox, contralto, will be the soloist.

Operas Tonight on WHO.

Two light operas, "Contrabandista" and "Cox and Box," for which Arthur S. Sullivan wrote the music, are to be sung at 9:45 o'clock tonight over the National Light Opera Co. of New York, WHO-WOC, WHAS, WKY, KOA, WGY and WEAF.

Damrosch Will Direct Schools Concert Friday

Walter Damrosch will direct next Friday morning's concert for school pupils that will be broadcast over KWK. The English horn, oboe, bassoon, cymbals, tambourine and other percussion instruments will be stressed.

In the first half of the program, use of the wood-wind group will be first illustrated in "The Scottish Idyl," taken from the ballet-divertissement, "Fete Populaire," which occurs in the second act of Saint-Saens's historical opera, "Henry VIII." Glowing musical colors will be heard in an excerpt from Ippolitoff Iwanoff's "Caucasian Sketches," called "In the Village." What the wood-winds can do with a martial scene will be demonstrated in "The Dragoons of Alcala," from Bizet's "Carmen Suite No. 1."

The percussion instruments will be introduced in Bizet's "La Farandole," which is part of a suite of incidental music written for Daudet's drama, "L'Arlesienne."

Gluck, one of the pioneers of opera, wrote down the popular French dance of his time, "Tambourin." It derives its name from a sort of droning bass caused by the rubbing of the thumb over the head of the tambourine. This effect is now imitated on the larger strings. The title of Johann Strauss' polka, "Thunder and Lightning," which also is programmed, indicates what a prominent part the percussion instruments play in its interpretation.

Never run the ground, lead-in, power wires and loud speaker wires to close or parallel to each other.

Meter tests and experience are necessary for making repairs to a receiver.

Trade Notes

Four St. Louisans Elected Directors of Federated Radio Trades Association — Dealers Division Urges Restricting Model Changes to Once a Year.

Four St. Louisans—Julian Sampson, Fred Wiebe, Matt Kaemmerer and N. E. Hill—were elected directors of the Federated Radio Trades Association at a convention last week in Buffalo, N. Y., and Harold J. Wrape of St. Louis, retiring president, was made honorary chairman of the board of directors.

Michael Ert of Milwaukee was elected president, Peter Sampson and John Redell of Chicago, Henry M. Steussey of Milwaukee and J. N. Blackman of New York, vice presidents; Harry Alter of Chicago, treasurer, and H. H. Cory of Minneapolis, secretary.

Rearrangement of radio zones, extension of broadcasting licenses beyond 90 days and measures to prevent promiscuous rebroadcasting, were favored by the association. Also the delegates advocated legislation to permit stations to appeal from decisions by the Federal Radio Commission.

The Board of Directors accepted a resolution by the retail division that manufacturers should change models only once a year and that public announcement of such changes should not be made more than 15 days in advance. Dealer delegates also made the point that discounts were insufficient to warrant carrying merchandise and the overhead entailed by commitments made in some factory advertising. It was urged that the factories cease such advertising, leaving development of certain selling methods to the homes and outside stores to discretion of the dealers.

The association officially approved a bill penalizing obliteration or defacing of serial numbers and identifying marks on receivers and speakers.

Notable addresses were made by M. H. Aylesworth, president of the National Broadcasting Co., and Bond P. Geddes, executive vice president of the Radio Manufacturers' Association. Aylesworth said his company's policy was to insist that sponsors of broadcast programs support these by newspaper advertising. He also urged that jobbers and dealers pay utmost attention to newspapers that carry comprehensive program schedules so necessary to the public for enjoyment of radio.

"Sales of radio products last year totaled $650,000,000, more than 10 times the total in 1922," said Geddes. "Six years ago the radio audience was about 75,000. Now it's 40,000,000 in America alone and with the approaching trans-ocean interchange of radio programs it will be world-wide."

Geddes decried possibility of saturation. He said that although the business is increasing by leaps and bounds there is no saturation point in sight. On the other hand, he asserted, bigger business is just around the corner.

He quoted official figures to show that out of 28,000,000 homes in America, less than 3,000,000 have modern electric radio. This state of affairs, he said, augurs well for the years to come, because the radioless home or the house with the old dry cell set must sooner or later change to modern radio.

Broadcasting legislation will be taken up again next month at a meeting of the directors in Chicago.

A watch and bronze plaque were presented to Wrape as Ert was seated as president.

The Gardner Radio and Electric Corporation has been appointed representative for Wright-DeCoster dynamic speakers.

John H. Boos Jr., 5159 Eichelberger street, has been appointed factory representative for Kuchins radio furniture. Argon tubes and Hickok radio set testers. Boos has the Southern Illinois, Eastern Missouri and Arkansas territory and also the city of Memphis, Tenn. He is widely known throughout the St. Louis trade district, and has been active in the St. Louis Radio Trades Association.

The new No. 638 Stromberg-Carlson console receiver has a built-in dynamic speaker, and is the first model of this make in three seasons that has not an external speaker. It has a special baffle compartment with flaring side members which is said to bring out the low notes without booming effects. The audio output stage uses 111A power tubes in multiple to give volume and quality effects hitherto associated with the big 250 tubes.

Declaring that radio sets have come to be one of the outstanding products that should be marketed by public utility corporations, the Philadelphia Electric Co. has added Philco receivers to its merchandise list. Salesmen of the company are being instructed in selling the radio sets on the same basis as any other electrically operated household appliance. The company expects that receivers will rank second to electric refrigerators in dollar volume of sales this year.

The All-American Mohawk Corporation of Chicago reports ground has been broken for a plant at Buffalo, N. Y., to make cabinets for its Lyric receivers. The plant is to be ready in May and make 1000 cabinets a day.

The St. Louis Radio Trades Association is to hold a monthly meeting at 6:15 o'clock next Wednesday evening at Hotel Roosevelt.

A De Forest 471A Audion for AC operation, using a half ampere filament current, and a 471B, taking a quarter ampere on the filament and for battery operation, are announced. Both tubes take up to 180 volts on the plate and up to 40 volts of bias.

Joseph L. Ray of New York, general sales manager of the Radio Corporation of America; B. J. Grigsby of Chicago, president of the Grigsby-Grunow Co. and Allan G. Messick of Chicago, chairman of the board of the U. S. Radio and Television Co., have been elected to fill vacancies on the board of directors of the Radio Manufacturers' Association.

A Sterling "hum eliminator" that can be attached to the rectifier clips of a dynamic speaker is announced. It includes a 3000 mfd. filter condenser. It also can be connected across the field coil terminal.

Pearl Fishers' KSD Opera.

Bizet's "The Pearl Fishers" is scheduled to be sung over KSD tomorrow night by the National Grand Opera Co. of New York. Cesare Sodero will direct.

The cast announced includes: Leila, Genia Zielinska; Nadir, Julian Oliver; Zurgu, Theodore Webb, and Nourabad, Arturo Imparato.

New Recipe for Coloring Gray Hair

By LOIS PAGE

One of the questions most frequently asked me is: "What shall I do for my graying hair?" Unhesitatingly I recommend that tried and proven recipe of sage tea and sulphur. A brew of common garden sage with sulphur and alcohol added, makes the best hair restorer I know of.

You can either prepare the mixture yourself at home, or, as most people prefer to do, buy it already prepared and ready to use. Wyeth's Sage & Sulphur is the name of the ready-to-use preparation and, since all druggists sell it at 75c a bottle, there is really no need of going to the bother of making it yourself.

You simply moisten a comb or soft brush with it and draw it through the hair, one strand at a time. One application banishes the gray, and one or two more completely restores your gray, faded or streaked hair to its original color. There is no hard, dyed look. The whole effect is one of perfect naturalness. Thousands of men and women use this preparation with no one suspecting it.

Stubborn Cough Quickly Ended by Famous Recipe

Here is the famous old recipe which millions of housewives have found to be the most dependable means of breaking up a stubborn, lingering cough. It takes but a moment to prepare and costs little, but it gives relief even for those dreaded "flu" coughs.

From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex, pour it into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey. Thus you make a full pint of better remedy than you could buy ready-made for three times the cost. It never spoils and tastes so good that even children like it.

Not only does this simple mixture soothe and heal the inflamed throat membranes with surprising ease, but also it is absorbed into the blood, and acts directly upon the bronchial tubes, thus aiding the whole system in throwing off the cough. It loosens the germ-laden phlegm and eases chest soreness in a way that is really astonishing.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form. Nothing known in medicine is more helpful in cases of distressing coughs, chest cold, and bronchial troubles.

Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

Cured His Rupture

I was badly ruptured while lifting a trunk several years ago. Doctors said my only hope of cure was an operation. Trusses did me no good. Finally I got hold of something that quickly and completely cured me. Years have passed and the rupture has never returned, although I am doing hard work as a carpenter. There was no operation, no lost time, no trouble. I have nothing to sell, but will give full information about how you may find a complete cure without operation, if you write to me, Eugene M. Pullen, Carpenter, 673C Marcellus Av., Manasquan, N. J. Better cut out this notice and show it to any others who are ruptured—you may save a life or at least stop the misery of rupture and the worry and danger of an operation.

RACIAL MINORITIES IN EUROPE RESTLESS

France Having Trouble With Alsace—Croats Resent Jugo-Slavian Dominance.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Feb. 23.—The indigestibility of much territory transferred by the treaty of Versailles is a source of greater and greater worry in European capitals.

The treaty left 30,000,000 persons of minority nationalities under foreign flags.

The recent election of autonomists by big majorities to the French Chamber of Deputies from Alsace is said by close political observers to be a sign of what exists among peoples of other redeemed territories but which comes to the surface with less facility than in France.

Jugo-Slavia is pointed to as the country which, after France, is having the greatest trouble in bringing about harmony between the old and the new populations of the country.

Aspire to Freedom.

The reasons are much the same in the two countries. The Croats, like a considerable element of the Alsatian population, aspired to freedom from imperial domination. They promoted the union of different branches of the Slav family as an arm against the Austria-Hungary, but they did not put into their adhesion to the new Jugo-Slav government the enthusiasm with which they greeted their deliverance.

The explanation most frequently given is that if, under Austrian rule, the Croats were held with a rather heavy hand, they did have their own Parliament and their own local government. These they were obliged to give up when they joined their cousins, the Serbs, and they chafed under what they considered to be a too great centralization of the affairs of the kingdom at Belgrade.

Religions Enters in.

Linguistic and religious differences also entered into the problem in Jugo-Slavia, as they do in Alsace.

The Alsatians, also, had their Parliament and local government under the German empire. The loss of these local institutions, in the opinion of well informed people, had less influence on the development of autonomism, however, than the problems of religion and the schools.

Alsace was wrested from France while Catholicism was still the state religion. She was allowed to practice that religion without hindrance by Protestant Germany. France, however, had since the loss of the province abrogated the concordiat with the Vatican and separated the church from the state.

Promise Is Broken.

French political leaders, headed by Poincare, then President of the Republic, found it expedient to reassure the Alsatians after the armistice respecting the practice of their religion. Poincare at Strasburg made the formal promise that the customs and traditions of Alsace, religious and otherwise, would be respected by France.

This promise was kept until 1924 when Edouard Herriot, on taking power, declared that the laws of the country, including separation of church and state, must be applied to the whole country without exception.

He also declared that there must be an end to religious instruction in the schools.

Italy has a grave problem in the Tirol as has Rumania in Transsylvania. In those regions the difficulties are largely the treatment accorded to minorities. The treaty of Versailles and special treaties between the interested powers were supposed to have safeguarded the rights of minorities left under foreign rule, but the application of the agreements seems to meet with insuperable obstacles.

ROSE-COLORED MARBLE FORT TO BE AUCTIONED BY FRANCE

Chateau de Villefranche Erected by Louis XIV to Guard Pass in Pyrenees.

By the Associated Press.

VILLEFRANCHE - DE - CONFLENT, France, Feb. 23.—A fortress of rose-colored marble that for centuries guarded an important pass of the Pyrenees, is to be sold by the French Government to the highest bidder.

Its usefulness as a military post ended long since by the increasing deadliness of war weapons, the Chateau de Villefranche is still one of the most remarkable buildings in France. When it passes into private hands the Government will specify that no changes may be made in it without prior reference to the commission on historical monuments.

The chateau was erected during the reign of Louis XIV on the foundation of an earlier Spanish fortress. Built largely of marble from the surrounding hillsides, it stands high on the bank of a great precipice overlooking the pass leading from France to Spain. Many historic prisoners have been confined in its gloomy dungeons. Louis XIV imprisoned there two Spanish women who had sent him poisoned flowers. During the World War a number of German officers were confined at the chateau.

France Building New Sea Liner.

SAINT NAZAIRE, France, Feb. 23.—The keel of what will be the biggest, fastest and most magnificent French trans-Atlantic liner has just been laid here. Nearly 1000 feet long, with a gross tonnage of 55,000 and a speed of 25 to 27 knots, it will surpass the Ile de France and rank among the greatest liners afloat, in construction or contemplated in any country.

124 PCT. RISE IN MISSOURI AUTO FATALITIES IN 7 YEARS

During 1920-27 Period Motor Registrations Increased 130 Pct., U. S. Reports.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—Automobile fatalities in Missouri increased 124 per cent between 1920 and 1927, while automobile registrations were increasing 130 per cent, the transportation department of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States announced today.

Fatalities rose from 231 to 517 while registrations were increasing from 297,000 to 682,000.

The chamber recommends more adequate motor laws, pointing out that increasing public familiarity with the motor vehicle problem has not cut down the percentage of fatalities.

An Off Week for the 'Legit'

Neither the American Nor the Shubert Has Any Attraction to Offer, but "The Front Page" Comes to the Former House Next Sunday—Susan Meriweather Boogher's New Drama, "Flight," Gets Its New York Hearing.

THIS is an off week for the legitimate theaters. The Shubert, which has nothing booked until March 11, when George Tyler's production of "Macbeth" arrives, has been trying to get an attraction to fill in at least one week of the gap without any success. The American, which turned them away again last week with the delightful comedy, "The Bachelor Father," has nothing to offer until next Sunday night when "The Front Page" comes.

New Yorkers have been paying big prices to see "The Front Page" at the Times Square Theater and when it became evident that the original cast would remain there until spring, another company was organized for Chicago, headed by Roger Pryor and Fuller Mellish Jr. This is the organization that St. Louis will see.

Written by two former Chicago newspapermen, Ben Hecht and Charles MacArthur, "The Front Page" is a play of newspaper life, set in the pressroom of Chicago's Criminal Courts building. The plot concerns the escape of a murderer on the eve of his hanging. Hildy Johnson, a young Herald-Examiner reporter who has announced his retirement from the "game," to marry and join a New York advertising agency, has dropped in to say good-by to the gang. Momentarily he is alone in the dimly-lighted pressroom. The fugitive killer, who has been hiding on the roof, crawls through an open window and is promptly locked in a rolltop desk while Johnson makes frantic efforts to deliver him to his managing editor, Walter Burns, and thus "beat the town" on the story. With his fiancee and her mother waiting for him at the depot, all thoughts of marriage disappear from Johnson's mind and there is a welter of excitement, involving politicians, officials and racketeers. Of course, there is a wedding, but not before Johnson has been put through a gruelling test and even the final curtain raises a doubt that he is able to remain on the train with his bride and his prospective mother-in-law, after he has boarded it with them. Roger Pryor, to be seen as Hildy Johnson, had an important role in "The Royal Family" throughout its New York run. He is a son of Arthur Pryor, the famous bandmaster.

THE fate of Susan Meriweather Boogher's new play, "Flight," which was produced at the Longacre Theater in New York during the past week, is in the balance with the critics undecided as to its merits. Alison Smith, of the New York World, whose writings of the metropolitan stage frequently appear on these pages of the Post-Dispatch, says that the drama by a St. Louis woman has an air of being very frank and forthright and ruthless about life—and a little daring and extremely up-to-date.

"It is especially up-to-date," says Miss Smith, which is an obvious delusion, for, though the piece is presented in thoroughly modern clothes, you feel after its first revealing sentences that there are picture hats and pompadours perched on the emotions of its heroine. It belongs to the school which one labeled its output as "problem plays," a term which all theatergoers of those years seemed to understand though the plot was always about a woman and, inevitably, she had only one problem. This latest example, for all its glib imitation of the dialogue credited to the younger generation, still dates back to the days when literary circles were fuming half in horror and half in sympathy over the deplorable activities of the "woman who did."

"It is true that the biological dilemma of the woman who does in this play is presented with a frankness which would have paralyzed the 1890's. She is a debutante whose casual experiments with amorous dalliance have brought her only cynical distaste until she encounters love's young dream in the person of a fat-headed but idealistic aviator.

"Her rapture at this discovery is marred by the realization that she is going to have a child and that she is unable to determine whether her true lover or a more incidental admirer is its father. This uncertainty upsets everybody in the cast (as well it might!) for at least three scenes of prolonged complications until, just before the final curtain, the hitherto slow-witted aviator has a bright idea.

"'If you were a widow, it would be all right,' he observes, in unconscious defiance of Sam Welter. 'Then I would love the child as my own, whether it belonged to me or not.' This train of logic might not have been entirely clear to everybody in the audience, but it brought the curtain down on perfect harmony on the stage. Anyway, it satisfied the aviator, who, after all, was the person most concerned.

"Until this blissful ending, our heroine's predicament was undeniably a serious one, but somehow it seemed difficult for a polite but unfeeling audience to work up the proper degree of compassion. What sympathy there were, came entirely from the beguiling characterization of Miriam Hopkins—a valiant, little golden figure with enough persuasive charm to save the role from the derisive laughter that otherwise might have pursued it. Yale Puppeteers In Program of One Act Plays

Graduates of Drama School to Bring Their Marionettes Here for Two Performances Next Saturday.

THE Yale Puppeteers, graduates of Professor George Pierce Baker's Drama School of Yale University, will show their puppets in a program of plays and musical numbers at the Solari Guild Theater in Kirkwood, next Saturday at a matinee and evening performance.

The director of the company, Harry Burnett, has presented his unique form of entertainment throughout New England a number of times. Last winter be spent three months in Central Europe, searching for material on marionettes and marionette theaters, and within a year he plans to start his own little puppet theater in New York City.

The Puppeteers are now touring the South and West and are bringing here a Puppet Revue of one-act plays interspersed with musical numbers. This program, unlike a full length play, shows the versatility of the puppet actor.

The program, which is adapted both to children and adults, consists of a scene from "Midsummer Night's Dream," a play called "Weather," an old English fairy tale, "The Three Wishes," a harp soloist, a puppet orchestra of stringed instruments, Galli, the opera singer, and other musical numbers.

Peabody to Leave Missouri

Master of Ceremonies to Give Up His Post in Four Weeks With His Successor Not Yet Named—When Griffith Made His First Sound Film—How George Jessel Just Missed Sitting on Top of the World.

By NIE.

SOME time next month Eddie Peabody, the banjo playing master of ceremonies, is to leave the Missouri Theater and right now the Skourases are casting about for a new boy to take his place. Two or three names are under consideration and there is a hint that Paul Ash, who for a year or more, knocked 'em dead in Chicago, will come here. Brooke Johns, who has enjoyed a long run at the Oriental, also in Chicago, is being transferred to San Francisco next week but there is a chance that he will be brought back to St. Louis some time soon.

Peabody, a fine musician and clever entertainer, never really clicked as a master of ceremonies. He is without a peer as a banjo player and his solos were always welcomed by local audiences but he lacked the personality of the men who had preceded him on the Missouri's stage and the girl fans refused to make over him as they had done over Brooke Johns and Frank Fay. The latter, incidentally, is back in vaudeville having given up his idea of going with Earl Carroll's Vanities. Playing with him in the big time houses is his wife, Barbara Stanwyck who, as the star of the play "Burlesque" last season, made the hit of her young life. Mr. and Mrs. Fay are likely to wind up their present tour in Hollywood where they have several offers, at important money, to enter pictures.

While the Missouri is hunting high and low for a new stage boss the Fox Theater runs along merrily without any fair-haired boy directing the presentations. The type of show introduced by Fox does not call for a master of ceremonies and it has proven so successful that, for the time being at least, there will be no change in the amusement plans at the new theater.

IN the crush of those getting on the sound bandwagon, sight is lost of the fact that D. W. Griffith, whose latest picture, "Lady of the Pavements," is at Loew's this week, was one of the first to introduce synchronized sound to feature length motion pictures.

Ten years ago Griffith produced "Dream Street" and showed it at the Town Hall in New York City with the Kellem process — a method of sound synchronization similar in all major respects to the present Vitaphone.

The picture at the time was a hit and scores of editorials prophesied a great career for it.

Griffith attempted at the time to influence capital in backing the process, but Wall street appeared skeptical and the precursor of sound effects died away through lack of support and appreciation.

Almost 10 years to the day of the presentation of "Dream Street," Griffith's sound production, "Lady of the Pavements," with William Boyd, Jetta Goudal, Lupe Velez, George Fawcett, Albert Conti and William Bakewell is being presented locally. This romance of the Parisian diplomatic courts, incidentally, is said to be one of the pioneer producer's most spectacular works.

THE man who might have been the Al Jolson of the talking-singing films is making his belated debut at the Missouri Theater this week. "The man who might have been" is George Jessel, whose film, "Lucky Boy," is having its St. Louis premier just 15 months after Al Jolson spread the squawking flicker contagion into this territory, by making his Vitaphone debut in "The Jazz Singer."

If Mr. Jessel's readings have caused him to stumble across James Greenleaf Whittier's "Maud Muller," he can agree with Jimmy, "Of all sad words of tongue or pen, the saddest are these—it might have been!"

The case of Georgie Jessel is one of the heartbreaking tales of the motion picture industry, sometimes laughingly referred to as the motion picture art. In announcing its program of pictures for the season of 1926-27, the then financially-staggering Warner Brothers made known to a more-or-less indifferent world that they intended to produce a picture called "The Jazz Singer," to star the originator of its stage role, George Jessel.

Motion picture exhibitors, reading this trade announcement, went into no tailspins of joy contemplating it. Georgie Jessel had made a few pictures for Warner Brothers, among them "Private Izzy Murphy," "Sailor Izzy Murphy" and "Ginsberg the Great." "Private Izzy Murphy" had been successful in a modest way, but "Sailor Izzy Murphy" and "Ginsberg the Great" came under the classification of "brutal."

The fact that "The Jazz Singer" was to be other than another old-fashioned "silent drammer" was not indicated in the programmed announcement. True, Warner Brothers had been trying to develop Vitaphone; but they had not been markedly successful with it, as far as feature-length productions were concerned.

☼ ☼ ☼ ☼

WHEN the time came to make the picture, Jessel and the Warners mingled in a cyclonic combat. Just what happened is covered by an entanglement of claims and counter-claims. Apocryphal tales seem to simmer down to these: The Warners broke rela-

AT THE PLAY

By St. John Ervine

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.

THE production of Mr. Eugene Gladstone O'Neill's play "Dynamo," by the Theater Guild of New York has thrown the ranks of his admirers into confusion, and those who were acclaiming him in superlatives for "Strange Interlude" are now condemning him in suprelatives for "Dynamo," although the former play is neither better nor worse than the latter. "Dynamo" is, undeniably, a very juvenile piece of work, and it may well give pause to those persons who always mention Mr. O'Neil's name with bated breath and are inclined to fall on their faces when they come into his presence; but "Strange Interlude" is an equally juvenile work, and I see no justification for treating the author of "Dynamo" as a pretentious small boy when the author of "Strange Interlude" is treated as if he were divinely-inspired.

If "Strange Interlude" is a great work, then "Dynamo" is a great work, for its author has repeated himself in, perhaps, simpler terms, and may warrantably cry out in protest against his present detractors that they only praised him when they did not understand him and called him a genius when they meant that he was so obscure. Mr. O'Neill, and I shall not tire of saying this, is a dramatic poet who perversely imagines himself to be a philosopher. No one who remembers the performance of "Beyond the Horizon" at the Morosco Theater nine years ago can possibly forget the thrill he received as he realized that an authentic dramatic poet had appeared in Broadway.

SIGNS were to be found in that piece that Mr. O'Neill was in danger of forgetting himself, but they were few and negligible, and at least one person left the theater in the conviction that he had been present at an important event in the history of the American theater. I take some pride in the fact that Mr. O'Neill informed a friend that I was one of the two dramatists who had given him encouragement. Had he remained a poet, with a remarkable sense of the theater—no one can ever deny that he has a unique feeling for the stage—Mr. O'Neill would not now be causing dismay among his admirers or providing his detractors with warrant for their cry, "I told you so!" There are actually people going about the city of New York, announcing in tones of affected sorrow, that the great O'Neill bubble had burst. They speak, I think, too hastily. The poet in Mr. O'Neill is in a parlous plight but he is not dead, and there are passages in "Dynamo" which indicate that if he is given a chance to breathe freely he will recover his health and become great. But resuscitation must be quick. The poet's life is ebbing quickly away.

It was an unlucky day for Mr. O'Neill when he fell into the hands of gentlemen with bats in their belfries. They used to run around Europe, yammering about psychoanalysis and expressionism, and repeating all the mumbo-jumbo incantations of persons who attempted to conceal the poverty of their minds by uttering abstract polysyllables in aloud, quick way. Mr. O'Neill was easy prey for them. He was feeling sore against the Theater Guild which had declined—foolishly, as I think—to produce "Beyond the Horizon" on the ground that he had set them a task which could not be done.

I ABUSED them then, and abused them many times afterwards, for not putting an O'Neill play on their stage. They might have saved him from the mistake that he then made, of allowing persons without discernment or taste to persuade him into the belief that he is a deep thinker, an intellectual, when in fact he is a poet and a dramatist. Mr. O'Neill has the intuitive genius of the dramatic poet; he has not got the deliberate genius of the philosopher; but cranks and fools, knowing that he is destitute of a sense of humor or perhaps because they were themselves destitute of one, humbugged him into the belief that he had a message to deliver to mankind. For years these persons had him making what he and they called "experiments," when he should long ago have settled on the machinery with which he intended to work, and have gone about his business of being a poet.

Play after play appeared in which we saw the poet pretending to be a mechanic, fiddling with bolts and levers and methods when he had a song in his throat that required no bolts and levers to let it loose.

Does a skylark stop to inquire about its technique? Must the nightingale make experiments before it can fill the air with music? Mr. O'Neill, with a thickness that is rare in poets, listened to these persons and, tempted in the wilderness of Washington Squ with the result that his discerning admirers beheld, with horror, the production of pretentious twaddle such as "The Great God Brown" and his undiscerning admirers have now beheld with greater horror, the production of "Dynamo."

I SUGGEST to the horrified spectators that they should control their feelings. Mr. O'Neill is still a considerable person. He has taken a bad toss and must not be surprised if he finds that people are inclined to go back on all the laudatory things that they have hitherto said of him. But he is still a considerable person. He is still the most interesting dramatist that America has produced. No man of genius has written so many silly pieces as he has written, nor is there any author known to me, either in the past or the present, who is so lacking in self-discipline or so incapable of criticising himself. But he IS a man of genius, and we will do well to remember the fact. It is true that he wrote "Welded" and "The First Man" and "The Great God Brown" and "Desire Under the Elms" and "Strange Interlude" and "Dynamo," but it is also true that he wrote "Beyond the Horizon" and "The Emperor Jones" and "The Hairy Ape" and "The Fountain" and "Marco's Millions" and the early sea-pieces.

Heaven knows, I have criticised him as harshly as anybody has—it seemed to me that a dramatist of his standing should not be insulted by slick and empty compliments—but I do not propose to forget the author of the latter pieces and remember only the author of the former; and I invite those gentlemen who are now clamoring for his blood to believe that they possess in him, despite his irritating mannerisms and obstinate behavior, a dramatic poet who will be prominently placed in the history of this country's literature.

The almost unanimous dispraise that has been given to "Dynamo" may be the saving of Mr. O'Neill, who will, I trust, pay heed to the generous praise given to this play by Mr. J. Brooks Atkinson of the New York Times. Mr. Atkinson is a critic who speaks his own mind; he does not run into lobbies to find out what other people are thinking; and the fact that a man of his distinction and strongly individual cast of mind finds much in "Dynamo" to admire and respect should compel both Mr. O'Neill and his furious detractors to believe that the poet has not died in the psycho-analyst, and that this tumble need not prevent him from remounting his horse and riding home.

Segovia, Guitarist, To Appear Here at Principia Friday

ANDRES SEGOVIA, the guitarist, whose technique and musicianship have brought about a renascence in guitar playing in this country, will make his first appearance in St. Louis next Friday night at Howard Hall, the Principia.

Although he was well known in London, Paris and Madrid for several years, Segovia was practically unknown when he arrived in America in January, 1927, for his first appearance in this country. He received an ovation and played 20 concerts in one month in New York City alone.

Segovia plays Bach, Handel, Mozart, Schubert on his guitar. He also plays works by the Spanish composers Sor, Malats, Tarrega, Turina, Albeniz, Granados and the French composer, Ponce. Many of these compositions were written especially for Segovia by the composers and dedicated to him.

A First Time Performance Of Strauss' "Don Quixote" For Symphony Concert Pair

St. Louis Orchestra to Play One of the World's Most Celebrated Pieces of Program Music Under Arbos' Direction at Odeon Friday and Saturday.

By THOMAS B. SHERMAN.

RICHARD STRAUSS' tone poem "Don Quixote" was introduced to American audiences by Theodore Thomas but the important musical center of Boston heard it for the first time under the direction of Strauss himself. This happened about 25 years ago. The orchestra employed in this exciting revelation was, of course, the old Boston Symphony whose concertmaster, Mr. Arbos, has long since become director of the Royal Madrid Orchestra and is now about to participate in another first-time performance of "Don Quixote."

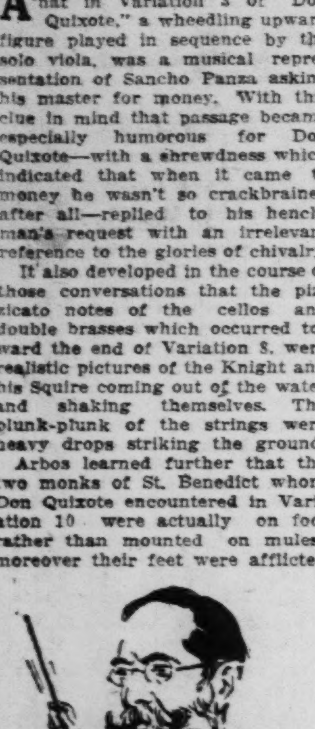
These facts, together with a few others that will follow, are offered up in the spirit of one who likes to put a good face on things—especially on Sundays. If St. Louis has had to wait for 30 years to hear a composition that has already been played all over the world many times, we may console ourselves with the knowledge that it will be presented here next Friday and Saturday under propitious circumstances. For Mr. Arbos, who will direct these performances, was not only exposed to Mr. Strauss' exacting directions at a time when the latter was particularly eager to make his score blossom out in its full glory, but was also responsible for introducing Strauss' music and the composer himself, to the large music loving public of Spain.

When Strauss went to Madrid to direct the Royal Orchestra in performances of "Don Quixote" and other works, long and intimate conversational bouts between Arbos and himself were bound to result. Many of Strauss' most piquant animadversions on his scores were thrown off in one of those unbuttoned moods which would come when the two musicians had repaired to some small restaurant with the Spanish equivalent of coffee and doughnuts between them. Most of these observations have never found their way into print.

ARBOS learned, for instance, that in Variation 3 of "Don Quixote," a wheedling upward figure played in sequence by the solo viola, was a musical representation of Sancho Panza asking his master for money. With this clue in mind that passage became especially humorous for Don Quixote—with a shrewdness which indicated that when it came to money he wasn't so crackbrained after all—replied to his henchman's request with an irrelevant reference to the glories of chivalry.

It also developed in the course of those conversations that the pizzicato notes of the cellos and double brasses which occurred toward the end of Variation 8, were realistic pictures of the Knight and his Squire coming out of the water and shaking themselves. The plunk-plunk of the strings were heavy drops striking the ground.

Arbos learned further that the two monks of St. Benedict whom Don Quixote encountered in Variation 10 were actually on foot rather than mounted on mules; moreover their feet were afflicted with corns which accounted for the fact that the liturgical duo chanted by the bassoons had a distinct limp.

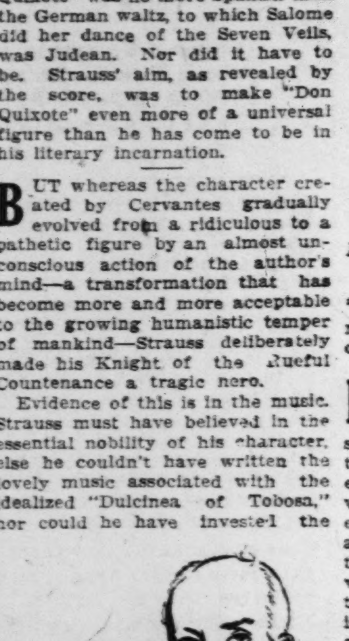


E. Fernandez Arbos, who will conduct the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra in "Don Quixote."

None of these amusing details may have had any effect on Arbos' fundamental conception of this piece, but the circumstances which brought them to light did serve to illuminate completely the composer's feeling about his own work. Arbos, of course, did not need the enlightening word of Strauss to know that the music of "Don Quixote" was no more Spanish than the German waltz, to which Salome did her dance of the Seven Veils, was Judean. Nor did it have to be. Strauss' aim, as revealed by the score, was to make "Don Quixote" even more of a universal figure than he has come to be in his literary incarnation.

BUT whereas the character created by Cervantes gradually evolved from a ridiculous to a pathetic figure by an almost unconscious action of the author's mind—a transformation that has become more and more acceptable to the growing humanistic temper of mankind—Strauss deliberately made his Knight of the Rueful Countenance a tragic hero.

Evidence of this is in the music. Strauss must have believed in the essential nobility of his character, else he couldn't have written the lovely music associated with the idealized "Dulcinea of Tobosa," nor could he have invested the



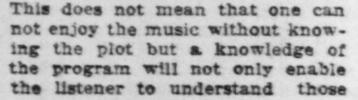
Richard Straus, composer of "Don Quixote, a Set of Fantastic Variations on a Knightly Theme."

Knight's disillusioned homeward journey and his subsequent death with such heart-wringing pathos. It is true, of course, that even in Strauss' music the Knight was off his head and that his actions were futile as well as insane. But it is reasonable to assume that this insanity was the result of an intensely romantic, spiritual and idealistic nature being thrown back upon itself. The world of unreality in which he suddenly began to live was a place in which his thwarted spiritual longings could be translated into action and the knock on the head which brought him back to his senses really delivered him into an order of things that had no use for him.

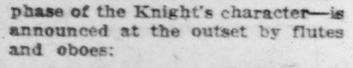
If this interpretation seems too fanciful I can only remind anyone who thinks so that it is derived from Strauss rather than Cervantes. If he still objects, let him make up his own story. It's a harmless game and anyone can play it. Meanwhile I would like to call attention to certain features of this tone poem which may be of interest to those who intend to hear it next Friday and Saturday.

Written in the form of a theme with variations to be played without pause, "Don Quixote" is completely programmatic in character. This does not mean that one can not enjoy the music without knowing the plot but a knowledge of the program will not only enable the listener to understand those passages where the music falls into the uneven rhythms of speech but will also enhance his appreciation of Strauss' genius for musical characterization.

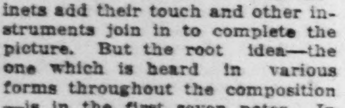
MOST of the important themes are contained in the introduction. The first of these—the one associated with the warlike phase of the Knight's character—is announced at the outset by flutes and oboes:



This is not all of it. The clarinets add their touch and other instruments join in to complete the picture. But the root idea—the one which is heard in various forms throughout the composition—is in the first seven notes. In the fifth bar the second violins, with the violas following like an obsequious shadow, introduce the theme associated with the knight's chivalric obsessions.



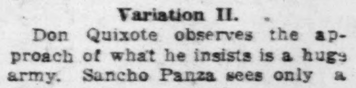
The tender passage which describes the "Ideal Woman" is announced later on by the solo oboe, as follows:



In connection with this it should be remembered that since the beautiful Dulcinea was more a projection of Don Quixote's imagination than a living creature, this theme is really another sidelight on the Knight's own character. What is almost a psychological commonplace is involved here. Even when a lover is not a psychopathic case his description of his adored one is usually a more illuminating revelation of himself than of her.

BESIDES announcing most of the thematic material the introductory section also sets the stage for the adventures that are to come. The Knight plunges deeper and deeper into the romantic volumes that line the walls of one entire room. His excitement grows and finally some part of his mental machinery suddenly snaps. It will not be hard for the audience to know when this happens, for it is signalized by a prodigious harp glissando, followed by tumultuous upheavals in the whole orchestra that wind up with a series of fortissimo chords. The Knight has gone mad and is determined on a life of chivalry.

The theme section which follows begins with a restatement of the Knight's theme in a minor key, followed shortly after by the entrance of Sancho Panza, the Knight's squire—an oafish creature given to drinking and wenching but who is nevertheless capable of an unswerving fidelity and is a merry fellow besides. The Sancho Panza theme, which is given herewith:



To my mind a complete characterizer. It is stated first by the bass clarinet and tenor tuba but the interpretation is thereafter left to the solo viola just as the Knight's part is taken by the solo 'cello. The pair then start out on their travels.

Variation I.

A windmill comes into view and Don Quixote imagines or pretends that its sails are terrble giants. He charges and is knocked to the ground.

Variation II.

Don Quixote observes the approach of what he insists is a huge army. Sancho Panza sees only a flock of sheep and the composer evidently agrees with him, for the continuous sound of many hoofbeats are heard in the strings, the woodwinds play a lovely pastoral melody and the horns, trumpets, trombones and oboes break out into the most realistic sort of bleating. This ingenious effect is produced by alternating chords composed of a consecutive tone and two half tones and three consecutive half tones, all played with a flutter-tongue technique.

All of this makes no impression on Don Quixote's martial ardor. He charges again, kills seven sheep and is stoned by the shepherds.

Variation III.

This whole section is in recitative form. The Knight discourses grandiloquently on the subject of chivalry, but the squire is not impressed. He counters with observations based on his own experiences. Most of his conversation—as set forth by the viola—is just about what you would expect from such an earthbound bumpkin, but every now and then he displays a surprising delicacy of sentiment.

Variation IV.

The two adventurers meet a band of pilgrims and Don Quixote taking them for scoundrels attacks them. He gets the worst of the encounter, as usual, and while he is recovering Sancho Panza lies down and goes to sleep.

Variation V.

Following the knightly custom Don Quixote keeps a vigil beside his arms. This is made up chiefly of a long and beautiful passage for the solo cello.

Variation VI.

The travelers meet a trio of country wenches. Sancho Panzo says that one of them is none other than the lovely Dulcinea Don Quixote is horrified. A distorted version of the Ideal Woman theme is heard but Sancho insists that he is right.

Variation VII.

The Knight and his Squire are seated blindfolded on a wooden horse and when they are fanned by a huge bellows they imagine they are riding through the air. A wind-machine is used at this point. A double-bass tremelo insists on the fact that they have never left the earth and a sudden jolt by the bassoons remind them even more forcibly of it.

Variation VIII.

Don Quixote and Sancho take seats in a boat tied to a tree on the river bank. Uudulating rhythms in the orchestra betray the idea that the Knight imagines himself embarked on a voyage. The boat capsizes, they reach shore, shake themselves and give thanks for their deliverance.

Variation IX.

They meet two monks—the monks who walked with a limp—who are followed by men on horseback. Don Quixote takes them for practictioners of black magic. He attacks them and is victorious for once. The monks take flight.

Variation X.

One of Don Quixote's neighbors, Samson Carrasco, comes out disguised as the "Knight of the White Moon," to do battle with the former for his own good. Don Quixote is vanquished and according to the terms of the contest must return to his home and go into retirement. Together with his faithful squire he starts the homeward journey, humiliated and disillusioned. The music here takes on an almost overbearing poignancy. A fateful pedal is supplied by the timpani and double-basses.

In the finale the Knight has become sane again and as his death approaches he speaks with a tranquility that is more grave than sorrowfully. The cello's song grows fainter and finally dies out in a scarcely audible glissando. The orchestra sounds a fully resolved chord. The Knight is at peace.

Flonzaley Quartet To Return March 8

The Flonzaley String Quartet will play its final concert at Sheldon Auditorium, 3648 Washington boulevard, on March 8, under the auspices of the St. Louis Chamber Music Society. Unusual attention has been showered upon the Flonzaleys as they make their progress along the schedule of their farewell tour. At Westover School, Middlebury, Conn., where the quartet played its nineteenth annual concert, Miss Mary Hillard, the director, bestowed upon the members of the quartet the "Order of High Merit," the highest honor granted by the school. At Cornell University the quartet was tendered a banquet by the entire faculty, and the Princeton engagement was marked by a speech from Dean Magie, setting forth the inestimable educational influence of the organization during its career of 25 years.

Close Ups of The Stars

BEHIND THE SCREENS

By Margaret Post Niemeyer

On the Lots Out in Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 23.

GOING to the devil, even out here in Hollywood where it is supposed to be, but really isn't, one of the favorite pastimes of the cinema world is not such a difficult task if you can get the password into the Fox studios. For Fox is making a picture called "The Woman From Hell," a screen version of the story, "From Hell Came a Lady."

It seems that after all hell is just one of a score of lively concessions in a huge amusement park, and that the way one gets there is by walking bravely through the open jaws of a terrifying plaster monster, and shooting unsuspectingly down a greased slide straight to the bottom, and there you are. And hell itself isn't at all bad, it's only a very large slippery wooden bowl and is filled with many pleasant and happy merry-makers eating popcorn and peanuts while laughing and falling all over each other in their effort to climb out over the brim when Mary Astor, the star of the picture, was urging them to come back to earth.

Miss Astor, one of the really beautiful screen stars, graceful and slender and with a naturally exquisite skin, would be enough to allure any one into hell, let alone out. When she was not being filmed she sat in the yacht chair lettered on the back with her name, one of which each star and director has reserved for them when working on a set. Over her rather startling costume of black tights and spangles she had slipped a broad striped brown satin dressing gown and with crossed knees and puffing a cigarette, she viewed with amusement the progress of the picture. Sitting nearby was a "stunt" girl who doubles for Miss Astor at times in a scene where a broken bone or strained ligament might delay the completion of the picture. Mary, like most of the others, would prefer to do even these scenes herself, but the powers who look after the box office receipts look at the matter different.

The scene was in an amusement park, as I have already said, and, out of range of the cameras, extra people and some of the bigger ones, too, were dancing to the tunes of the park band which was playing bravely, although not registering a note, for this is not a talking picture. Barry Norton, the pleasing leading man with Madge Bellamy in "Mother Knows Best," was proving himself a master of the tango and Roy D'Arcy, who has a really good voice, was burlesquing a "Mammy" song to Mary Astor between shots. All this sort of fun is banished in the talkies—every one within earshot of the sound machines must keep absolutely quiet for every bit of noise is picked up.

Back to Earth once more I met that good looking, exceedingly blond young man, Charles Eaton, brother of Mary Eaton the charming stage star, and he, himself, young as he is, a Broadway favorite. His current picture "The Ghost Talks" is proving a success and he is now hard at work on a new one which is just a succession of joy parties, and he was dressed for one that day. His ruffled silk shirt and short black and white checkered trousers made him look absurdly young to be a star, but some of the stars are even younger. While I was talking to Charles along came Miss Evelyn Mills, aged four, and looking like a fairy princess dressed for winter, with her white fur coat and cap to match. Miss Mills has been appearing in pictures for over a year and is at present to be seen with Janet Gaynor in "Christina," the new picture in which Miss Gaynor is starred.

A recent recruit to Hollywood who is attracting much attention is Maurice Chevalier, the Al Jolson of France. I met Monsieur and Madame Chevalier at a little dinner party after the theater one night at "Henry's," which is the place most of Hollywood's talent frequent after shows or rehearsals. Monsieur Chevalier is young, slim almost boyish and altogether charming and speaks English exceedingly well. Madame is of the lovely brunette type and a very clever actress, but unfortunately does not screen well, I am told. Chevalier has just finished making his first picture in this country called "Innocents of Paris," an all-talking and singing production, and he told me he was leaving Hollywood almost immediately for New York as he has been loaned by Paramount to Florenz Ziegfeld for a special four weeks' engagement on Ziegfeld's new Amsterdam roof in New York.

Several years ago a little black-haired girl in her middle 'teens wept copiously after seeing herself on the screen for the first time. The tears resulted from a severe lecture by her director, who had been forced to eliminate every full-length "shot" in which she appeared, due to the awkwardness she displayed on her first pair of French heels.

The other day Colleen Moore, First National star, signed a check for approximately a quarter of a million dollars, which gave her title to one of the most beautiful residential estates in the exclusive Bel-Air district of Los Angeles.

It is a far cry from the tiny, vine-covered bungalow that witnessed the grief of Colleen to the magnificent Spanish home she will occupy upon its completion in May, although the time that has elapsed is comparatively short. Since her first picture, in which she played with the late Robert Harron, this vivacious little Irish actress has become one of the most popular personalities with a bank account that came from enjoyment she has furnished millions of people throughout the world.

The disappointments that occur in even the most successful screen careers have had their place in Colleen's motion picture experience, yet she believes the bitterest moment of her life came when the director spoke caustically of her awkwardness in the projection room of the old Fine Arts Studio on Sunset boulevard.

However, the pleasure Colleen is deriving from her new home is more than compensating her for the discouragement and disappointments she experienced on the way to screen prominence, and she needs but little encouragement to launch into an enthusiastic description of the three acres of paradise her success has brought.

The manner by which she became interested in her new home is noteworthy. She was driving about the district looking for a suitable spot upon which to build a Spanish home she had in mind, when she was startled to see the outline of her imaginary home before her in solid concrete, timber and plaster. A Chicago capitalist, C. Fred Stewart, had started construction of a 14-room dwelling as a residence for himself upon a three-acre site on St. Pierre road, a short distance north of Beverly boulevard. Strangely enough, Stewart's ideas on a home coincided almost exactly with those of Colleen, and, after walking through the half-completed building, Miss Moore lost no time in getting in touch with the owner to persuade him to let her purchase the house in its unfinished state.

With but few alterations, the house will become the dream-castle Colleen had visualized. One of the most interesting features will be a miniature theater in which talking pictures can be projected. Miss Moore's own boudoir will be especially attractive and spacious, with a circular dressing-room, a marble bath and a sleeping porch all opening from it. There will also be a swimming pool and tennis court in the garden.

And so Colleen Moore, so often the Cinderella of the screen, has become a Cinderella of real life, with a real castle in which she will, we hope, "live happily ever after."

Downings in Three Plays.

The Downing Players have begun rehearsals on three one-act plays to be given March 22 in the Odeon Building at The Downing Studios. The plays are, "Mrs. Pat and the Law," by Mary Aldis; "Suppressed Desire," Susan Glaspell; and "Hunger," by Eugene Pillot. Miss Patricia Downing assisted by Donald Scott Blanchard, is directing the plays.

tions with Jessel because he demanded more money to make the picture with singing and talking sequences than he wanted to make it as a silent picture—and, at the time, the Warners were suffering from an abundant lack of capital; or the Warners broke with Jessel because he not only wanted to star in the picture, but he wanted to direct it, as well—and the Warners were in no mood to risk everything on the chance that the untried Mr. Jessel would prove a directorial genius.

Whatever happened, Jessel did not make the picture. Instead, the Warners prevailed upon their friend, Al Jolson, to work in the Vitaphoned version of "The Jazz Singer." The rest is "show business" history.

For Georgie Jessel, there are only "might have beens."

Had Jessel made "The Jazz Singer" for Warners as Jolson did, Jessel would have been buoyed up on the crest of talking pictures' popularity. And Jolson, whose "Singing Fool" and "Jazz Singer" have made him the biggest money-earning star, might still be waiting to make his first picture.

Incidentally, Jessel's first picture, "Lucky Boy," is strongly reminiscent of "The Jazz Singer." Like that picture, it is the story of a boy and his mother; like that story, it is strongly Hebraic in its background; and as did Jolson in the earlier story, in "Lucky Boy" Jessel gets a chance to do some "mammy-singing."

During the course of the picture's action, he sings "My Blackbirds Are Bluebirds Now," "My Bouquet of Memories," in which he does impersonations of Robert Mantell, Sam Bernard and Eddie Foy; and he "mammys" the song reputed to be the best of its type since Jolson sang "Mother, I Still Have You" and "Mammy," "My Mother's Eyes."

"Most of the play's freshness of thought is contained in the first act, which is devoted largely to the setting forth of the girl's character. A girl who has developed frankness to a point where she can discuss with one suitor the prospect of attracting another—this, unless this observer has missed too many of the recent plays—is at least a new theatrical figure."

THE story behind the widely heralded Gordon Craig's assignment for George C. Tyler's "Macbeth," which, as said above, is to come to the Shubert, is tied up with the favorite project of well-wishers of the English theater during at least the last 50 years. Craig, as the father of the modern theater, is a sore spot in the minds of Englishmen, since he has practically abandoned his native country and confines his theatrical activities to foreign capitals, where he seems to find more advantageous environments for his theories. The London Morning Telegraph for years has been devoting a Thursday column to advocating a national English theater, subsidized by the Government or private means, with Gordan Craig as its leading spirit. Mr. Tyler's last visit to England brought this conjunction of projects and names forcibly to his attention. He laid his plans well, and shortly the man, who English theater-goers regard as English romancers regarded King Arthur in his seclusion in Avalon, was persuaded to give to America his long projected production of "Macbeth."

ENGLISHMEN exile Byrons, ostracize Brownings and starve Keatses and Chattertons. But even though an Englishman has little use for the combination of the dreamy and the unpractical, there is no such objection to Gordon Craig, since, with all his visions of theaters without actors and plays without words, he is as practical a man of the theater as the craftiest of Broadway producers. He acted with his famous mother, Ellen Terry, and her stage consort, Sir Henry Irving, and headed his own company in Shakspearean repertory in the English provinces as a young man. He directed his mother in Ibsen and Shakspeare, and he tested the practicality of his most extreme theories in Copenhagen, Moscow, Florence and the Moscow Art Theater and Eleanora Duse. It is his favorite dictum that the least intelligent stagehand knows more about the actual art of the theater than the most esthetically refined of "arty" amateurs.

"Macbeth" is a conflict of human beings against the supernatural in the hands of Gordon Craig. That is the modern tendency. How much this is due to Craig's famous sketches of sets for the play and long dissertations on the subject with this point of view in mind cannot be estimated. In his writings he has spoken of "Macbeth" as requiring a vision of a mist symbolizing the supernatural, and a rock symbolizing the virile force of the guilty King and Queen—and the rock will be overcome by the mist.

"Now, how would you do 'Macbeth,' Mr. Craig?" a rash admirer once asked him.

"There are 17 ways of doing 'Macbeth'," he answered. "Which one do you want?"

The English have not yet got around to asking him that question in dead earnestness, with a national theater to lend the question weight.

FIFTY-TWO years ago, Samuel Phelps, the grand old man of the Sadler's Wells Theater in London, pictured himself in a public address as having persisted in Shaksperean repertory for [illegible] years in order to break down the apathy toward the best of the English drama which, more than anything else, keeps Gordon Craig out of England now. Phelps had made Shakspeare pay, and asked the question: "If that could be done by me, as a humble individual, why could it not be done by the Government of this country? I merely throw my bread upon the waters," he said. "It may float away and disappear, but I throw out the hint in the earnest hope that it may gather strength and come back to me after many days."

Gordon Craig's "Hamlet" ran 400 nights in Moscow, a record on which any producer might cast calculating eyes. Samuel Phelps of the Wells, the Old Vic of the present day, the London Morning Telegraph and Gordon Craig after eschewing England for his long cherished production of "Macbeth" —they may get together yet with their national theater. At least with his production of "Macbeth" Craig will be breaking the long silence with which he has avoided the English-speaking stage since he last collaborated with Ellen Terry, back in the days of bicycles built for two.

New York Day by Day

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.

SOME things that do not keep me awake at night: The theatrical slump, a film starring Richard Barthelmess, the comicalities of the Marx Brothers, whether Jed Harris ever shaves, tenors, a Richard Bennett curtain speech, the boys who say "O K," blindfold cigarette tests, mystery novels by J. S. Fletcher, sandwich parlor "celebrities," grownups who talk baby talk, anybody who sings "I Faw Down and Go Boom," golf, Morris Gest's necktie and hat, Whether or not Theodore Dreiser is guilty of plagiarizing from Mrs. Sinclair Lewis, old men who hum tunes while they dance, Beatrice Lillie's appearance in a night club, Heywood Broun's personal opinions on any topic, visiting Englishmen who find fault with America, Belasco's clerical collar, dinky mustaches, people who relate details of a trip to Europe, those who call it "Cuber," cafe clowns, Sunday pictures of near society at Palm Beach, actors in buttoned shoes, Paramount theater ushers, cigarette ad indorsers, chop suey dinners, most newspaper columnists.

No book in years has gripped New York with such enthusiasm as Robert L. Ripley's "Believe It Or Not," published by the youthful Simon & Schuster firm. For many years he was a rattling sport cartoonist. He seized upon the idea that has made him the town talk and threatens to make him millions. On a dull day. He illustrated, instead of his regular cartoon, one of those curious facts, such as that all the people on earth could be placed in a cube a half mile square.

He ran a few of them and they rang the bell. He thought the field limited but instead found it inexhaustible. Every day people sent him similar facts, viz: the word uncopyrightable contains 15 letters without repeating a single letter and that there are 58,366,440 different ways of spelling scissors phonetically.

He began to poke around in queer corners of the world picking up these odd bits of information and illustrating them. He has enough to last three years, and gathers more daily. "Rip," as he is known to intimates, is a San Franciscan and was a star college athlete.

I was fortunate to meet him when he first came to New York and have watched him with interest since. He is the shy sort who comes into a room and seems immediately to evaporite. And it is my experience you have to keep your eye on a fellow like that. He is usually using his thinking apparatus while the wise crackers are pulling the fast ones they heard at the Palace.

"Rip" is in his early thirties, resembles one of the Lyendecker collar ad boys, and has been in almost every out-of-the-way hidden corner of the world.

Speaking of great intellects, one of the several-thousand-or-so-a-week heart flutterers in the movies was formerly a dresser to a stage midget. There's a career!

I'm beginning to believe old songs are the most popular after all. They have, I am told, a stronger appeal over the radio than the new. Almost any show can be stopped by rendition of a tune of 10 years ago. The hot mama jazz tunes haven't the sentiment or the tuneful lilt of songs such as "After the Ball," "Sweet Marie," "On a Bicycle Built for Two," "Say Au Revoir but Not Goodbye," "Sunshine of Paradise Alley," or "Two Little Girls in Blue." And until you have heard Art Hickman's band play "Whispering" you ain't heard nothin'.

And, incidentally, I can struggle through the rest of the winter without hearing a radio announcer announcing the next song will be "Many a Negative Girl Has Been Developed in a Dark Room."

It strikes me never in my time have people been so willing to profess church attendance as now. It used to be a man would confess a little sheepishly he attended church now and then. Today on the least possible excuse they seem to like to blurt out they are regulars and never miss a Sunday sermon.

A friend recently lost an executive job, having worked up to the post after years of faithful service. He is extremely blue and discouraged. It is difficult to tell him something that sounds mightily like a bromide. But it is true. And that is: I have never known a man actually to find himself and be at his best until he has lost at least one excellent job.

I have watched the mushroom sucesses spring up overnight, and to those who had to fight every inch of the way it is a little disheartening. But they are flashes in the pan who have their brief hour and are seen no more.

Beethoven's Symphony for Concert Today

ST. LOUISANS, at the Sunday Popular Concert of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra, at the Odeon at 3 p. m. today, will have an opportunity to hear again Senor Arbos' fine reading of Beethoven's F major symphony.

Probably none of the Beethoven symphonies has such an appeal for the music lover who is not a professional musician. It is an interweaving of melody and laughter and presents Beethoven in his friendliest, most intimate, most human mood. Written at a time when life plagued him with every misfortune—illness, poverty and family disgrace—he escaped from the reality of life into a world of lyrical laughter by means of this symphony.

The program, in addition, will present two numbers by Jacques Turina, whose "Procession of the Dew" was a feature of the last regular concerts. They are "Reverie" and "Orgie," both to be heard tomorrow for the first time here. Senor Arbos comes forward in role of composer also, presenting his own intermezzo "Arabian Night."

The concluding numbers are from Russia: "The Flight of a Bumble Bee," Rimsky-Korsakoff's delightful bit of musical whimsy, and "The Gypsy Camp" and "Procession of the Sardar," from Ippolitoff - Ivanoff's "Caucassian Sketches," two of the most popular works in the orchestra's Sunday repertoire.

Facing the Music

FELIX SLATKIN, who is sometimes referred to as the Yehudi Menuhin of St. Louis, will give a violin recital in the ballroom of the Chase Hotel Tuesday evening, beginning at 8:30 o'clock. Young Slatkin, who is still in knee breeches, made his first public appearance last year, and the impending recital is being given under the auspices of a committee of St. Louis women, to note the progress he has made in a year's time.

For his free popular organ recital in the Scottish Rite Cathedral, 3637 Lindell boulevard, starting at 3 o'clock this afternoon, Prof. O. Wade Fallert announces this program:

Marche Pontificale .... Tombelle
Light Opera Suite. "The Bohemian Girl" Balfe
I Dreamt I Dwelt in Marble Halls.
Heart Bow'd Down.
Then You'll Remember Me.
Fair Land of Poland.
Contralto—
Twilight Dreams .... Sibella
The Sheep and the Lamb ...... Homer
The Song of Life .... Cadman
Thelma Hayman Carroll
Pilgrim's Song of Hope ...... Batiste
Gavotte .... Gluck
In the Gloaming ...... Orred-Harrison
Soldier's Chorus from "Faust" .. Gounod

The Jesse L. Gaynor Choral Club will give its second concert of the 1929 season Tuesday evening in the new Frank Hampshire High School, Selma avenue and Lockwood, Webster Groves.

The Harmonic-Guild will hold its monthly meeting at the home of Nicholas Obradovits, 5416 Idaho avenue, this afternoon at 2:15. Mr. Obradovits, a violinist of ability, has prepared a program for the occasion. The Harmonic-Guild officers for the ensuing year are Miss Rose Everetz, president; Miss Nadine Fager, secretary; Miss Ruth Bensinger, treasurer.

A musical program will be given by the combined quartet and chorus choirs of Centenary Methodist Church, corner Sixteenth and Pine streets, this evening at 8 o'clock. This is the twenty-seventh program in a series of Sunday evening musical services. The choir has a membership of over 50 voices and is under the direction of Edgar L. McFadden.

The Russian Choir of St. Michael the Archangel Church will give a concert Tuesday evening under the auspices of the St. Louis District of the American Association of Hospital Workers in the auditorium of the St. Louis University, 3642 Lindell boulevard. The proceeds will be divided between the choir and the St. Louis organization, and tickets may be obtained from Miss Retta Snyder, St. Luke's Hospital or at the auditorium Tuesday evening.

Paul N. Biven, baritone, will make his bow in musical circles Friday night when he gives his premier concert at the Broadview Hotel ballroom, East St. Louis. The singer will be assisted by Mrs. Mary Biggs-McCormack, accompanist, and a violinist.

The appearance March 7 at Christ Church Cathedral, of the organist Lynnwood Farnam of New York, will be under the auspices of the St. Louis Chapter of National Guild of Organists and the Missouri Chapter of American Guild Organists.

HEADACHE

NEVER wait to see if a headache will "wear off." Why suffer when there's Bayer Aspirin? The millions of men and women who use it in increasing quantities every year prove that it does relieve such pain. The medical profession pronounces it without effect on the heart, so use it as often as it can spare you any pain. Every druggist always has genuine Bayer Aspirin for the prompt relief of a headache, colds, neuralgia, lumbago, etc. And Bayer Aspirin is always the best thing one could take.

Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid

A Touch of Color to the lips

A Touch of Color to Gray Hair

When your lips look pale and the roses have left your cheeks you do not hesitate to touch them up. When streaks of gray creep into your pretty hair, a touch of Farr's will take away that faded, aging look.

Restore your hair to its NATURAL, attractive color without a trace of gray. The faded look will give place to the soft, glossy, lustrous hair, sparkling with girlhood color, so entirely like the original shade no one in your family can detect its use. Farr's is the most up-to-date, absolutely harmless preparation; easy to use; a few moments in the privacy of your room is enough; neither sticky nor greasy. Can be washed, curled or waved without affecting the color.

Story of the Revolution Told by Series of Letters In W. K. Bixby Collection

Documents of Years Before War and Others From Succeeding Period Included—One Is Appeal to Massachusetts Congress.

THE budding and the aftermath of the American Revolution contributed some of the most important documents of the collection of original leters and manuscripts given to Washington University library by W. K. Bixby, president of the university, and first described in last Sunday's Post-Dispatch.

Pointed questions which George Washington asked about the state of affairs in Massachusetts after the Revolution were answered in a scholarly 32-page report by Benjamin Lincoln, with a candor possible only because he wrote for the eyes of Washington alone. Shay's "rebellion" erupted while Gen. Lincoln was writing. He suppressed the "rebellion" and blandly resumed his reports, extending it to cover the distraction.

"You are placed by Providence in ye post of Honour, because it is ye post of Danger," revolutionary Boston was told by Samuel Adams, credited by many historians with planning the revolution. And only a glance at this document will show that, though the impressiveness of Adams' steely gray eyes might be diminished by a peculiar themulousness of the head and hands" there was no tremor in his heart and no shakiness in his purpose.

Woodrow Wilson Praises Adams.

"The leadership of Samuel Adams was itself a sign of the times," declared Woodrow Wilson. "He was a man of the people, passionate in his assertion of rights, and likely to stir and increase passion in those for whom he spoke. Subtle, a born politician; bold, a born leader of men in assembly or in the street, he was the sort of man and orator whose ascendency may mean revolution almost when he chooses."

Adams' report for the committee appointed to consider the state of rights as reported by the Continental Congress was addressed in Provincial Congress at Cambridge to the people of Massachusetts. The date looks like Dec. 10, 1772—more so than appears in photographs of the original—but must have been 1774.

"Friends and Brethren," began Adams; "At a Time when ye good People of this Colony were deprived of their laws & ye administration of Justice civil & criminal; when ye cruel Oppression brought on their Capital had stagnated almost all their Commerce; when a standing Army was illegally posted among us (in 1770 Adams had forced withdrawal, after the "Boston Massacre" of two regiments which Lord North thereafter called the "Sam Adams regiments," but in March, 1774, Parliament had ordered quartering of troops in Massachusetts) for ye express purpose of enforcing Submission to a System of Tyranny; & when ye general Court was with ye same Design prohibited to sit; We were chosen & impowered by you to assemble and consult upon Measures necessary for our common Safety & Defense.

"With much Anxiety for ye common Welfare, We have attended this Service, & upon ye coolest Deliberation have adopted ye Measures recommended to you."

Army for Minute Men.

"Ye Measures" included an even stiffer boycott on English goods and that "every Minute Man not already provided therewith should be immediately equipped with an effective Fire-arm, Bayonet, pouch and Knap-sack, 30 rounds of Cartridges & ball, & that they be drilled three times a week and oftener as Opportunity may offer." Nonetheless Adams wrote in the same report:

"We have still Confidence in ye Wisdom, the Justice, & Goodness of our Sovereign, as well as ye Integrity, Humanity & good Sense of Ye Nation: & if we had a reasonable Expectation that the Truth of Fact would be made known in England. We should entertain ye most pleasing Hopes that ye Measures concerted by ye Colonies, jointly & severally, would procure a full Redress of our Grievances; but We are constrained in Justice to you, to Ourselves, & Posterity, to say, that ye incessant and unrelenting Malice of our Enemies has been so successful as to fill ye Court & Kingdom of Great Britain with Falsehoods and Calumnies concerning us, & to excite ye most bitter and groundless Prejudices against us * * *

"You are placed by Providence in ye post of Honour, because it is ye post of Danger—& while struggling for ye noblest objects, ye Liberties of ye Country, ye Happiness of Posterity & Right of Human Nature. Ye Eyes not only of North America & ye whole British Empire, but of all Europe, are upon you. Let us be, therefore, altogether solicitous that no discordant Behavoir, nothing unbecoming our Character as Americans, as Citizens and Christians, be justly chargeable to us. * * *

Trust in Military Strength.

"Whoever considers ye Number of brave Men inhabitating North America will know that a general Attention to Military Discipline must so establish the Rights & Liberties as to render it impossible for an arbitrary Minister of Britain to destroy them. These are Facts which our Enemies are apprised of, & even if they would not be influenced by principles of Justice to alter their cruel Measures toward America, these ought to lead them thereto."

With this, in the collection, is Adams' famous resolution for the appointment of John Hancock, Joseph Warren and others to the "Committee of Safety." Dated Feb. 9, 1775, it provided that a representative at Boston should be empowered to muster and supply an army, that all armed forces of the Colony should obey the committee, and that it should "observe all and any person or persons who shall at any time attempt to carry into Execution by Force, an Act of ye British Parliament entitled, 'An act for ye better regulating ye government of ye Province of ye Massachusetts Bay in New England.'"

Doubts Value of Petition.

A "letter to neighboring governments" on behalf of the Massachusetts Congress, dated April 10, 1775, set forth that in view of "late very alarming intelligences from Great Britain, ye false and inflammatory acts that have been laid before our Sovereign and his Parliament to induce them to consider this Colony as in a state of Rebellion, & our sister Colonies as countenancing us therein, this colony has come to a full Conclusion that very little if any Expectation of ye Redress of our common and intolerable griev-

Drink Water if Kidneys Bother

Take a Tablespoonful of Salts if Back Pains or Bladder Is Irritated

Flush your kidneys by drinking a quart of water each day, also take salts occasionally, says a noted authority, who tells us that too much rich food forms acids which almost paralyze the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken; then you may suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To help neutralize these irritating acids, to help cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's urinous waste, get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here. Take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days, and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink.

The replacing of home helpers is readily accomplished, and at trifling expense, by making use of the Post-Dispatch Help Wanted Ads.

FRANCE'S PROFIT IN TOBACCO COULD PAY HER WAR DEBT

Government Clears Four-Fifths on $160,000,000 Sales Every Year.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Feb. 23.—France's profit on her tobacco monopoly is more than enough to pay her war debt to the United States.

Cigaret and pipe smokers buy of the government $160,000,000 worth of goods and the government makes a profit of four-fifths of the total receipts.

France's war debt to America under the unratified Berenger agreement is a little more than $4,000,000,000 and the interest over the 62 years in which she was to pay runs it up close to $7,000,000,000, or an average of $110,000,000 a year, decidedly less than the government's yearly profit on tobacco smoke.

Not many years ago there was much talk of turning over the tobacco monopoly to private industry, particularly to an American group, in order to modernize it and to get greater profit. Spurred by criticism, the government appointed a business men's committee, preseded over by Andre Citroen the principal automobile maker of France, which suggested reforms some of which have been adopted to the great advantage of the government's pocket book.

Great increase in smoking, aided by the active co-operation of women, has helped the receipts, which have been growing rapidly each year while better methods have continued to reduce expenses.

DELIUS, FAMOUS COMPOSER, BLIND AND HALF PARALYZED

Former Musician Spending His Last Days in Tiny Hamlet 50 Miles From Paris.

By the Associated Press.

GRES-SUR-LOING, France, Feb. 23.—Half paralyzed and almost blind, one of the acclaimed composers of the world, Frederic Delius, is spending the remaining days of his life in this tiny hamlet about 50 miles from Paris.

The man who imagined the music for "Koanga" and "Margot le Rouge" no longer writes music. Each day his devoted wife reads him the French, German and English newspapers, then, if the weather is good, he is pushed in a wheel chair to the river that flows at the foot of his garden for an hour or so of fresh air.

Even the touch of his beloved piano is denied him, for his hands tremble so that they cannot find the keys. The recognition that has come to him of recent years was too late, for Delius cannot hear the plaudits that are accorded his compositions.

HOW WORLD GAINS POPULATION

Increase Is at Rate of 18,000,000 a Year, Scientist Says.

By the Associated Press.

DUESSELDORF, Germany, Feb. 23.—Prof. Richard Hennig, an eminent sociologist, has completed a survey of the human race showing that the population of the world is increasing about 18,000,000 every year.

He says that there is a daily excess of births over deaths amounting to 50,000.

"Courses in Godlessness."

By the Associated Press

MOSCOW, Feb. 23.—Courses in "godlessness" have been started at the Obuch Physiological Institute. The lectures will be illustrated by scientific experiments designed to form the basis for anti-religious propaganda. Studies will follow these general lines; the creation and evolution of the world; the origin and life of mankind; the composition and functions of organic life; the physiological basis of spiritual awakening, and science and religion. The majority of students are factory workers.

U. S. AUTO MAKERS FIND BRAZIL A GOOD FIELD

Encounter Difficulties in Getting Speed Labor in Assembling Plants, However.

By the Associated Press.

SAO PAULO, Brazil, Feb. 23.—North American motor car manufacturers who have set up assembling plants in Sao Paulo, to supply the great demand caused by road improvements, have found the labor market in Brazil singuarly undeveloped.

Piece work is unknown and there is no information on which they may proceed in speeding up production by paying employes according to their output. Investigators have been put to work and within another year factories probably will operate much as they do in the United States.

One United States company in Sao Paulo is assembling 135 cars a day in a warehouse converted into a factory and will soon have a regular factory completed, which will make a greatly increased output possible.

Motor trucks are in great demand in the coffee district. Most of the passenger cars sold at present are touring cars, but the demand is increasing for closed cars. Every ship from New York brings a large cargo of knocked down motor cars. The Brazilian tariff laws are such that it is cheaper to import parts in an unfinished state.

ALL BULGARIANS MUST WORK FOR STATE WITHOUT PAY

Men Between 20 and 40 Ordered to Give Services Eight Months in the Year.

By the Associated Press.

SOFIA, Feb. 23.—The Bulgarian Government has ordered all male citizens between 20 and 40 years of age to serve without pay eight months of "compulsory labor" each year. All women between 26 and 30 must serve four months each year.

Under this law the State is building roads, bridges and railroad lines. The law's expressed object is to keep the Balkan nation in physical trim and to develop the country to the utmost.

If the "compulsory labor" quota were paid by the State the Bulgarian exchequer would be $5,000,000 poorer.

NAMED TO REPRESENT ECUADOR

James W. Spangler Appointed Vice Consul for St. Louis.

Announcement was made today that James N. Spangler, of the export department of the Stanard Tilton Milling Co., has been appointed Vice Consul of Ecuador for St. Louis. His office is in the quarters of the Ecuardorean Consulate in the Planters' Building. He resides at 5330 Pershing avenue.

Spangler announced that the Fifth International Exposition of Samples will be held in Guayaquil, Ecuador, for 10 days starting Oct. 5. He urges all manufacturing firms in this district to send samples of their products to the exposition. Samples may be shipped free of duty, he said.

OIL FOUND IN WEST AUSTRALIA

Wonderful Discovery, Says State's Minister of Mines.

By the Associated Press.

PERTH, Western Australia, Feb. 23.—Western Australia, recognized as one of the most remarkable mineral countries in the world, includes recently discovered mineral oil in its range of resources.

The Minister of Mines, S. W. Munsie, commenting on a report made by the Commonwealth Geologist, on the Freney company's bore, said definite assurance had been given that crude oil had been discovered in the State. The Minister hailed the announcement as a wonderful discovery.

STORY OF REVOLUTION TOLD BY LETTERS IN BIXBY COLLECTION

ances is to be had from ye humble & dutiful Petition & other wise Measures of the late honorable Continental Congress."

The provincial Congress had other measures to suggest wherein it was "earnestly desirous of ye Concurrence of your Colony." What those measures were is not stated But nine days later British shed the first American blood of the war at Lexington and retreated, Americans buzzing at their heels liks hornets, and as one biographer wrote:

"For Adams it was an hour of triumph. The British had fired first; the Americans had put the enemy in the wrong;' the two sides were committed; conciliation was no longer possible."

Cause of Shayes' Rebellion.

Massachusetts was not showing up so well 11 years later, when Gen. Lincoln began the report to George Washington. Wastefulness by the courts, high salaries in public office and excessive taxes levied desperately to sustain the credit of the state had provoked widespread discontent, which had provided Daniel Shays with several hundred "rebels."

"'Are your people getting mad?'" Gen. Lincoln quoted on Dec. 1, 1786, from Washington's request for information. 'Many of them appear to be absolutely so if an attempt to annihilate our present government can be considered as evidence of infirmity.

"There doth not appear to be virtue enough among the people to preserve a perfect Republican Government."

How to Handle Prisoners.

He broke off at the call of his State, dispersed Shays' malcontents, and, months later, gave his recipe for handling political prisoners, in connection with the disposition of cases against the "rebels":

"In her right hand Government must hold out such terms of mercy in the hour of success, with such evident marks of a disposition to forgive, as should apply to the feelings of the delinquents and beget in them sentiments of gratitude and love, by which they will embrace with the highest cordiality, the Government which they have attempted to trample under foot. This example in Government will have its influence upon individuals and be productive of the best effects among contending neighbors and divided families."

He concluded the inordinate "letter" with an apology to Washington for its length, "as I know your time is constantly engrossed in pursuits which have for their object the best interests and happiness of mankind."

CHARLOTTE KLOERIS

Missouri Lady Was Right

Within a few months there will be no more feverish, bilious, headachy constipated, pale and puny children! That prophecy would surely come true of every mother could see for herself how quickly, easily, and harmlessly the bowels of babies and children are cleansed, regulated given tone and strength by a product which has proved its merit and reliability to do what is claimed for it to millions of mothers in over fifty years of steadily increasing use

As mothers find out from using it how children respond to the gentle influence of California Fig Syrup by growing stronger, sturdier and more active daily they simply have to tell other mothers about it. That's one of the reasons for its overwhelming sales of over four million bottles a year.

A Missouri mother, Mrs. Wardie Kloeris, 5206 Kansas St., St. Louis says: "Before my daughter Charlotte, was a year old, she began having constipation. A friend got me to give her California Fig Syrup and in a few days she was all right and looked fine again. This pleased me so much that I have used Fig Syrup ever since for all her colds or little upset spells. It always stops her trouble quick, strengthens her, makes her eat."

Always ask for California Fig Syrup by the full name and see that the carton bears the word "California." Then you'll get the genuine.

How the Archbishop of St. Louis Ranged Himself Against Pope In 1870, Then Made Submission

Historian of Archdiocese Tells of Kenrick's Stand Opposing Doctrine of Infallibility at Last Ecumenical Council.

HOW the first Archbishop of St. Louis ranged himself against the Pope in the most momentous church controversy of modern times, and how he later made a dignified submission to the newly defined Papal authority, is told in the second volume of the "History of the Archdiocese of St. Louis," written by the Rev. John Rothensteiner.

The occasion was the Ecumenical Council of 1869-70, to which Pius IX summoned all Catholic Bishops of the world. The loss of the Pope's temporal power was impending. It was his belief that, for the preservation of the church and of society, spiritual authority must be strengthened. This could be done, he believed, only by concentrating such authority in his own person, and the persons of his successors.

The Ecumenical Council was called to consider a variety of matters, but the Bishops and the world at large knew that its chief purpose was to declare the infallibility of the Pope. Belief in his infallibility had long been widely held among Catholics, but it had never been officially set up as a dogma of the church. A majority of the Bishops would readily have voted for such a declaration. But unanimity was desired, and open discussion of the momentous question was deferred from the opening of the Council in December, 1869, to the middle of the following May.

Peter Richard Kenrick, then 63 years old, had been Archbishop of St. Louis since the creation of this archdiocese in 1850. He and his older brother, Francis Patrick Kenrick, Archbishop of Baltimore, who died several years before the calling of the Council, had been among the foremost figures of the church in this country.

Because of the great importance of Archbishop Kenrick in the history of the archdiocese, the historian, Father Rothensteiner, has found it necessary to handle at length the delicate subject of the Archbishop's attitude toward the dogma of infallibility. The historical work has the "imprimatur" of Archbishop Glennon, sanctioning its publication.

Tired of Stay in Rome.

"On March 6, 1870," the historian relates, "Archbishop Kenrick directed a letter from Rome to his faithful friend, Vicar-General Muehlsiepen, in which he gave expression to his feeling of weariness and dissatisfaction:

"'Most of us are very tired of Rome, and would willingly leave it. The Council has been now three months in session, and nothing has been done. * * * Regulations have been promulgated which appear to many, among whom I count myself, to be highly objectionable, and scarcely reconcilable with the liberty a Council should have. Their immediate effect is to suspend our ordinary general congregations, of which we have had three or four every week. In the last 12 days we have had none; and it is said that two or three weeks more may lapse before we be again summoned to meet.

"'The Council appears to have been convoked for the special purpose of defining the Papal Infallibility and enacting the proposition of the Syllabus as general laws of the Church. Both objects are deemed by a minority, of whom I am one, inexpedient and dangerous, and are sure to meet with serious resistance. The minds of both parties are considerably excited; and there is every reason to fear that the Council, instead of uniting with the Church those already separated from it, will cause divisions among ourselves most detrimental to Catholic interests. Let us pray that the Providence of God may overrule the passions of men.'"

The historian tells of the activity of Archbishop Manning of Westminster, London, in support of the doctrine of infallibility, and of the potent, though silent, influence exerted against the definition of the dogma by John Henry Newman, later a Cardinal, who was not present at the Council. The narrative continues:

"There was a comparatively small, but very able and tireless minority, whose members opposed the definition of the Infallibility of the Pope, who, however, were held together, not on a fixed principle of accord, but by an agreement to defeat, if possible, the majority of the so-called infallibilists.

Classes of Opposition.

"To analyze the constituent parts of this body we shall, with Cardinal Gibbons, class them according to ideas:

"'The first class comprised those who, believing the doctrine themselves, or at least favoring it speculatively, did not think it capable of definition, not deeming the tradition of the Church clear enough on this point.

"'A second class, the most numerous, regarded the definition as possible, but practically fraught with peril to the Church, as impeding conversions, as exasperating to governments. For the sake of peace, and for the good of souls, they would not see it proclaimed as of faith.'

"Our own Archbishop Kenrick was a member of this party, and in particular, one of the first class, as described by Cardinal Gibbons, favoring Papal Infallibility speculatively, as a theological opinion, but one not capable of definition.

"We, the Church's children of a later day, for whom the clear, comprehensive and concise definition of the Vatican Council has removed all doubt and most difficulties, may wonder how a churchman of Archbishop Kenrick's undoubted loyalty, genuine piety and strict orthodoxy could stand up before the assembled Bishops of the world, to oppose the doctrine of the Pope's infallibility; for oppose it he did, though not to the point of absolute denial.

"Archbishop Kenrick was too strong and outspoken a character to fear the possible effects of a truth, when he was convinced that it was a truth. He cannot, therefore, be called a mere opportunist, as some would have him considered. He held that the doctrine was not yet sufficiently clear, nor firmly established in the consciousness of the Church, to merit a dogmatic definition. In this sense he might have been called an opportunist.

Held an Honest Doubt.

"On listening, however, to the arguments of the opposition leaders, a number of whom were really great and good men, and himself revolving in his mind the numerous historical facts that seemed to contradict the opinion of the doctrine's defenders, an honest doubt arose in his mind, whether the Pope could judge securely and infallibly, unless he acted in union with the Universal Church, of which the Bishops were divinely appointed spokesmen.

"Of course there never was the least doubt in the Archbishop's mind, that infallibility was present in an Ecumenical Council, where the head and the members, the Pope and the Bishops, concurred in rendering a decision on faith or morals. Nor did he ever doubt that, if the Pope spoke as head of the church, even without the concurrence of the Bishops, his decision was infallible, if the Bishops of the world accepted it within reasonable time. 'Roma locuta, causa finita.' (Rome has spoken, the case is ended.) All this the great Archbishop saw as plainly as anyone.

"But what he does not seem to

CALVIN COOLIDGE—THE MAN AND HIS POLICIES

An Estimate of the Retiring President

Fundamental Character of New Englander Has Never Changed Through His Term of Office—Misunderstood by Public Because It Often Refused to Believe What Mr. Coolidge Plainly Said—Steadfast in Friendship for Big Business.

By CHARLES G. ROSS,
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.

CALVIN COOLIDGE entered the Presidency a dim and shadowy figure. Not much was generally known of him beyond the facts that he had served as Governor of Massachusetts, had been nominated for the Vice Presidency on the strength of a national reputation gained at the time of the Boston police strike, had been elected with Harding in the 1920 landslide, and had taken the oath of office as President, after Harding's death in 1923, by the flickering of an oil lamp in a Vermont farm house.

Through the five years and seven months since that date the outlines of the man have gradually become more distinct. A degree of mystery still attaches to him—a mystery which, I am persuaded, he has taken a sly delight in cultivating—but he goes out of office with certain attributes clearly defined. They are not new developments. They are bred into him and were nourished by his New England training and environment. Mr. Coolidge, in other words, has undergone no fundamental change in the Presidency, nor is he undergoing any now that he is about to retire. He is essentially the same person as the Calvin Coolidge of 1923 or 1920, or as far back as you please to go in his career. The only difference is that we have come to know him better.

New Demeanor in Latest Months.

It ought not to be necessary to labor the point, and it is mentioned here only because of a popular impression that some radical change has come over him. There has been a change, it is true, but it is superficial merely. It does not touch the roots of his character at all. The "new Mr. Coolidge" as he is being called is simply a Mr Coolidge who has grown a bit more carefree and a bit more outspoken during the closing months of his term.

His new demeanor is a perfectly natural growth. It is that of any normal man who is about to lay down a heavy burden. It began to show in him soon after he issued his famous "I do not choose to run" statement in the Dakota Hills, and it has become more perceptible ever since. The wonder is not that this development has taken place, but that anybody should regard it as remarkable.

The fact that it is not remarkable, however, has made it none the less interesting to observe. It has expressed itself in various ways. It led him, for one thing, to state his views on our foreign relations with unusual candor in his Armistice day address last November, and, for another, it permitted him to write the illuminating human document which he contributed to the fiftieth anniversary number of the Post-Dispatch.

The same development is seen in the freer expression of his views in recent conferences with reporters. Without any loss of dignity, he has, so to speak, loosened up, just as Mr Hoover, under the strain and the responsibility of the duties about to be imposed upon him, has noticeably tightened up. The one has relaxed and the other become tense. In each case the change was to be expected.

Unusual Record for Consistency.

LOOKING back over the Coolidge regime, it seems to the writer that an outstanding characteristic of the President is the consistence with which he has followed any course he has mapped out for himself. He has not fought for his policies as a Roosevelt or a Wilson would have fought, but he has stuck to them. It has been possible to predict his attitude toward important public questions from his utterances. All that one needed to do was to appraise his words at face value. It took some observers a long time to realize this. They preferred to read recondite meanings into simple statements.

There was, for example, the unvarnished assertion early in his administration: "I do not favor the bonus." Words could not have been plainer, but there were many who saw in the statement a loophole that would let the President sign a bonus bill. He had merely, it was argued, expressed a dislike of the bonus because of the demand it would make on the Treasury, and he would manage, when the right time came, to find a formula whereby he could approve a definite relief measure. It turned out that the President meant exactly what he said. A bonus bill was passed, vetoed by him and passed over his veto.

THESE two photographs emphasize the claim President Coolidge has made for himself—that he has been one of the healthiest of Presidents. The picture upon the left was taken within a few days after the death of Warren G. Harding in 1923. On the right is a photograph taken this winter by the noted English court photographer, Speaight of London. The two photographs indicate clearly enough that physically Mr. Coolidge has thrived through his Presidential years.

The same sort of prophecies were made after the passage of the first, and even after the passage of the second, McNary-Haugen farm relief bill. His opposition to the equalization fee was well known, but it was said by friends of the bill on each occasion—though rather faintly on the second—that for political reasons, in order to appease the wrath of the farmer, he would sign the bill. Again it was shown that he had meant precisely what he said. Not only that, but it was discovered anew that he was following a consistent course.

The McNary-Haugen bill was utterly out of tune with the economic philosophy of the President as laid down in his previous acts and words. He could not have signed it on either occasion without a complete reversal of position. He rejected it in unequivocal language the first time, and in language not only unequivocal but vehement the second time.

Believer in the Mission of Business.

SEARCH his record as President, and you must conclude, whether you think well or ill of the principles that have guided him, that he has been stubbornly consistent in applying them. He has sought to make the Republic safe for business, and he has let nothing divert him from that purpose. Toward the oil scandals that he inherited from the Harding regime he exhibited a complacency that no amount of hostile criticism was able to shake. He did not condone proved wrongdoing, but there was in him no sign of the white-hot rage that the exposures might have provoked in another man. Was his course for the ultimate best? You will answer that question according to your own economic bent. If you attach the superlative importance to business stability that Mr. Coolidge attaches, you may say that his policy of "Keeping Cool" was the best thing for the country in the long run. If you subscribe to another economic creed than his, you will regret that he did not throw caution to the winds, you will argue that there are times when the country does not need an opiate, but a stimulant that will make it fighting mad, even at the risk that it will lose some change out of its pocketbook.

The proposition is stated here without intent to argue it. For the purpose of this sketch, the point is merely that Mr. Coolidge in his attitude toward the oil scandals was altogether in character. He believes in the high mission of business, and in the Republican party as the party of business, and throughout his term of office he has given consistent expression to his philosophy. He is a strict believer in the Hamiltonian theory of Government.

We now know the President as a man not nearly so silent as we once believed. This myth of his silence was fostered by numerous stories of his failure to make small talk at dinner tables. Anecdotes of this kind represent but one side of him. He can, it is true, be like a clam when he pleases; no one can drag conversation from him when he chooses not to talk. But in his conferences with the press, which he has held regularly twice a week, he has been at times almost chatty. During the last year he has made about 20 public speeches, which comes close to being a presidential record. Without having the exact statistics, the writer ventures that he has uttered more words in public than any other President in the same length of time.

Learned to Play Late in His Life.

Mr. Coolidge has emerged into view as a thrifty man, both in his personal affairs and his conduct of the Government. He has made governmental economy his major policy—a policy which has determined his decision of many questions. We have come to know him as a man who has so ordered his work that he has been able to carry the tremendous burdens of the Presidency without impairment of his health. His physical condition, indeed, is better now than when he entered the White House. We know him, through his revealing letter to the Post-Dispatch, as a man who has carried his habits of thrift and order into his means of keeping himself fit. With his vibrating machines, he gets his exercise with the least possible expenditure of time.

Lately we have seen him learn how to play. He has found that fishing, which he once thought was a sport only for children, can give him pleasure, and still more recently he has taken up and become fond of trapshooting. The country has watched the sudden outcropping of his latent play instinct with sympathetic interest.

We have seen the myth exploded that he lacks a sense of humor. Probably this grew out of the legend of his silence. We know now that he likes to crack a joke, and we have observed him recently doing it more and more.

He has not been a fighting leader. He has been, his critics say, completely colorless. But he has left his imprint on the country, nevertheless. He has propagated the doctrine that the Government should keep its hands off business. He has helped to make big business combinations accepted as a matter of course. He has been largely instrumental in bringing the country to a state of mind which permits officials of the Government to be drafted from the House of Morgan with hardly a murmur of protest. He leaves the country prosperous and at peace with the rest of the world.

However, the future may appraise his achievements, no historian can overlook the fact of his influence on the country. He has made his mark upon our times.

3000 Census Takers to Count Missourians and Find Out How Much Property They Possess

Federal Undertaking Will Cost About $377,000 in This State Alone and Require a Month of Question Asking and Answering.

By WILLIAM P. HELM JR.
(Copyright, 1929.)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.

THE Federal Government, far along with its preliminary plans for taking the next census of population, agriculture and distribution, is preparing to spend $377,929 for census taking in Missouri, and has tentatively set aside that figure to defray the cost of field work in the State.

It has made the most careful preliminary estimate possible and places the probable population of Missouri at the time of taking the census at 3,548,000. The population of Missouri by the last census, in 1920, was 3,404,055. In St. Louis it is thought the population will approximate 875,000. The population in 1920 was 772,897.

Twelve to 14 supervisors, each in charge of a separate district, will superintend the actual count. Three or four of these supervisors will be detailed to the work in St. Louis alone. Supervisors will be appointed by the Director of the Census Bureau at Washington, probably upon recommendation of local political leaders, and will receive base pay of $2000 to $2500 for their work, which will extend over six to eight months.

Staff of Assistants Planned.

Each supervisor will have an assistant at a salary of $150 to $200 a month, and an adequate number of clerks, stenographers, interpreters and enumerators. The clerks will receive $75 to $125 a month; the interpreters an average of $5 a day; enumerators will be paid on a piecework basis of 3 to 5 cents a name, the exact figure being as yet undetermined. Their compensation probably will average 4 cents a name, and their pay $6 a day over the two-week period of their employment.

The taking of the St. Louis census probably will be completed within two to three weeks. In Missouri generally a longer period will be required, but not to exceed 30 days, it is thought.

In St. Louis, 450 to 600 enumerators will be appointed. Forty to 50 inspectors will get jobs, and 25 to 40 interpreters. In the entire State, from 2500 to 3000 enumerators will be employed. All these workers, as well as the clerks, will be selected by the supervisors. They will be coached in their work and enumerators will receive tests in advance of going out on their mission, but none will be required to take a Civil Service examination. Enumerators will be paid promptly on completing their work. Heretofore they have had to wait several weeks.

5 1-2 Cents a Name.

The Census Bureau estimates that the cost of enumerating Missouri's population will average 5½ cents a name. To meet this expense, the Census Bureau has tentatively allocated $195,140 in its budget. That figure covers all field work, but does not cover the salaries or traveling expenses of supervisors, or the cost of assembling and tabulating the returns at Washington.

Each supervisor will be supreme in his district, accounting only to the director of the census. At the present time, the geographer of the bureau and a large force of clerks are spending much time pouring over maps of Missouri cities, plotting the enumeration district by blocks and squares. This work has been going on for some time, and probably will be completed for Missouri within the next two or three months.

There will be a maximum of 600 enumeration districts, in all likelihood in St. Louis, so that each enumerator will be allotted from 1500 to 2000 names for canvassing. This tentative arrangement, however, may be altered with respect to enumerators in congested districts, where the work can proceed more rapidly.

In East St. Louis, one supervisor will direct the work of 40 to 50 enumerators. The supervisor there will have additional territory in Illinois, as well, under his jurisdiction. Roughly, the Census Bureau will spend about $3000 in paying enumerators in East St. Louis, and about $35,000 for enumeration in St. Louis. Total cost of field work in St. Louis alone is placed at approximately $50,000.

Early Figures Expected.

After the completion of the actual enumeration, the results will be announced locally, district by district, as fast as the supervisors can tally their totals. Thus it is expected that the population of St. Louis and East St. Louis will be announced by their local supervisors within two to three weeks after the close of census-taking. The population of the State of Missouri probably will be announced within two to three months after completion of enumeration. This is an innovation; in previous censuses, results were announced at Washington after the lapse of weeks or months.

Supervisors' totals, announced locally, will be subject to final revision later at Washington, but revisions are not expected to disclose any wide variation from the original count.

One of the reasons for making the change is the desire of the Census Bureau to be able to retake promptly the census in any district or city in which the original enumeration is obviously incorrect or is made the basis of organized complaint. In 1920, the bureau retook the census in about 500 localities. Its work was hampered by the lapse of time, in many instances, subsequent to the original count. This it seeks to avoid in the forthcoming census.

Census of Business, Too.

Another innovation—welcome to St. Louis business organizations—will be the census of distribution. The bureau has been at work on the plan for getting this new and important information for months. Briefly, this census is designed to show the volume of business of all kinds transacted annually in St. Louis and Missouri, and, of course, the entire nation.

The distribution census will be taken at the same time as the population census. The bureau, in its preliminary survey, estimates that there are 1,500,000 business firms in the United States, of which 52,553 are doing business with headquarters in Missouri. Each of these firms is due for a visit from the census takers.

These firms will be classified in from 45 to 50 groups, and the census will be undertaken on the basis of these groups rather than commodities. Thus all the grocery stores will be put in one group, the jewelry stores in another, cigar stores in a third, and so on down the list, including shoe stores, bakeries, clothing stores, department stores, feed and fertilizer establishments, coal merchants and others.

Group Idea Decided On.

It was originally contemplated that this census should be taken by commodities, and meetings were arranged with retail and wholesale groups to determine what commodities should be listed. The number ran to more than 500, and still requests poured in for additions. It was found to be too unwieldy for practical purposes; moreover, few merchants keep accurate records showing their sales in such detail. The original plan was abandoned for the group idea.

Enumerators will be assigned to

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

An Old Oklahoman Muses.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

FOR several years I have enjoyed the feature section of the Post-Dispatch. It is different from most papers. And I can sincerely compliment you on the general character of the section.

But in a recent issue there is a story from Fayetteville about Jesse James. This correspondent may be excused for his laudatory attitude concerning Missouri's great bandit, but he gets some facts and dates sadly awry. For example, he says that "Dr." Feathers lived at Joplin, where he first met Jesse. Later the "doctor" moved to Monett, where he sojourned for some time, and "afterwards went to Fayetteville in 1882." That is a whopper.

There was no Monett in 1882. Peirce City was the division point, and the site of the present Monett was a mere flag station four miles east of Peirce City, and was called Plymouth Junction. The junction part was due to the fact that the Fayetteville-Fort Smith-Paris branch left the main line at that place.

I marketed potatoes at Plymouth Junction in 1886, and there was not even a depot there—just a little shack of a place, and a loading rack, where we could put the spuds aboard.

It was not until 1887 that some farmer drilled—no, dug a well at Plymouth, and after blasting through a lime caprock, tapped what appeared to be a subterranean lake. The heaviest pumps failed to cause a variation in the water line, and the Frisco Railroad paid that farmer $7000 for the 40-acre tract. Then business picked up. Monett became the name, and a city appeared as if by magic. The railroad company built a combination hotel and station—all frame. Unfortunately, it soon burned down, and was rebuilt as now.

Railroad shops and the division headquarters were immediately transferred from Peirce City to the new town, and Peirce City languished. Water was the entire thing. Peirce had a supply that the railroad management regarded as limited. The presence of unlimited quantities at Plymouth Junction accounts for Monett.

Incidentally, I spent my early life about those towns mentioned in "Dr." Feathers' story, and if there were any such incidents as the bandits making advance dates for any of those towns, I never heard of it. And I was present.

Oh, well, there is no harm in the story. I am not complaining. I merely had a little leisure this evening and feel that you may enjoy a recital of conditions and dates as they really were.

What do you think of our Oklahoma now? Henry is certain to get his, just as did the impossible Walton. And it is worthy of note that Gov. Trapp escaped, as did Andrew Johnson—by a one-vote margin.

We are being tried by fire down here. When we emerge, as we shall, it will be as a greatly purified people. And it is possible that we shall be a very humble people. However, that last is difficult, indeed, for too many of us are from Missouri. GEORGE RILEY HALL.

Henryetta, Ok.

Privacy for Lindbergh.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

COL. LINDBERGH has done much for the fair fame of St. Louis. Can't we now do something for him? Give him the one thing that hasn't been given him yet—the thing that he would prefer to any gift—a little privacy for his courtship, wedding and honeymoon?

Let St. Louis call on the rest of the world to join her in showing him this consideration. Let us be good sports and submerge our interest in his private affairs for awhile. L. R. G.

Mr. Crain's Bill.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I NOTICE that Representative T. C. Crain of Christian County introduced a bill in the Legislature amending the 1923 act by making it a felony to manufacture, sell or give away any beverage containing more than one-half of 1 per cent of alcohol by volume. This bill, he said, he received from United States District Attorney William L. Vandeventer of Kansas City, who has succeeded Roscoe C. Patterson, United States Senator.

Had Mr. Crain been born at Salem, Mass., in the days of the Rev. Cotton Mather, when they hanged witches, he would have been at the right place at the right time, but being a resident of Missouri in this age of progress, it seems that from a historical standpoint, Mr. Crain was born at the wrong time and also at the wrong place.

J. B. DICKEY.

Not a New Idea.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

YOU carried an article that the chairman of the present Election Board has secured the use of the public schools as polling places, and that this was an uplift movement on his part to raise the standard of the type of polls.

The old adage tells us that there is nothing new under the sun, and this is true here, for if you will take the trouble to investigate you will find that other Election Commissioners used the schools, and that this is therefore not a new or novel idea.

Your paper claims to be fair, and we want you to know so that you can give credit where credit is due.

A FORMER ELECTION JUDGE.

MR. COOLIDGE'S GLOWING PICTURE.

Sir Austen Chamberlain, making a campaign speech in England, indicated a slight rift in the lute of harmony between the United States and all nations except Russia which President Coolidge pictured glowingly in his Washington birthday address. Mr. Coolidge said there was not a disturbing element in all our foreign relations with those nations with which we had relations. Sir Austen said that differences existed between the United States and Great Britain but the British Government was now making a survey of the disputes and would formulate a proposal which he expected would establish permanent and firm friendship between the two countries.

On the same day the United States Senate voted to withdraw our marines from Nicaragua and to cut off money supplies after July 1, on the ground that we have fulfilled our election obligations and had no further business there.

Although our differences with Great Britain are not now serious, there is a possibility of serious implications and effects, and the settlement of them in the manner suggested by Sir Austen Chamberlain, coupled with the ending of the Nicaragua adventure, establishing a policy of noninterference in Central America, would go far toward realizing the happy picture that Mr. Coolidge drew.

It is gratifying to note that Mr. Coolidge discriminated between the alliances against which Washington warned us and associations of nations organized to promote peace and the interests of all. He said the only alliances in existence in Washington's time were formed for offensive or defensive purposes. That was the kind of Alliance Washington had in mind, and it was freedom from that sort of alliance with any other nation or group of nations that Mr. Coolidge had in mind when he spoke of the advantage of our detachment, through which we could have friendly and helpful relations with all nations.

Mr. Coolidge, however, puts out of the class of group alliances, which we should avoid, international organizations and associations designed to effect cooperation for world peace and welfare. Clearly this includes the World Court and League of Nations. Mr. Coolidge has already indicated through the Kellogg effort to open the way to our participation in the Permanent Court of International Justice that he thinks we should join the other nations in supporting and using the court. Mr. Hoover, of course, will have to finish the work that Mr. Coolidge has started. But our feet are in the path to international co-operation for law and peace.

FEDERAL BIRD REFUGES.

Federal bird refuges, something for which Congress has long been importuned, are now happily assured. The bill authorizing them has been signed by Mr. Coolidge, whose sympathy with it was known. It carries a progressive appropriation beginning with $75,000 the first year for a survey, and increasing to $200,000 in 1930. This mounts to $1,000,000 a year for each of the seven years after 1932, and after 1939 it recedes to $200,000 a year for maintenance. About 125 refuges will be established.

The refuges will be purchased or leased by a commission consisting of the Secretaries of Agriculture, Commerce and the Interior, and two members each of the House and Senate delegated by those bodies, and the Game Commissioner of the state concerned. The Government of the United States is thus committed in most impressive fashion to the great conservation policy of providing feeding and resting grounds for the increasing myriads of waterfowl which has resulted from the migratory bird treaty between this country and Canada. Wild ducks, which have become an immense recreational asset, are so numerous that providing food and refuge for them has become as essential as limiting the shooting season and the bag. Under the bird refuge law the Government will co-operate with the states in creating suitable refuges in each State and protecting and feeding the birds on them while they are in the locality.

It is estimated that such a system of refuges can be completed within the next 25 years at a total cost of approximately $50,000,000, some part of which will come from the states and from private gifts.

THE ANTHEM SEMI-FINALS.

The contest sponsored by Mrs. Florence Brooks-Aten to provide a new national anthem has simmered down to 10 lyric poems, thus far without music. The 10 poets have divided the prize and have $100 each for their labors. Among the winners are such songsters as Arthur Guiterman, Berton Braley, Edwin Markham and Grantland Rice, who doubtless get more than that for their contributions to magazines. But this is for a patriotic cause, so they have twanged their lyres at bargain rates.

Braley has chosen the meter of Julia Ward Howe's "Battle Hymn," and his entry should declaim very well. It starts like this:

With the ring and swing of hammers on the plowshare and the keel
We are building for tomorrow, forging visions out of steel.

A Philadelphia poetess, one of the first 10, manages to get references to Atlas, Vulcan and Jove into her first seven verses, and ends with the ringing line: "Colossus of the world!" That noble sentiment seems ready-made for the European cartoonists, and should be immensely popular across the waters.

Markham's muse follows the pattern set by "My Country, 'Tis of Thee," and he calls his entry "New America." It ends with the lines: "One shelter of the free, One house of Friends," perhaps intended for a tribute to the next President's religion.

Several great tasks confront the advocates of a new national anthem. Now they must decide on one of the 10 prize-winning song poems; then they must select appropriate music, and lastly they must persuade Congress and the people to adopt their choice. True, "The Star-Spangled Banner" may have the melody of an old English pre-prohibition song, its high notes may be impossible for mass singing and its lines may be hard to remember. But it has been sending patriotic shivers up the American spine for many years, and it has such a long start in tradition and general acceptance that the product of a prize contest will have a long, hard pull to overtake it.

THE TRIUMPHANT RIVERS.

That river transportation on the Mississippi and its principal tributaries will have reached railroad efficiency by 1932, with daily sailings from all ports on the Mississippi, Missouri, Ohio, Illinois and Warrior rivers, would have seemed an impossible dream a few years ago.

Yet that is what Gen. T. Q. Ashburn, chairman of the board of the United States Inland Waterways Corporation, says going to happen. The corporation recently received a $10,000,000 appropriation from Congress for new equipment. Of this, $2,500,000 is available now; and another $1,500,000 will be available next July. This money will go into equipment for the upper and lower Mississippi and the Warrior rivers. In July, 1930, $3,000,000 will be available to equip the service to Kansas City; and in July, 1931, another $3,000,000 will be available for equipment on the Illinois River. The channels upon the Upper Mississippi and the Lower Missouri, both six feet, and that upon the Illinois, to be nine feet, will be complete by 1932.

Altogether the corporation will build some 14 new towboats and 150 barges, using the deep-draft craft on the Mississippi below Memphis and the lighter-draft craft on the upper rivers. Gen. Ashburn says it will have taken nine years to create an efficient transportation system, and, strangely enough, the experience of steamboat men on the inland waters has been of almost no service to the operation. The barge lines have had to feel their own way and learn from their own experience. Except they had the United States Government behind them they could not possibly have held out.

One of the interesting features of the development is that transportation upon the inland waters does not work an injury to the railroads. Upon the contrary, it helps them. Yet the railroads have been the arch enemies of the river revival. They were thinking of it in terms of the freight movements of 10 and 20 years ago. They are too busy taking care of their own share of freight movements today to think about competition. The time is fast coming when the boats and barges will be as indispensable to them as they are to the boats and barges. Indeed, they have even now almost ceased to resist joint rates between the two types of transportation. They have learned that they, as well as the rivers, constitute a web in which every part is essential to the whole. The river people have always known that this is what would happen, but it took time to convince the railroads of it. They occupied the field alone, and they were fearful of admitting to it again a competitor they had once put out of business.

It is a triumphant outcome to one of the most stubborn struggles in the history of the United States.

HOW FAST JACKRABBITS?

After the weighty matters of a presidential campaign and the Reed-Borah debate on prohibition, it is really restful to think of something so unimportant as the speed of jackrabbits.

Jackrabbits are doing 35 miles. Ira N. Garielson, biologist in rodent control, United States Biological Survey, renders this opinion officially. His witnesses are Kansas bus drivers and motorists. It seems that an occasional jackrabbit will run straightaway before a bus or a car on a concrete road, which has made the measurement exact. Dr. Garielson has it from several people that 35 miles is correct. In some instances the observers have pushed the jackrabbit too hard and compelled it to jump offside, indicating that 35 miles is its limit.

Dr. Garielson is afraid most people will doubt these stories that jackrabbits will run straightaway before busses and cars sometimes as far as half a mile, but we imagine they will be accepted. It is true that jackrabbits have not been doing this sort of thing, but that was no doubt because they did not have a good place to run. Opening up on rough prairie was out of the question, and jackrabbits knew it.

The Kiel-Miller contest for the Republican Mayoralty nomination is largely devoted to the question of which has done most for the city. The bond issue and all the improvements involved in it should be left out of the count. The citizens of St. Louis organized the bond issue movement and carried the election. The question of importance is that of economical and efficient expenditure of both bond money and current revenues. That is the main thing.

MR. CUSHING ON THE OZARKS.

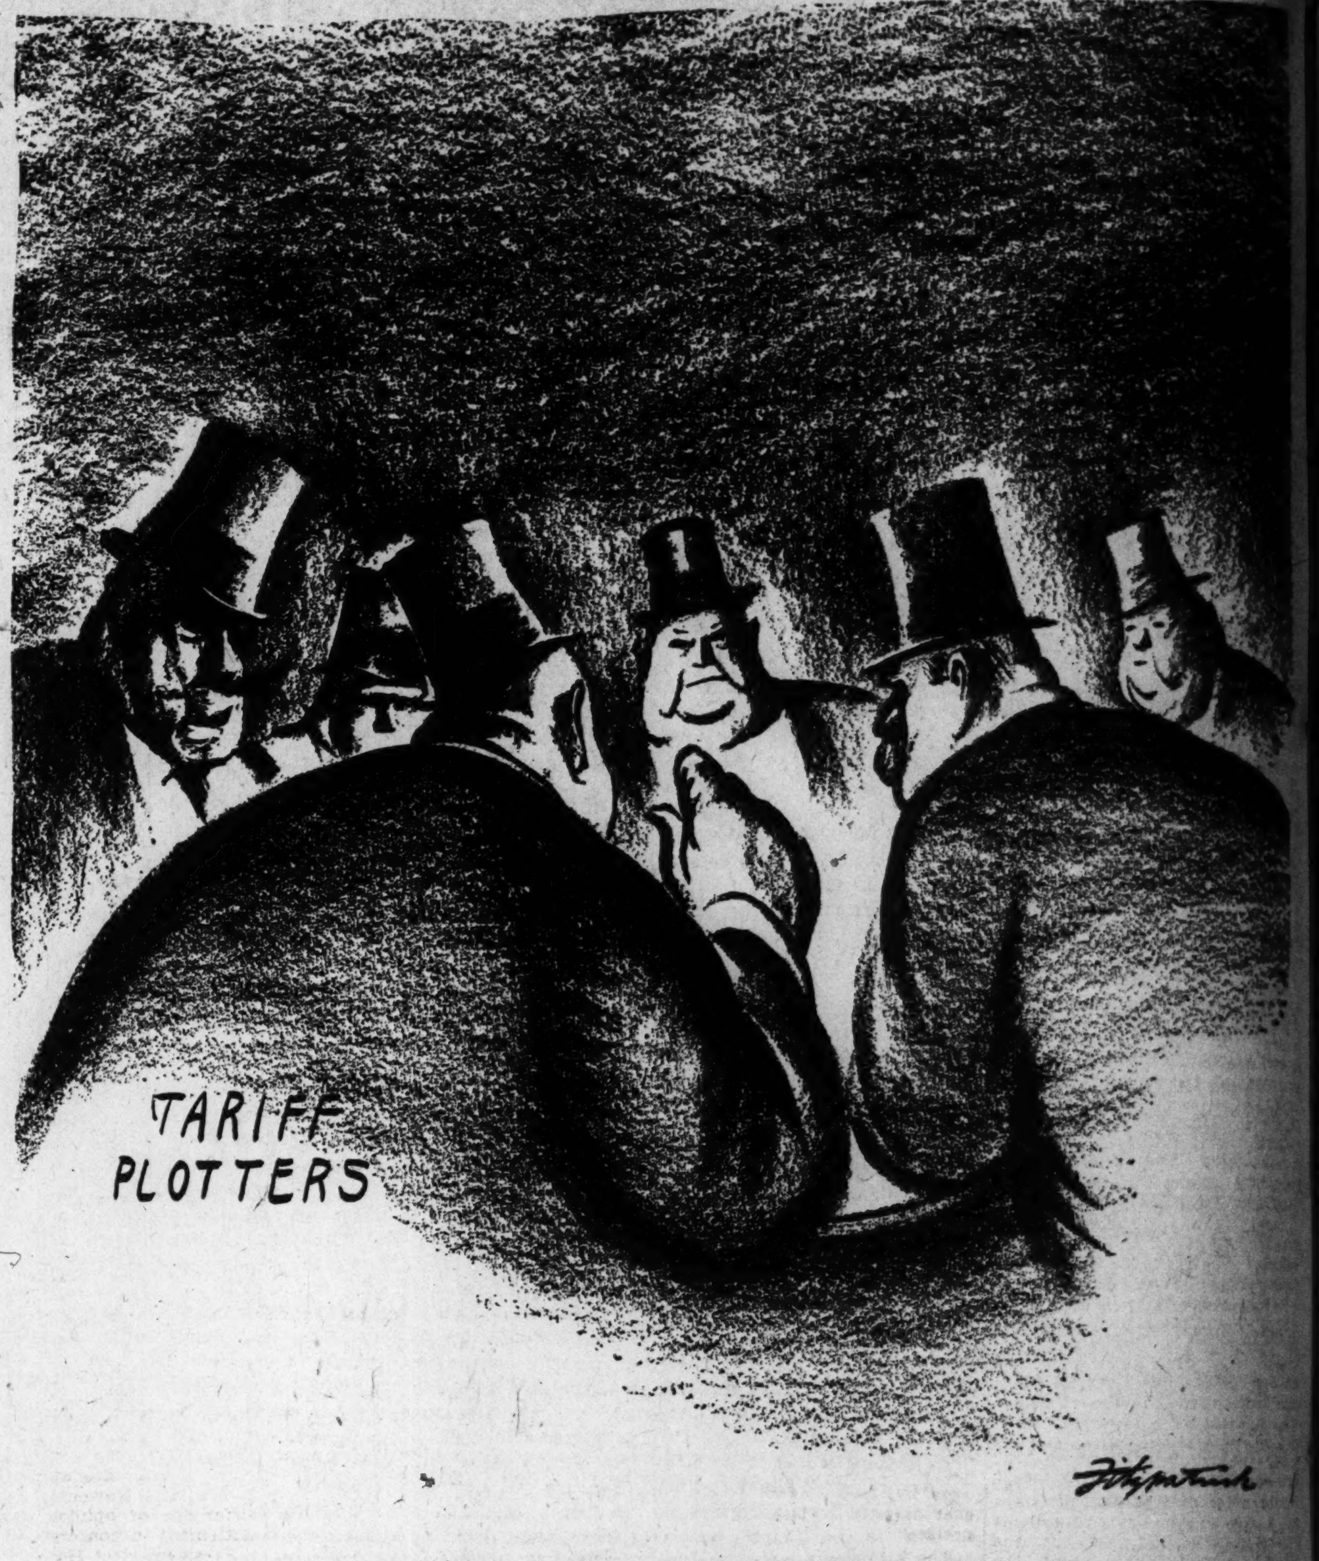
In a letter to the New York Herald-Tribune, Charles Phelps Cushing approves that newspaper's protest against raising Mena National Forest in Arkansas to the dignity of Ouachita National Park and voices some vigorous views on national park policy. The Ouachita region, he points out, has already been recognized; in fact, the Hot Springs reservation was our first National park. It was set aside in 1832, four years before Yellowstone.

Instead of painting the lily with another Ouachita park, Mr. Cushing inquires, why not preserve one of the giant cold-water springs of the Ozarks? Pointing out that Arkansas' Mammoth Spring has recently fallen into the clutches of a power development corporation, he says:

> In the Missouri county just to the north of Mammoth is another of these cold-water giants; this one, Greer, has a maximum flow almost great enough to supply New York. A public-spirited St. Louis capitalist refuses to sell it for any kind of exploitation, or its fate might be as sad as Mammoth's. The lovely valley of Hahatonka in Camden County, Mo., with another giant spring and with a dozen other outstanding scenic attractions within a radius of not more than half a mile, is being preserved by a Kansas City capitalist.

And while he is asking questions, Mr. Cushing wants to know why the Government doesn't make a reservation of Pilot Knob in Iron County, which was "discovered" by C. E. Siebenthal of the U. S. Geological Survey. Pilot Knob is a museum piece of the exposed strata of the earth's crust of enormous interest to all students of geology, and it "is being hacked to bits by a rock quarry."

Perhaps the answer to Mr. Cushing's inquiries is that the natural treasures of the Ozarks, most of which are now subject to the vicissitudes of private ownership, have never been advertised as have those of other sections. It is hardly an exaggeration to say that the Ozarks are an unexplored wilderness of whose beauty and variety even many Missourians are ignorant. The State has been busy setting aside small parks, but only a National park would bring this region the celebrity that it needs. It is an ideal national playground and something had better be done to preserve it as such before it is too late.



GOING TO BE A GREAT HELP TO THE FARMER.

Wanted: A Super-Tariff

This is the platform of Joseph R. Grundy, president of the Pennsylvania Manufacturers' Association, who turned in $547,000 to the Hoover campaign fund; advocates of blanket embargoes against foreign goods have marched upon Washington to make their demands upon Congress.

From the Nation.

NO, not Mrs. Grundy, most censorious of gossips, but Joseph R. Grundy of Philadelphia, president of the Pennsylvania Manufacturers' Association, "the most influential group of its kind in the United States." This is the man who has now thrown down the gauntlet to Herbert Hoover, with a daring unsurpassed in the records of tariff insolence and tariff grabbing. He and his crowd think themselves the real masters of the Republican party—and well they may. For 50 years they have put up the cold cash and helped to buy election after election—notably that of 1888, when Cleveland opposed them with his program of tariff-for-revenue-only. Mr. Grundy himself, having turned in the considerable sum of $547,000 to Herbert Hoover's campaign treasury, naturally feels he has a proprietary interest in the incoming administration. So he has opened an office in Washington and has issued an ultimatum to Mr. Hoover and to Congress that he is there to get a "super-tariff," that he will accept nothing less than a "blanket embargo" on every import competing with any Pennsylvania product whatsoever. When, according to Elliott L. Thurston of the New York World, he was told that that would imperil the Republican party in the next election, he replied that he was out to get the tariff and that it was up to the party leaders to look after the election.

Admirable Mr. Grundy! He is everything that a boss of his type ought to be—frank, above board, realistic, clear in his own mind as to just what he wants and determined to get it. Why should he not have his pound of flesh? It is true that he did not give as much to Mr. Hoover's campaign as to Mr. Coolidge's, for which he raised $700,000, nor as much as he gave to Gov. Fisher in the notorious primary of 1926, when he was the vehicle for $615,000 which reached Mr. Fisher's treasury. None the less, probably nobody else raised as much for Mr. Hoover as he and nobody else deserves more generous spoils. He is not in business for his health and neither are his Pennsylvania associates. They want what they want when they want it.

We confess that we find ourselves in deepest sympathy with their plans. We are delighted that they want to do away with all this tariff tinkering, with the emasculated Tariff Commission, with this having to go to Congress every four or five years for bigger and richer profits. Being practical men, they want to clean this thing up once for all and to end all further controversy by shutting out for good any competing goods whatsoever. The Chinese wall of the tariff is to be erected so high that no foreigners will even make the effort to get any goods over it—no matter how much money their Governments may owe us for war advances. Let us have a showdown, by all means, as to who really runs the Republican party. The Nation has been saying for 60 years that it was the tariff-fed manufacturers. We naturally have an interest in seeing our thesis proved correct. Besides that, we always believe that when people pay for something they should get it. That is still the fundamental principle of barter and trade.

Mr. Hoover does not, however, seem to realize it. Mr. Grundy having dispatched his willing disciple, Senator Reed Smoot, to the President-elect in his Florida retreat, the word is now forthcoming that, unmindful of that $547,000 campaign contribution, the tariff will be raised only in those things which are deemed by Mr. Hoover to be essential to farm relief—about 15 per cent of the list. So the battle is on and Congress is in for an extremely unhappy summer. For Mr. Grundy and his Pennsylvanians will be backed by every one of the dissatisfied tariff profiteers who have been rushing to Washington to tell their silent partner, Uncle Sam, just how much additional profit they want. It is indeed a Great Parade of the profiteers. The wool growers are, as usual, well to the front in the procession. They believe that the public has forgotten all about Schedule K and their demand in 1910 for a rate of 33 cents a pound which President Taft denounced as "prohibitive" and as "a temptation to monopoly and to conspiracies to control domestic prices"—that dear, kindly, innocent gentleman never suspecting that that is just what a tariff is in its every form. So the wool growers are now asking for rates running from 36 to 40 cents a pound. The appetite grows with the plundering. High-power lobbyists are working for them and so are all the wool dealers' associations in the country. Only the Carded Woolen Manufacturers' Association has ratted. It declares that wool growers and manufacturers have so rigged the tariff that some rates are now as high as 387 per cent, although, because of the complexity of the schedules, the public does not remotely suspect this.

So we are for a battle to the finish. The bitterer the fight the more the nature of the whole tariff swindle will come into the open; the greater the chance for the voters to realize what it really means and why it is that the Republican party has so little difficulty in "frying the fat" out of the protected manufacturers and thereafter has to bow its neck meekly to the yoke. People will see the clearest-cut spectacle of special privilege afforded by the American scene. If they look deep enough they will understand one compelling reason why political life here is so full of graft and corruption; they will understand why the protective tariff has been called the mother of Socialism.

If Mr. Hoover really proposes to match wits and powers with Mr. Grundy, he will render a great service to the country. Unfortunately, his hands are tied. His campaign speeches are full of adulation of the tariff system. No one could be more thoroughly committed to it than he is. It has been the cornerstone of his doctrine of prosperity, and prosperity is his gospel, his idol. He has gone into office on the platform of the full garage, and his plan is to make out of the one-car garage a two-car garage, with both stalls full. It must, therefore, be a terrible blow to him to have to begin his administration by a battle over the system which he says is the foundation of American progress. Nor can he complain if he finds himself abused as an ingrate and an obstructor of traffic if he attempts to limit the new tariff favors to the 15 per cent of the total which it is supposed may bring prosperity to the farmer.

WASHINGTON DAY BY DAY

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.

CAPITOL HILL is seeking an answer to this question: What prompted Senator Joe Robinson to discard his high top shoes and don handsome gray spats?

These articles of apparel now have become a fixed part of the Arkansas Senator's dress, and he wears them well. There is nothing suggestive of dudishness (to use a word frequently heard in Arkansas) in the Senator's appearance when he wears them. Not at all. Rather they add to dignity of the distinguished Democrat. But the question persists—why did he take them up?

Someone suggests that the spats are just a hangover from the presidential campaign. This solution will not hold up, however, for the date of adoption goes back farther. Others are of the opinion that it is because Jim Reed—also a bespatted Democrat—soon is to quit the Senate, and Senator Robinson felt that the Republicans should not be allowed to have a monopoly.

Well, whatever his motive, the fact remains that spats still are to be worn by a distinguished Democrat on Capitol Hill, and that Nick Longworth and Charlie Curtis are not to be alone in their sartorial elegance.

THE United States Senate is a place that should not be overlooked by those interested in what the well-dressed man in public life should wear.

Take Senator Heflin of Alabama. His mode of dress has long since become a part of him. Let him change the cut of that long black coat or don anything but that cream-colored vest and it is a safe bet he would pass through the corridors of the Capitol unnoticed. To discard the long black ribbon from which dangles gold-rimmed nose glasses would be as equally fatal to the appearance of the gentleman from Alabama.

Then there is Senator Bayard of Delaware and his flowing black windsor tie. No part of it is ever seen tucked in his waistcoat. It is always billowing on the outside, and when he warms up in debate it is almost as effective as any gesture he has.

SENATOR OVERMAN of North Carolina is the type everyone imagines a United States Senator is. He looks the part.

Cole Blease of South Carolina is one of the most picturesque figures in the Senate when he chooses to dress the part. Borah's long hair and double breasted suits are definitely his own. Then, of course, there is Charlie Dawes and the familiar V collar.

The senior Senator from Maryland, Senator Bruce, is always correctly and immaculately attired. Senator Theodore E. Burton of Ohio is another just as meticulous as Senator Bruce.

Hiram Johnson is famous for his taste in selecting cravats. Senator Bingham's light gray suits are evidently preferred because of his snow-white hair.

Controversy of Early Day Archbishop of St. Louis

have seen for a time was that the Pope's decisions must be infallible in themselves. Yet such is the fact. For if the Pope could err in official decisions on faith or morals while the Bishops, either in council assembled or dispersed throughout the world, faithfully held to the truth, the seamless garment of the church would be rent asunder, the unity of faith would be lost."

Archbishop Kenrick, the historian relates, prepared a Concio, or address setting forth his views, which he intended to deliver before the council. July 4, 1870, at a session when he was not present, an agreement was reached by which further speeches on both sides were eliminated. Determined to bring his views to the knowledge of the fathers of the council, the Archbishop sent his secretary, Father Smith, to Naples, to supervise the publication of his Concio in pamphlet form. It was intended for the fathers of the council only, but copies came into other hands, and an English translation of it was published later by the American Tract Society, a Protestant organization.

Defense of Bishops.

"Archbishop Kenrick's Concio," Father Rothensteiner says, "is not so much an attack upon the Pope's infallibility, as rather a defense of the infallibility of the Bishops united with the Pope."

At the final vote, taken July 19, most of the minority Bishops absented themselves, and of those present, only two voted "Non placet" (it does not please). One of these was Bishop Fitzgerald of Little Rock, Ark., the other was a French prelate. Both these Bishops, the historian relates, gave in their adhesion immediately, Bishop Fitzgerald saying to the Pope, "Now I believe, Most Holy Father."

"Archbishop Kenrick's 'Submission to the Vatican Decrees" is the subject of a chapter in Father Rothensteiner's book.

"Archbishop Kenrick," he writes, "left Rome sad at heart, and undecided as to his future course. There were some men of honored name who tried to draw him into open rebellion. Those who knew that Archbishop Kenrick never failed to make his daily meditation, had no fear for him in this regard. Such a man of prayer would not follow in the footsteps of a Doellinger or a Reinkens (German scholars who left the Church rather than accept the dogma of infallibility.) Yet the future looked dark and perplexing. * * *

"The Archbishop arrived in St. Louis Dec. 31, 1870, after an absence of more than 14 months. He declined a public reception, yet an ecclesiastical reception was arranged for the following Sunday. It was held at St. John's Church, and all the bells of the Catholic churches of the city were rung in honor of the occasion. An address was read by the Vicar-General, the Very Rev. P. J. Ryan, in the presence of many of the clergy of the diocese. The Archbishop responded feelingly, saying:

"'To that portion of the address which refers to my course in the Vatican Council, I have this to say: Up to the very period of that Council I had held as a theological opinion what that Council has decreed to be an article of Christian Faith, and yet I was opposed, most strongly, to its definition. I knew that the misconceptions of its character would be an obstacle in the way of the diffusion of Catholic truth. At least I thought so.

Why He Took Stand

"'I feared, in certain parts of Europe especially, that such a definition might lead to the danger of schism in the Church; and on more closely examining the question itself, in its intrinsic evidence, I was not convinced of the conclusiveness of the arguments by which it was sustained, or of its compatibility with certain well ascertained facts of ecclesiastical history which rose up strongly before my mind. These were the motives of my opposition.

"'The motive of my submission is simply and singly the authority of the Catholic Church. That submission is a most reasonable obedience, because of the necessity of obeying and following an authority established by God; and having the guaranty of our Divine Savior's perpetual assistance is in itself evidence, and cannot be gainsaid by anyone who professed to recognize Jesus Christ as his Savior and his God.

"'Simply and singly on that authority, I yield obedience and full and unreserved submission to the definition, concerning the character of which there can be no doubt, as emanating from the Council and subsequently accepted by the greater part even of those who were in the minority on that occasion. In yielding this submission, I say to the Church in the words of Peter and of Paul, "To whom, O Holy Mother, shall we go, but to thee? Thou hast the words of eternal life; and we have believed and have known that thou art the pillar and the ground of Truth."'

"Some theologians," Father Rothensteiner writes, "found fault with the phrase, 'Simply and singly on the authority of the Church I yield,' as if the Archbishop meant only an exterior act without an interior conviction. This was a rank injustice, as implying that he, for the sake of being left in place, consented to say what he did not believe. As Archbishop Ryan wrote in his later Memorial, on the death of his friend, 'Submission to a doctrine means believing it, and without such faith, submission were hypocrisy, of which no man ever dared to accuse the departed prelate.'"

The historian quotes from a letter written by Archbishop Kenrick to Lord Acton, in which the Archbishop said, "I submitted most unreservedly, taking the words of the decree in their strict and literal significance." In the same letter, he wrote, "I was well understood to mean that the act was one of pure obedience, and was not grounded on the removal of my motives of opposition to the decree as referred to in my reply, and set forth in my pamphlets." Father Rothensteiner devotes some space to reconciling these two statements.

In his correspondence with Lord Acton, the historian goes on to say, Archbishop Kenrick admitted having made a mistake in an important point of his argument. This point was that Papal infallibility, before the definition, was not an article of faith. Of this, the Archbishop wrote that his proof was incomplete, and that fuller consideration appeared to establish the contrary.

"Notwithstanding my submission," Archbishop Kenrick wrote to Lord Acton, "I shall never teach the doctrine of papal infallibility, so as to assure from Scripture or tradition in its support, and shall leave to others to explain its compatibility with the facts of ecclesiastical history. As long as I may be permitted to remain in my present station, I shall confine myself to administrative functions, which I can do the more easily without attracting observation, as for some years back I have seldom preached.

"I have steadfastly refused to publish a pastoral letter on the Council, though urged thereto by one of my suffragans, by the Archbishop of San Francisco, and indirectly, through the suffragan Bishop referred to, by Cardinal Barnabo. I have also declined to write to the Pope, though the last-named (Cardinal Barnabo) invited me to do so. I have also refused to take any part in the demonstrations which have been made generally in the United States in favor of the Temporal Power, and my name is not found among those who, in this city, prepared and sent to Rome an address to the Pope on the occasion of the Italian occupation of his territory. I mention these circumstances to show your lordship that in what I have done I have not been actuated by any desire to stand well with the church authorities in Rome."

Comment of Pope.

In closing his chapter on this subject, the historian quotes words which were attributed to Pope Pius IX. "Mgr. Kenrick is a great man, but he is as pious as he is great, and he is as orthodox as he is pious and great." A later judgment was that of Pope Leo XIII, who, after Archbishop Kenrick's death in 1896, said, as quoted by Cardinal Gibbons:

"The Metropolitan of St. Louis was a noble man and a true Christian Bishop. When he sat in council as a judge of the faith, he did according to his conscience, and the moment the decision was taken, though it was against him, submitted with the filial piety of a Catholic Christian."

Volume I of the History of the Archdiocese of St. Louis was reviewed in the Post-Dispatch Jan. 20. It covered the period from the earliest Catholic missions to 1847. Volume II brings the record to the present, describing the administrations of Archbishops Kenrick, Kain and Glennon, and giving data regarding the various parishes of St. Louis and outlying parts of the diocese. The building of the Cathedral and Kenrick Seminary, by the efforts of Archbishop Glennon, is related at length. The two-volume history, which has 1700 pages and many illustrations, is issued by the Catholic Historical Society of St. Louis, 3810 Lindell boulevard.

3000 Census Takers To Count Missourians

ascertain from each of Missouri's 52,553 firms the volume of its business during the preceding year, the number of persons employed, the amount paid in salaries and wages, and other details.

After this information is obtained it will be assembled and tabulated at Washington, so that when the work is completed, a fairly accurate picture will be presented of the patron's business by main commodity groups and by states and cities. The volume of business done annually in St. Louis and Missouri, it is expected, will rank extremely high per capita; details of the business transacted, however, probably will furnish many surprises. At the present time no official information of this sort is obtainable.

Cost to Be $5,000,000.

The cost of making the distribution census throughout the nation is officially estimated at $5,000,000. In Missouri, enumerators will be paid $1 a firm for obtaining the information, and $52,553 has been set aside tentatively in the bureau's budget to meet this expense.

A farm census of Missouri will be undertaken at the same time. This is the regular agricultural census taken every five years. It is, perhaps, the most detailed and difficult of all the censuses taken. Enumerators will be compensated at an average rate of 50 cents for each farm visited. There are 260,473 farms in the State and $130,236 has been set aside in the bureau's allocations of funds for that purpose.

Thus the grand total to be paid enumerators and other field workers in Missouri during the forthcoming census runs to $377,929. That amount does not include the salaries or expenses of supervisors or the cost — which will run to large figures — of assembling and tabulating the data at Washington.

Date Still to Be Settled.

One of the important details left for last-minute settlement concerns the date of taking the census. The House of Representatives decided on April 1, 1930; the Senate thought it should be taken Nov. 1, 1929. Census officials, in the main, favored the November date. The difference of opinion was left to settlement in conference.

President-elect Hoover went on record nearly a year ago as favoring the November date. With Secretary Jardine of the Department of Agriculture he wrote a letter to Chairman Fenn of the House Census Committee—Hoover was then Secretary of Commerce—in which he said:

"The Departments of Agriculture and Commerce have thoroughly considered the question and have mutually agreed that from the standpoint of the interests we represent, it would be most advantageous to take the census in the late fall, with a view to completing as much of the enumeration as possible prior to Christmas. We believe it would be well to begin the canvass on or about Nov. 1 and to make count as of that date."

Weather Is a Consideration.

Weather and farm conditions in the northern states and agricultural regions generally form the chief objection to taking the census April 1, as originally proposed.

The entire cost of the decennial census, including the census of distribution and the farm census, will amount to about $39,000,000 for the United States. The work will be spread out over three years, although the actual enumeration will be completed within two to three months. The force engaged in the population census will consist, the bureau has decided, of approximately 375 supervisors, 9000 to 10,000 clerks, 3000 or more interpreters and 90,000 to 95,000 enumerators. Missouri will account for the employment of somewhat less than 5 per cent of this force.

A sliding scale of pay for enumerators is now being worked out for application to suburban and rural regions. While the rate in the cities will average, it is expected, 4 cents a name, the Bureau will pay as high as 25 to 50 cents for enumeration in the thinly-settled sections in the rural regions.

Questions Expected.

Under the law everybody in the country must be included in the census and must answer certain questions. The census of 1920 provided for 29 questions; there probably will be only 26 questions to be asked in the next census. These will concern the person's residence, status in his family—whether the head or a member—age, sex, race, nationality, nationality of parents, name, marital condition, occupation and literacy. These questions are subdivided in some instances.

One of the questions to which Bureau officials have devoted much thought is that pertaining to literacy. No definite decision has been reached as yet, but the opinion seems to prevail that the ability to write one's name qualifies one for listing as a literate. Ability to write in one's native language, or to read one's native language, it is held, constitutes literacy. Under that interpretation, it would not be necessary to know how to write or read English to qualify.

The law provides a penalty for willful failure to answer questions asked by census enumerators, the maximum penalty being a fine of $500 and imprisonment for one year. Persons under 18 years of age are exempt from this penalty. The previous law provided for only a fine.

Restriction on Employes.

Another innovation in the forthcoming census law is the imposition of stiffer penalties for unwarranted disclosures by Census Bureau employes of information given them in obtaining returns. Heads of firms who willfully refuse to disclose information to census enumerators may be fined up to $10,000.

Prior to beginning the actual count, the Census Bureau has been engaged in making a careful estimate of the number of inhabitants of the country. The total population of continental United States has been estimated by the bureau at 123,288,325 at the time of taking the census—a figure published here for the first time. It is on that basis that bureau officials arranged their budget for making the census. The estimate is an increase from the 105,710,620 shown by the 1920 census.

Among Missouri's neighbors, Illinois takes high rank with a total estimated population of 7,589,000, an increase from 6,485,280 in 1920.

In Illinois the cost of taking the census, so far as the field work is concerned, will average, as in Illinois, five and one-half cents a name, bureau officials estimate. That figure is the lowest in the scale. It applies to several large States, including New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio and New Jersey. The highest per capita cost of taking the census is estimated at 25 cents, in the sparsely settled sections of Nevada.

$629,900 Budget in Illinois.

The Bureau has tentatively allocated $629,928 for field work in taking the census in Illinois. Of that, $417,395 will be paid to enumerators taking the population census; $112,800 will be paid farm enumerators whose compensation will be at the average rate of 50 cents a farm, and $99,733 will defray the field expenses of the distribution census. Twenty-five to 28 superviors will direct the census in Illinois. The number of enumerators will lie between 4500 and 5500, under present tentative plans.

In taking the census of smaller cities in Missouri and Illinois the

POLICE BACK TO EIGHT-HOUR SHIFTS AFTER THREE WEEKS

During Campaign to Check Crime Increase They Worked Two Hours Extra.

The 1600 St. Louis policemen returned to their regular eight-hour shifts yesterday after working two hours extra each day for three weeks in a campaign to check the usual winter increase in holdups, burglary and other crimes.

During the emergency period, policemen whose shifts ordinarily ended at 3 p. m. and 11 p. m. worked two hours longer, and those whose shifts began at 11 p. m. reported two hours earlier, thus affording maximum protection during the hours of darkness when most robberies are committed.

ALLEGED ILL USAGE AT CITY HOSPITAL

Coroner to Investigate Reported Charges by Woman, 83, Who Has Since Died.

A complaint of mistreatment at city hospital, made by Mrs. Anna Hudson, 83 years old, member of an old St. Louis family, who died last Thursday, will be investigated tomorrow at a Coroner's inquest.

Mrs. Hudson, a widow, was the daughter of Judge Solomon Ketchum, lawyer and politician. A brother, Fountain Ketchum, served in the State Legislature.

Mrs. Hudson was found dead in her room at the home of a friend, Mrs. Ida Waldorf, 812 Madison street. On Feb. 13 she had been removed from a room at 827 Chambers street, where she then lived, to city hospital, suffering from infirmities of age. Discharged Feb. 16, she went to live with Mrs. Waldorf.

"She told she had been scalded on the left leg above the ankle by a nurse who bathed her at the hospital the day she entered there." Mrs. Waldorf reported to Coroner Dever yesterday. "She said she protested the bath water was too hot, and the nurse replied: 'It's not hot enough. You're a dirty old woman and you ought to be dead, anyway.'"

In view of Mrs. Hudson's infirmities, Coroner Dever was inclined to discount the complaint, but he ordered the hospital physicians and attendants who treated her to appear at the inquest Monday. The Coroner was informed by an undertaker that the burn on Mrs. Hudson's leg was such as might have been caused by a hot water bottle.

Two days before her death, Mrs. Hudson became ill at Mrs. Waldorf's home and a family physician who was summoned recommended that she return to city hospital. She refused to go, saying she feared further mistreatment.

LABORER SAYS HE WAS FIRED FOR REFUSING TO AID MILLER

Employe of Sewer Division Let Out When He Wears Kiel Button.

Henry Vanderwahl, 5440 Columbia avenue, a laborer, employed in the sewer division of the city at various times over a period of 18 years, told a Post-Dispatch reporter, yesterday, that he was dismissed from the city service Jan. 6, after he had refused to sign a petition indorsing the re-election of Mayor Miller and reported for work wearing a Kiel-for-Mayor campaign button.

Vanderwahl said he was dismissed by Edward Blattner, his foreman in the sewer department, two days after he had refused to sign the petition. He said his wages was 75 cents an hour and that he only averaged about three days a week of work.

POLICE CONCLUDE ROBBERS KILLED RAILROAD CLERK

Search for Two Highwaymen Who Held Up Another Man Nearby.

After investigating for a week, police have concluded that William D. Roche, a railroad clerk, of 2015 McNair avenue, who was shot and killed a few steps from his home a week ago, was the victim of two highwaymen who previously had held up another pedestrian 500 feet from the scene of the holdup.

It is presumed Roche was killed when he resisted robbery. The man who was held up has given police a description of the highwaymen and they are being sought.

3000 PERSONS TO TAKE CENSUS OF MISSOURIANS

same methods will be followed as in St. Louis. Clerks at Washington now are blocking out the enumeration districts in some of these communities. The directing head will be the supervisor, and he will be assigned to an area, in each case, with a population of about 300,000.

The forthcoming census will result in placing a number of fair-paying jobs at the disposal of local politicians. Theoretically the supervisors are employed by the Director of the Census; in actual practice, the supervisor is generally "suggested" by local political influences and, if capable of doing the work, is appointed as a result of the "suggestion." In no event, however, it is stated, will an incompetent or a misfit be employed where it is possible to determine his true ability in advance.

Census Always in Politics.

So far as Washington officials are concerned, the census will be kept out of politics. Actually, experience proves, it can't be done.

Supervisors will have a free hand at Washington in the employment of enumerators. This also applies to clerks and interpreters, none of the force being under civil service. A reasonable standard will be enforced by Washington officials, however, and supervisors will be held responsible, it is said, for the work of those under their direction. Any employe can be removed at any time by the Director of the Census.

In addition to their base pay of $2000 to $2500 for six to eight months' work, supervisors will receive extra compensation at the rate of $1 a thousand inhabitants enumerated and 2 cents a farm visited within their jurisdiction. In Missouri this extra compensation will total about $750 to be divided among the 12 to 14 supervisors.

Does everything others do —plus SPINNING drying

Washes fast, safe, clean—like every good washer. But that's less than half the work it does. The SPINNER does away with slow, tedious, piece-by-piece feeding through the wringer to the first rinse; through the wringer to the second rinse; through the wringer to the line. It washes, rinses, starches—then dries for the line every piece without a wringer—in a fast-revolving porcelain SPINNER that cannot break buttons, crush snaps, snag silks or press in deep creases so hard to iron out. Match it, pit it against all the washer world has to offer. Nowhere will you find a worthy challenger for the SPINNER—for it does almost everything but hang out the clothes. Why waste washing, wringing, ironing, mending time the old fashioned way? Change now. Free home demonstration and pay-as-you-use plan.

Dr. Lewis Baker

A. R. asks: "Will you please describe the condition called anemia?"

Answer: Anemia means "a deficiency of blood or of the important constituents of the blood, commonly termed impoverished blood, or a weak, run-down condition of the system."

Tiring easily, extreme weakness, mental sluggishness, nervousness, irritability, sleeplessness, a worn-out, tired feeling when arising, with little or no appetite, are early symptoms of anemia. Later, the skin may become pale or waxy white in the blonds, or in the brunette the skin may become darker, or sallow with great dark circles about the eyes. The lips appear pale or bluish. The hands may become moist and clammy; the pulse weak; the heart may palpitate; shortness of breath occurs; usually indigestion and constipation; sometimes nausea occurs after eating.

To enrich the blood, steady the nerves and build up the system generally, I have never found any medicine so reliable as Cadomene tablets. Where constipation exists I advise Sulpherb tablets be taken in conjunction. This simple treatment is effective, judging by the grateful letters I receive from those benefited.

M. A. B. asks: "Please advise a remedy to dispel a rheumatic ailment that nearly drives me wild with pain."

Answer: For pain relief take 5-grain Su-thol tablets. Also use Cardiol tablets to aid elimination and assist nature in neutralizing the toxins in the tissues which give rise to rheumatic affections.

N. B. B. asks: "I want medicine to aid the kidneys and bladder. Have frequent backache. Have to get up five or six times at night because of irritation or pressure of bladder."

Answer: I suggest you use Balmwort tablets, which are exceptionally effective in relieving and overcoming such symptoms.

W. H. B. asks: "What can I do to get rid of blackheads on my face?"

Answer: Procure of druggist medicated Chex Soap and use as per directions. The results will please any one so disfigured.

G. W. B. asks: "I am not a consumptive, but have a stubborn cough which nothing does any good. Cough night and day."

Answer: Procure the essence [illegible] Mentho-Laxene. Use regularly a[illegible] per directions. It is truly wonderful in relieving any cough due to mild inflammation, colds, etc.

Miss H. G. asks: "At this season I suffer constantly with neuralgia and headache so severe that I can not work. What will aid me?"

Answer: Have your teeth examined and cared for. A good tonic may be needed. To get quick relief from pain take 5-grain Su-thol tablets as per directions.

A. T. O. asks: "Can you advise a reliable efficient laxative and liver tonic?"

Answer: I suggest Casca-Royal Pills as superior to anything for the gentle laxative action.

F. F. writes: "My trouble is that my food don't digest and it causes distress after meals. Can you help me?"

Answer: Procure Triopeptine tablets and take as per directions. Also regulate your diet by eating temperately. Take regular exercise.

Y. G. asks: "Advise me to overcome pimples (acne), boils and hives due to sluggish liver and bowels."

Answer: Take Sulpherb tablets regularly for several months.

Note: Dr. Lewis Baker, Medical Director of The Blackburn Products Co., 312 College Bldg., Dayton, Ohio, will send his valuable guide to Health and Beauty, to any address upon receipt of 10cts. Coin. The trustworthy medicines advised, can be obtained of all leading druggists.

POLICE BACK TO EIGHT-HOUR SHIFTS AFTER THREE WEEKS

During Campaign to Check Crime Increase They Worked Two Hours Extra.

The 1600 St. Louis policemen returned to their regular eight-hour shifts yesterday after working two hours extra each day for three weeks in a campaign to check the usual winter increase in holdups, burglary and other crimes.

During the emergency period, policemen whose shifts ordinarily ended at 3 p. m. and 11 p. m. worked two hours longer, and those whose shifts began at 11 p. m. reported two hours earlier, thus affording maximum protection during the hours of darkness when most robberies are committed.

DOG SETS ITSELF ON FIRE

Upsets Gas Heater; Burned So Badly Policeman Shoots It.

A German police dog, owned by Arthur W. Brown, proprietor of a filling station at 408 Lucas avenue, ran against a gas heater at the station Friday and set itself on fire.

A passerby turned in a fire alarm, but Brown extinguished the flames before the department arrived. The dog was so badly injured that Brown had a policeman shoot it.

ALLEGED ILL USAGE AT CITY HOSPITAL

Coroner to Investigate Reported Charges by Woman, 83, Who Has Since Died.

A complaint of mistreatment at city hospital, made by Mrs. Anna Hudson, 83 years old, member of an old St. Louis family, who died last Thursday, will be investigated tomorrow at a Coroner's inquest.

Mrs. Hudson, a widow, was the daughter of Judge Solomon Ketchum, lawyer and politician. A brother, Fountain Ketchum, served in the State Legislature.

Mrs. Hudson was found dead in her room at the home of a friend, Mrs. Ida Waldorf, 812 Madison street. On Feb. 13 she had been removed from a room at 827 Chambers street, where she then lived, to city hospital, suffering from infirmities of age. Discharged Feb. 16, she went to live with Mrs. Waldorf.

"She told she had been scalded on the left leg above the ankle by a nurse who bathed her at the hospital the day she entered there," Mrs. Waldorf reported to Coroner Dever yesterday. "She said she protested the bath water was too hot, and the nurse replied: 'It's not hot enough. You're a dirty old woman and you ought to be dead, anyway.'"

In view of Mrs. Hudson's infirmities, Coroner Dever was inclined to discount the complaint, but he ordered the hospital physicians and attendants who treated her to appear at the inquest Monday. The Coroner was informed by an undertaker that the burn on Mrs. Hudson's leg was such as might have been caused by a hot water bottle.

Two days before her death, Mrs. Hudson became ill at Mrs. Waldorf's home and a family physician who was summoned recommended that she return to city hospital. She refused to go, saying she feared further mistreatment.

LABORER SAYS HE WAS FIRED FOR REFUSING TO AID MILLER

Employe of Sewer Division Let Out When He Wears Kiel Button.

Henry Vanderwahl, 5440 Columbia avenue, a laborer, employed in the sewer division of the city at various times over a period of 18 years, told a Post-Dispatch reporter, yesterday, that he was dismissed from the city service Jan. 6, after he had refused to sign a petition indorsing the re-election of Mayor Miller and reported for work wearing a Kiel-for-Mayor campaign button.

Vanderwahl said he was dismissed by Edward Blattner, his foreman in the sewer department, two days after he had refused to sign the petition. He said his wages was 75 cents an hour and that he only averaged about three days a week of work.

POLICE CONCLUDE ROBBERS KILLED RAILROAD CLERK

Search for Two Highwaymen Who Held Up Another Man Nearby.

After investigating for a week, police have concluded that William D. Roche, a railroad clerk, of 2015 McNair avenue, who was shot and killed a few steps from his home a week ago, was the victim of two highwaymen who previously had held up another pedestrian 500 feet from the scene of the holdup.

It is presumed Roche was killed when he resisted robbery. The man who was held up has given police a description of the highwaymen and they are being sought.

same methods will be followed as in St. Louis. Clerks at Washington now are blocking out the enumeration districts in some of these communities. The directing head will be the supervisor, and he will be assigned to an area, in each case, with a population of about 300,000.

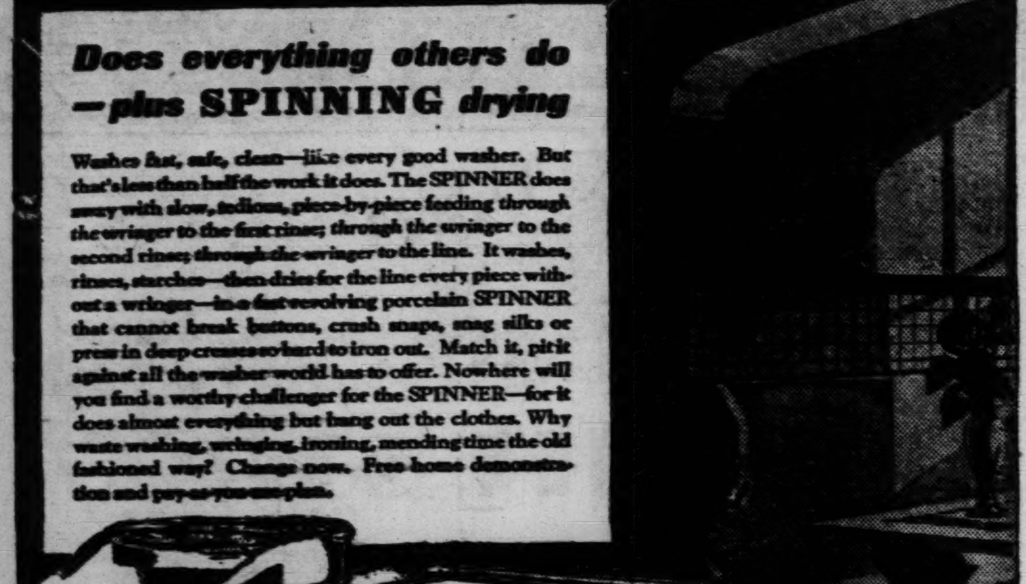
The forthcoming census will result in placing a number of fair-paying jobs at the disposal of local politicians. Theoretically the supervisors are employed by the Director of the Census; in actual practice, the supervisor is generally "suggested" by local political influences and, if capable of doing the work, is appointed as a result of the "suggestion." In no event, however, it is stated, will an incompetent or a misfit be employed where it is possible to determine his true ability in advance.

Census Always in Politics.

So far as Washington officials are concerned, the census will be kept out of politics. Actually, experience proves, it can't be done.

Supervisors will have a free hand at Washington in the employment of enumerators. This also applies to clerks and interpreters, none of the force being under civil service. A reasonable standard will be enforced by Washington officials, however, and supervisors will be held responsible, it is said, for the work of those under their direction. Any employe can be removed at any time by the Director of the Census.

In addition to their base pay of $2000 to $2500 for six to eight months' work, supervisors will receive extra compensation at the rate of $1 a thousand inhabitants enumerated and 2 cents a farm visited within their jurisdiction. In Missouri this extra compensation will total about $750 to be divided among the 12 to 14 supervisors.



Does everything others do—plus SPINNING drying

Washes fast, safe, clean—like every good washer. But that's less than half the work it does. The SPINNER does away with slow, tedious, piece-by-piece feeding through the wringer to the first rinse; through the wringer to the second rinse; through the wringer to the line. It washes, rinses, starches—then dries for the line every piece without a wringer—in a fast revolving porcelain SPINNER that cannot break buttons, crush snaps, snag silks or press in deep creases so hard to iron out. Match it, pit it against all the washer world has to offer. Nowhere will you find a worthy challenger for the SPINNER—for it does almost everything but hang out the clothes. Why waste washing, wringing, ironing, mending time the old fashioned way? Change now. Free home demonstration and pay-as-you-use plan.

OF APPEALS COURT ITS ON DISTRICT BENCH

Who Is Known as a Dry Substitutes for Faris and Davis.

Judge William S. Kenyon of the United States Court of Appeals sat in the United States District Court yesterday because of the illness of District Judges Faris and Davis.

Judge Kenyon, known as a dry, passed on but one liquor violation. He fined Henry Bruegerman, former bartender in a saloon at 6226 Easton avenue, $450 on a charge of possession on Bruegerman's plea of guilty. The fine is $50 less than the maximum fine for first offenders.

Judge Faris is ill at his home with sinus trouble. Judge Davis is at Hot Springs, Ark., recuperating from an injury to his side suffered three weeks ago when he slipped and fell on an icy sidewalk.

ARRESTED ON EVE OF FATHER'S FUNERAL

Druggist H. P. Schlagenhauf Excused After Liquor Raid to Attend Services.

The funeral of his father interfered with the arrest of Henry P. Schlagenhauf on a liquor charge yesterday, so prohibition agents who had raided his drug store, 3198 South Grand boulevard, Friday night, excused him from reporting to Federal authorities until tomorrow. His clerk, Francis C. Reilly, who was arrested at the same time, was ordered to appear yesterday and was released on $1000 bail.

The father, Dr. Henry J. Schlagenhauf, who had practiced as a surgeon for many years in the old French Market district, died of heart disease at his home, 2651 Shenandoah avenue, Wednesday evening. He was one of four survivors of the class of 1885 of the Marion-Simms Medical College, which later became a part of St. Louis University. The other three served as pallbearers at the funeral, held at 2 p. m. yesterday at the Lafayette Park Methodist Church.

Agents first visited the younger Schlagenhauf's store Feb. 14 and, according to Chief Prohibition Agent James Dillon, bought a pint of liquor from Schlagenhauf; next day bought another pint from Reilly and Friday night a third pint, also from Reilly. Then they searched the store on a warrant and reported finding 136 pints of whisky, which was two pints more than the quota allowed the store by permit. Both Schlagenhauf and the clerk were charged with illegal sale and possession.

The elder Schlagenhauf is survived by his widow, Mrs. Emma Pahl Schlagenhauf, and three sons besides Henry. They are Walter, Milton and George.

TOOMBS FURNISHES BOND ON MAIL FRAUD CHARGE

Appears at Federal Building With Attorney and Puts Up $7500 Bail.

Roy C. Toombs, former president of the International Life Insurance Co., appeared at the Federal Building yesterday with his attorney, Ernest E. Oakley, and furnished $7500 bond under an indictment charging the use of the mails to further a scheme to defraud.

The indictment, returned by the Federal grand jury last Wednesday, charges in two counts that employes of the defunct insurance company, at Toombs' direction, mailed to Toombs in Chicago false International Life stock certificates. A third count charges that the Grand Avenue National Bank, at Toombs' direction, mailed a draft for $105,000, with false stock certificates attached, to the National Park Bank of New York.

Toombs is also under bond in connection with indictments returned by three other juries as a result of irregularities in his extensive financial operations here and in Chicago.

TRUCK DRIVER KILLED IN COLLISION WITH BUS

Several Passengers in Latter Machine Hurt in Crash Near Bonne Terre.

Ed Benson of Farmington, Mo., was killed and several persons in a Memphis-St. Louis bus were injured early Friday when Benson's truck and the bus collided on State highway No. 16, about 17 miles north of Bonne Terre, Mo. The bus is operated by the Gregory Line.

Benson's body was taken to Farmington, where the bus driver and several passengers were treated for lacerations caused by flying glass. The driver was later removed to a Memphis (Tenn.) hospital and the passengers resumed their journey in another bus. Benson was returning home after delivering a load of cattle and produce at St. Louis.

POLICE SEIZE AUTO AFTER IT STANDS IN STREET 3 MONTHS

Machine Bearing Ohio License Is Picked Up in Front of 3744 Westminster Place.

After standing untouched in front of 3744 Westminster place for about three months, a Ford roadster, bearing an Ohio license, was taken to the police garage Friday. At the same time was taken a Ford coupe, bearing a Missouri license, which had been parked in front of 3738 Westminster for two weeks.

The car with the Missouri license was traced to a St. Louis man who is said to be in Texas and who is not expected back for several days.

GLASS FIRMS CONSOLIDATE

The consolidation of the Burroughs Glass Co., 305 Arsenal street, and the Missouri Glass Co., 1001-5 North Sixth street, under the name of Burroughs Glass Co., was announced yesterday by M. P. Burroughs, president of the concern.

G. C. Sears and H. H. Piou, officers of the Missouri company, become vice presidents of the consolidated firm. Stock of the two concerns was exchanged in the transaction. The original Burroughs company was incorporated 15 years ago with a capital of $65,000. The Missouri Glass Co., which has been in existence the same length of time, was not incorporated. The capitalization of the new company has not been fixed, Burroughs said. The new company will continue to operate the sales room on North Sixth street, formerly the location of the Missouri company, as well as the manufacturing plant at Third and Arsenal streets.

EXPLOSIONS PRECEDE MAPLEWOOD FIRE

Police Investigating Cause of $6000 Blaze in Dry Goods Store.

Three explosions, followed by fire, caused $8000 damage to a dry goods store at 2724 Sutton avenue, Maplewood, early yesterday.

Police and firemen were unable to determine the causes of the explosions. The store is half a block from the ruins of the Majestic Movie Theater, destroyed by fire with $100,000 loss early Thursday. Police are investigating both fires to determine whether incendiarism was responsible.

The explosion at 1:30 a. m. caused $500 damage to an adjoining building occupied by J. D. Walley's barber shop. Walley, his wife and 8-year-old son, asleep in a rear room, were awakened and escaped in their night attire.

The dry goods store is under lease to Mrs. Dora Levy, who sold the business three weeks ago to Jack Chuver, who was to have reopened the store yesterday.

Fire of undetermined origin caused $3000 damage to the Tire Clearing Co., 3027 Locust boulevard, at 1:45 a. m. yesterday.

Announcement by Chief of Police Gerk Friday that an investigation would be made of recent fires, thought to have been started by an incendiary, who also turned in false alarms to distract firemen, was followed by three false alarms Friday afternoon and night. Police have a description of a man who turned in one false alarm.

Your Child's Cold Needs this Double Treatment

CHILDREN hate to be "dosed." When rubbed on, Vicks relieves colds 2 ways at once without "dosing":

(1) Its healing vapors, released by the body heat, are inhaled direct to the air passages;

(2) "It draws out" the soreness like an old-fashioned poultice.

ACTIVITY REVIVED IN SPECULATIVE BUILDING DEALS

Many Offers for Opposite Corner Follow Announcement of Project at Union and Delmar.

OPTION TAKEN ON MILL CREEK BLOCK

Commercial Leaders of City Interested in Skyscraper Project to House Industrial Interests.

By Berry Moore.

During the past week there was a revival of negotiations looking to large speculative building ventures in the West End and in the downtown district, both east and west of Twelfth boulevard. This activity has excited new speculative interest in these sections of the real estate market.

Many offers have been submitted for the southeast corner of Union and Delmar boulevards. In one instance the corner, it is reported, is sought by Chicago promoters as a site for a large building. The nature of this project has not been disclosed. The site has 103 feet on Delmar and 176 feet on Union. A two-story building of stores and flats now occupies the site. The property is listed with Bixby-Smith, Inc., and Joseph Ebeling at $300,000.

Renewed Buoyancy in District.

Plans have been prepared for a 15-story apartment building of the set-back type, with stores on the first floor to replace the five-story Romayne apartments at the northwest corner of Union and Delmar boulevard. As was told in last Sunday's Post-Dispatch, this corner, having a frontage on Delmar of 145 feet with a depth on Union of 183 feet, extending to Savoy Court on the north, has been purchased by a building syndicate represented by the Giraldin Bros. Real Estate Co. Including that of the site, the cost of this improvement is estimated at $2,000,000.

Both Delmar and Union boulevards in this part of the city have been marked by renewed buoyancy, which is noteworthy as a manifest response to the announcement of the pretentious set-back project. A reassuring feature has been the demand for the stores in the proposed building, which evidently could be readily leased from the blue prints, according to Earl Giraldin, vice president of the Giraldin Real Estate Co.

Industrial Skyscraper Projected.

Negotiations with plans for new big building projects have been concluded for several sites in the business district east of Twelfth boulevard. An option has been obtained on one of the oldest downtown structures by a syndicate which has plans for replacing it with an improvement commensurate with the present value of the site. Constituting one of the most prominent downtown corners, the site has steadily increased in value since the present building was erected.

Approximately three-quarters of a block on Twelfth boulevard adjacent to the railroad yards in Mill Creek Valley, has been placed under option. An 18 or a 20 story building designed as quarters for a diversity of industrial interests is projected for this site, which has direct track connections with the Terminal Railway in Mill Creek Valley. Cost of the structure is estimated at $6,000,000. Original plans contemplated occupying this entire block, but the price asked for one of the Twelfth boulevard corners has precluded this.

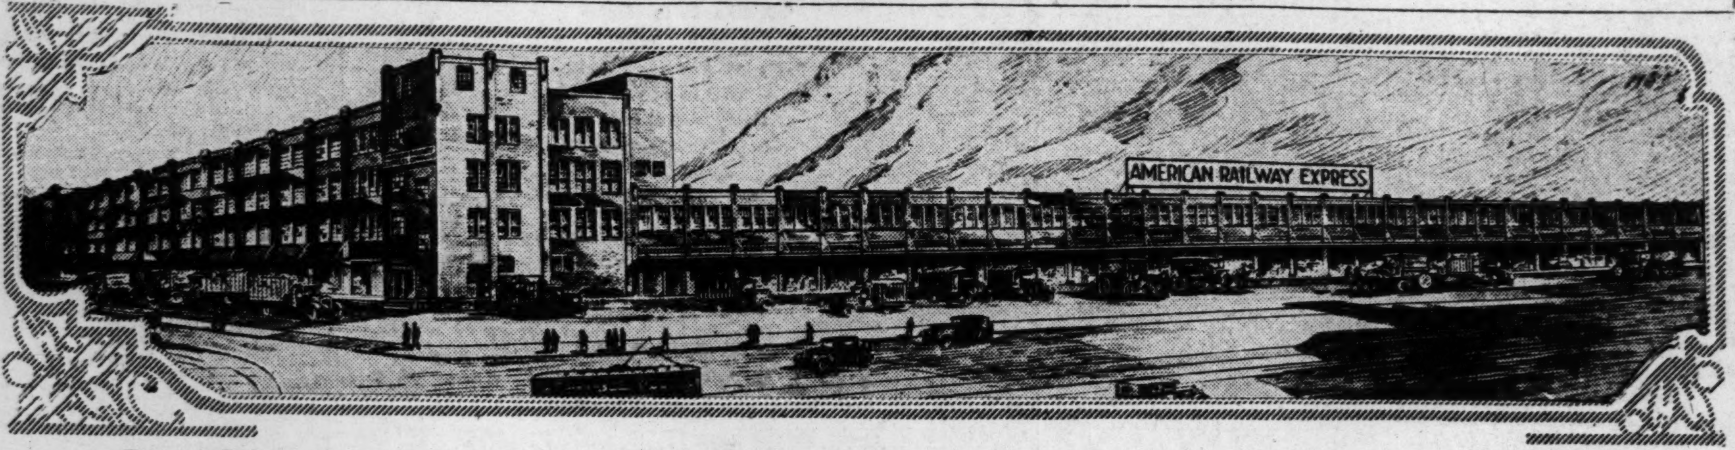
While as yet in the promotion stage, there is every indication that this project, which is the most ambitious ever conceived for that part of the city, will finally be crowned with success. The proposed building would dominate the Memorial Plaza, which would enhance its value to no small degree. The site is regarded as one of the most attractive in the city available for the proposed improvement. Incidentally the project is in the hands of men prominent as leaders in the city's commercial life.

Speculation on High Street.

Purchases were reported involving a number of corners on High and on Twelfth, between Cass and Franklin avenues, presumably inspired by the plans of the McKinley System. The southeast corner of High and Biddle streets, formerly owned by Jacob Goldstein, has been purchased by clients of the Dubinsky Real Estate Co., of which Frank Dubinsky is president. This site has a frontage of 100 feet on Biddle and 85 feet on High street, and will be available in connection with the proposed subway of the McKinley System, which will run under High street. While withheld, it is understood that the price paid set a new record for corners in this section with prices prevailing since the McKinley System's plans were disclosed as a criterion. It is understood that the purchase was made purely as a speculation. Present improvements of the site consist of old three-story buildings.

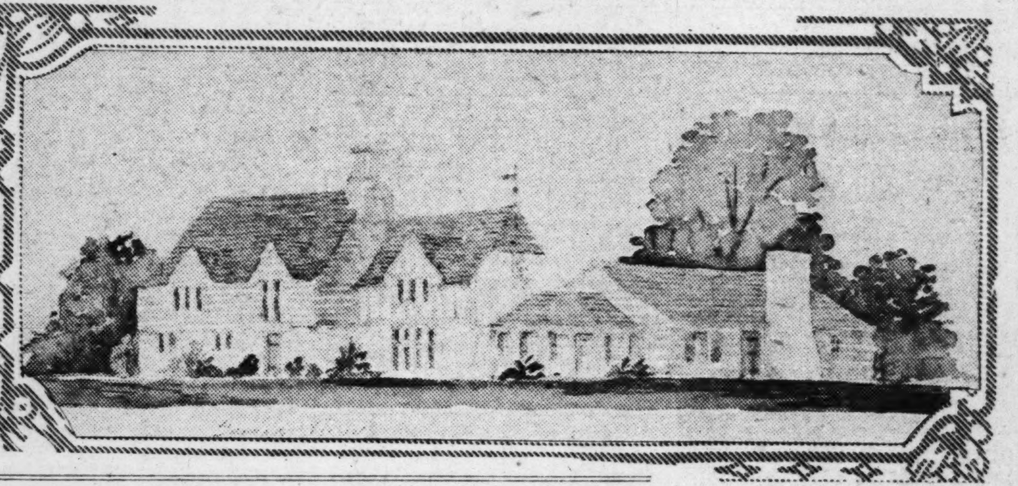
Negotiations are being conducted through the Mullin & Walters Realty Co. for the northeast corner of High and Biddle streets, 100x100, owned by Goldstein.

Building Under Construction and Two Residences



The new Railway Express Building as it will look when completed about April 1, at the southeast corner of Eighteenth street and Clark avenue.

Residence in Hampton Park on the Clayton road, recently purchased by Harry M. Burke through Harold E. Willson, Inc.



Design of residence for Warren Lammert to be built at the southwest corner of Denny and Ladue roads.—Maritz & Young, architects.

EDGARS TO BUILD HOME ON PORTLAND PLACE LOT

The last remaining lot of Portland Place has been sold. The lot is adjoining and west of 39 Portland Place and lies between Lon Hocker's residence and Mrs. Isaac W. Morton's residence. It was sold to Mrs. Iva Dula Edgar, wife of Selwyn C. Edgar Jr. They expect to build a residence immediately.

The sale was made through the Edward K. Love Realty Co. Portland and Westmoreland Place from a historical standpoint were laid out for homesites. Edward C. Simmons, Hudson E. Bridge and John T. Davis Sr. were among them about 40 years ago.

NEW SUBDIVISION TRACT SOLD BY WANSTRATH CO.

The Wanstrath Realty Co. of Florissant and Warne avenues announce the sale of a tract of land lying north of Baden, bounded by Kingslaren Investment Co., a an avenue and Switzer avenue. This tract was purchased by the Kingslaren Investment Co., composed of a group of North St. Louis business men, from the Gieseking heirs, and will be known as Kingslaren Park.

The tract fronts 900 feet on Switzer avenue, and 550 feet on Kingshighway Northwest. It is, according to the department, to be improved this year with a 20-foot slab from Penros Park to Hall's Ferry road, the company announces. There are approximately 700 feet on McLaran avenue. This street will be made from Hall's Ferry road to Oxford lane, where Goodfellow avenue intersects.

MARTIN & BREITT LEASE FLOOR TO RICHMAN BROS.

Martin and Breitt report having leased the fourth floor of the building at the southeast corner of Seventh and Olive streets to the Richman Brothers Co. of Cleveland, O.

This company is now located in the Buder Building at Seventh and Market streets and the new location will give them about double the floor area they are now using.

The Richman Brothers Co. leased this space in order to be more centrally located and to better serve their customers. This will be the St. Louis branch of the mail order department of this company. They have a sales force of 20 salesmen. They will take possession about March 1.

WINS $100 PRIZE FOR SAVING RENT RECEIPTS SINCE 1889

John Koeller, 4450A Holly avenue, is $100 richer today and Mrs. Mary Cox, 1433 Lucas avenue, is $50 ahead, merely because they saved nearly all their rent receipts.

They were awarded first and second prizes respectively in a contest to determine the householder with the most rent receipts, which was started several weeks ago by the Rengel-Weber Realty Co. in an effort to get statistics which would make the arguments of its salesmen more persuasive in the annual spring bungalow rush.

Koeller had accumulated 471 receipts since 1889, while Mrs. Cox's 436 receipts date back to 1892.

BUILDING PERMIT TOTALS SMALLER THAN 1928 FIGURE

Reports for January From 576 Cities Show Decline of 11 Pct. From Same Period Last Year.

BUILDING permits issued in 576 cities and towns for the month of January, according to official reports made to S. W. Straus & Co., showed a loss of 11 per cent from January, 1928, and a 5 per cent loss from December, 1928. The total for the first month of this year in the 576 places was $239,074,441, compared with $266,293,500 in January last year and $251,991,579 last December.

The January decline of 11 per cent for the whole country appears to be largely in the smaller cities and towns. This is indicated by the reports from the 25 leading cities, which showed a gain of 5 per cent over January, 1928; a gain of 9 per cent over January, 1927, and a gain of 9 per cent over December, 1928. Among the 25 leading cities, 15 reported substantial gains over January last year.

The total for the 25 leading places in January was $165,443,243 compared with $157,244,920. The most surprising feature of the report from the leading cities was the change in the positions of Chicago and Philadelphia, the latter taking, for the first time, the place of second city in the country. Heretofooe, Chicago has always held second position, following New York, with a wide margin over Philadelphia and Detroit.

During this January Detroit, which held third position for 1928, dropped to fifth place, while Los Angeles, which had fifth place for 1928, rose to fourth place, following Chicago. The shifting of positions between Chicago and Philadelphia was due not only to a loss of 51 per cent in Chicago from January, 1928, but also to a gain of 282 per cent in Philadelphia from January last year.

Detroit reported a gain over January, 1928, but the city fell behind its building record in the first month of 1927. This was also true of Los Angeles, Portland, Ore.; Milwaukee, Cincinnati and Pittsburg.

Among the larger cities which reported losses from January, 1928, were San Francisco, Yonkers, Washington, Baltimore, Cleveland, Houston, Boston, St. Louis and Buffalo.

Had there not been a January gain in New York of nearly $15,000,000, the 25 leading cities, as well as the whole country, would have shown a loss from January a year ago, as the total gain in the leading group was less than $8,000,000. At the same time it will be observed, from an analysis of the figures of the leading cities, that the heavy loss in Chicago, rather than in the other places, pulled down the showing for the group.

On the whole, the January building figures do not show a radical downward tendency in construction activity, but neither do they indicate a recovery from the slowing down which set in after the middle of 1928.

The seasonal strengthening of the building material market has begun; such minor weaknesses as were reported being only local. To offset price declines of starting materials in Cleveland, for example, we have increases reported in these materials from Detroit and New Orleans. Brick prices were reported down in Atlanta and New York and up in Dallas and Kansas City. Portland cement was stronger with price increases at Atlanta, Kansas City and New Orleans. Lumber appeared to hold its own and structural steel shapes in a firm position.

Adoption of the five-day week for the building trades received strenuous opposition in the recent meeting of the National Association of Building Trades Employers. The five-day week was held economically unsound at the present time; the same amount of work cannot be done by employing a greater number of workmen for a shorter period, as there is a fine balance in construction that determines the number of men who can be efficiently employed on a construction job at one time, it was stated. For this reason it was felt that the five-day week would have no appreciable effect on the unemployment problem.

The American Federation of Labor bar on local arbitration boards to settle jurisdictional disputes as between the various trades was frowned upon and a resolution adopted to demand the Building Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor co-operate with other agencies in the building industry for the purpose of settling jurisdictional disputes that disturb the harmony of the industry and add to the actual costs of construction because of the delays involved.

Without Windows

Were the homes of primitive man, when even then the desire was for every man to own his own dwelling. Then through all ages of the past to the present, we had the constant and gradual development which finally leads us up to the unusual opportunities offered to the buyers of lots in Bel-Nor, the subdivision of character. You have every convenience and yet escape the humdrum of the city. The natural beauty enjoyed by primitive man, improved by hand of man, is ever present in Bel-Nor. Convince yourself by driving out today and see one hundred beautiful homes, the very apex of home life. Not unlike the primitive man, each Bel-Nor resident takes personal pride in his home by working his lawn and garden without fearing any criticism. Deep lots, all well located, concrete streets, sewers, schools, churches, stores, etc. Main entrance at 8200 Natural Bridge Road, opposite the Bellerive Country Club. COUNTRY HOME
WARSON ROAD
JUST SOUTH OF CLAYTON ROAD

Mr. J. G. Ganahl has authorized me to offer for sale his beautiful home and 20 acres of land on the west side of the Warson Road, just south of the Clayton Road.

THIS 20 ACRES lies extremely high and commands a beautiful view in all directions. It is embellished with a vast number of specimen evergreen and shade trees and is as prettily planted with shrubs and flowers as any place in the county. There is a lovely lake fed by springs and a beautiful bearing orchard.

THE RESIDENCE itself is beautifully constructed; rooms are large and airy; it has hot-water heat, hardwood floors and every possible modern convenience.

There is a GARAGE, STABLE BUILDING and additional OUTHOUSES for help.

This place is surrounded by the estates of Horton W. Watkins, Walter W. Smith, Henry McRae, C. L. Holman, Clarence Gamble, David Francis, Jr., H. Buehler and M. J. Steinberg. It affords a rare opportunity for someone to get a finished place at a fair price.

Appointment must be made through my office to inspect this property.

EDWARD L. BAKEWELL,

118 North 7th Street. CHestnut 5555.

These cars have been driven carefully a few thousand miles, just enough to tune them up, and have had the daily supervision and inspection of our service manager. They are fully equipped—spare tire, bumpers, motometer, shock absorbers, mirrors and other accessories. At the reasonable prices we have on them you will have a car that is better than any new car at the same price—one that will last longer, to say nothing of your personal pride in owning one of these dependable automobiles. Terms. Trade. Always open.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

The Post-Dispatch reserves the right to reject any query. Personal and telephone calls or answers by mail cannot be given attention, except letters on medical questions of undoubted sincerity when accompanied by stamped addressed envelope.

SCOTTY.—Robinson Field, the old Cardinal Park, was deeper in the right field than the present Sportsman's Park. Exact figures not available.

S. C.—Address Earl Sande at the Tijuana Jockey Club, Spreckles Building, San Diego, Cal.; H. A. (Bud) Fisher in care of Bell Syndicate Co., New York, N. Y.

A. A. A.—You may be able to trace a record of the Spanish fort once on your farm, through the Missouri Historical Society, Jefferson Memorial Building, Forest Park and De Baliviere avenue. Probably there is no other record unless in the abstract, or in the original grant.

MARY MARIE.—Your question is an interesting commentary on customs of the time, but there is no reason to offer as to why friends of the family sent gifts in response to invitations to your brother's wedding, whereas the same people sent no gifts when your own wedding took place out of town and was announced. It should not be taken as an affront, as no significance is attached to it. The usual thought when one gets an announcement is that the wedding is over and no celebration is desired. Close friends might send gifts in response to an announcement but it is not very generally done.

LEGAL INFORMATION

(By a Member of the St. Louis Bar Association)

E. H.—The boys could be brought before the Juvenile Court for killing pigeons, but probably no severe penalty would be inflicted.

L. S. P. D.—You would not have to sign the warrant in question.

ELLA.—The wife can get a divorce on the grounds named if she has not been at fault herself.

INTERESTED FRIEND.—Report the facts to the police. The proprietor can be prosecuted.

D. F. P.—No licnse, examination or diploma is now required in Missouri for operating a beauty shop as mentioned.

LIZZIE.—The man can live in the house the rest of his life, if there is nothing you have not mentioned, to prevent him owning it.

EX-SOLDIER. — The woman could leave her property to her second husband as described, that is, she could do this by a will except as to any real estate acquired by her first marriage. (2) If the mother left no will, under the Indiana law her husband would receive one-third of her real estate, the remainder going to her children in equal shares.

K. C.—For the "religious and labor association" it may be advisable to obtain a pro forma decree of incorporation from the Circuit Court. Consult a lawyer regarding this.

X. Y. Z.—If the house is owned jointly by you and your husband you will become the sole owner on his death, even though the stepson has the deed. The $400 death benefit will either be paid to the beneficiary named by your husband, or the beneficiary under the rules of the union.

MEDICAL QUESTIONS

Health and sanitation questions of public interest only will be considered. Diagnosis or treatment of individual cases will not be given.

CURIOUS.—A nasal discharge is rarely, if ever, caused by any glandular condition, but is due to catarrh, or to sinus trouble.

READER OF THE POST.—Names of physicians and institutions for treatment of drug habits will be mailed if you wish to send stamped, addressed envelope for these.

J. B.—Please send your address on stamped envelope for your answer which is too long for publication. If you want a physician recommended mention this as the trouble might be due to prostatic enlargement and irritability.

A. Y. S.—Home treatment is not advisable for any one in such condition as shown by a 4-plus result of blood test. Your case should be under the care of a physician specialist. Send stamped, addressed envelope for names if you wish these. Or if you wish free treatment apply to the Municipal Clinic, Room 14, Municipal Courts Building, Fourteenth and Market streets.

C. A. P.—California as a resort for those having tuberculosis, has a deservedly good reputation as curative, its climate allowing one to live in the open air and sunshine. For your own case you probably would make no mistake in selecting it.

IN MEMORIAM

BOSTELMAN, MARY—In memory of my dear wife and our dear mother, who departed this life Feb. 20, 1927:
Gone but not forgotten.
Sadly missed by
HUSBAND AND CHILDREN.

BOWER, GEORGE—In loving remembrance of my beloved husband, George Bower, who died Feb. 21, 1928.
The depths of my sorrow I cannot tell,
At the loss of my husband I loved so well.
And while he lies in peaceful sleep,
His memory I shall always keep.
Sadly missed by his WIFE.

CLOHESSY—In loving memory of Anna and William Clohessy, who departed this life Feb. 18, 1921, and Feb. 25, 1927.
The flowers we lay upon their graves
may wither and decay,
But our love for you who sleep beneath shall never fade away.
Sadly missed by parents, brothers and sisters and all who loved them. (c)

COY, LYDIA—In loving memory of our dear mother who departed this life 3 years ago, Feb. 26, 1926:
Peacefully sleeping resting at last
The world's weary troubles and trials are passed.
In silence she suffered
In patience she bore,
Until God called her home
To suffer no more.
Sadly missed by her children and all who loved her. (c)

ELCHINGER, MARY—Died Feb. 22, 1928:
Not dead to us who loved her,
Not lost, but gone before;
She lives with us in memory
And will forever more.
Sadly missed by
HUSBAND AND SON.

GRAFEMAN—In loving memory of our darling, Myrtle Grafeman, who departed this life Feb. 26, 1923.
Dad and mother misses you sadly,
And find the time long since you went,
And I think of you daily and hourly
But try to be brave and content.
But the tears that I shed in silence
And I breathe a sigh of regret,
For you were mine, dear, and I remember,
Though the whole world forgets.
Sadly missed by her PARENTS and those who loved her.

GROSS, JENNIE A.—In loving memory of my dear mother, mother-in-law and grandmother, who departed this life one year ago, Feb. 25, 1928:
Today we recall sad memories,
Of a loved one gone to rest,
And those who think of her today,
Are the ones who loved her best.
She bid no one a last farewell,
She said good-by to none,
Her loving heart had ceased to be
Before we knew she was gone.
A happy home we once enjoyed,
How sweet the memories still,
But death has left a vacant place,
This world can never fill.
Sadly missed by her daughter and all who missed her.
MRS. JOSEPH A. BACHMANN AND FAMILY. (c)

GROTPETER—In loving memory of our dear son and brother, Elmer W. Grotpeter, who was called home four years ago, Feb. 23, 1925:
Dear Elmer, you are not forgotten. There are a mother, father, sister who miss you sadly. But still the vacant chair recalls love, a voice, a smile of the one who once sat there. In God's mercy, may his soul rest in peace. Our hearts will always linger around the grave where you are laid.
Sadly missed by
PARENTS, SISTER AND BROTHER-IN-LAW.

HACKER, WILLIAM—In loving memory of our dear father, William Hacker, who departed this life eight years ago, Feb. 24, 1921.
Wonderful father, man and aid,
One who was better God never made.
Wonderful worker, so loyal and true,
One in a million that, father, was you.
Just in your judgment, always right,
Honest and liberal, ever upright.
Sad and sudden was the call
For our dear father, loved by all.
We little thought that on that day
He would be called so far away.
When the evening shadows are falling
And I am sitting alone,
In my heart comes a longing,
If you could only be back home.
Sadly missed by
WIFE AND CHILDREN.

HEUMAN—In loving memory of our dear mother, Magdalena Heuman who departed this life 2 years ago Feb. 25, 1927:
A precious one from us has gone,
A voice we loved is stilled;
A place is vacant in our home
Which never can be filled.
Sadly missed by her CHILDREN. (c)

KAUFMAN—In memory of our dear and loving mother, Magdalena Kaufman, who departed Feb. 22, 1928:
Sadly missed by
CHILDREN AND SISTER.

KNOLL—In loving memory of Lulu Knoll on her birthday, March 1, 1929.
HER SISTER, MRS. DORA SIMON, and BROTHER-IN-LAW, HARRY SIMON.

MAISAK, DOLORES—In memory of Dolores Maisak, who departed this life 3 years, Feb. 27, 1926:
No stain was on her little heart
Sin had not entered there and innocence
Slept sweetly on that pale white brow so fair.
She was too pure for this cold earth,
Too beautiful to stay,
So God's holy angel bore our darling
one away.
Sadly missed by
MOTHER, FATHER AND BROTHER. (c)

MAY, CHARLES O.—In loving remembrance of our darling son and brother, Charles O. May who departed this life eight years ago on Feb. 23, 1921.
The rolling streams of life roll on,
But still the vacant chair
Recalls the love, the voice, the smile
Of the one who once sat there.
Sadly missed by
PARENTS, BROTHER AND RELATIVES.

MEADE, CORA ANNA — In memory of mother:
Heaven to us is growing dearer,
Since our mother went away,
Earth is losing its attraction
By her absence day by day.
She is waiting at the portals
In that city bright and fair,
For the ones she led to Jesus.
Mother, dear, we'll meet you there.
Missed by
HUSBAND AND CHILDREN.

MUELLER—In loving memory of our darling daughter, Anastasia C. Mueller, who departed from us one year ago, Feb. 23, 1928:
No one knows the bitter pain we have suffered since we lost you.
Life has never been the same;
In our hearts your memory lingers,
Sweet, tender, kind and true.
There is not a day, dear Stasia,
That we do not think of you.
Sadly missed by Parents, Sisters and Brothers. (c)

NIEMAN—In loving memory of our dear mother, Alice Rolves Nieman, who departed 12 years ago, Feb. 22, 1917:
A wonderful mother, woman and aid,
One who was better God never made;
A wonderful worker, so loyal and true,
One in a million—that, mother, was you.
Sadly missed by
CHILDREN, SON-IN-LAW, SISTER, RELATIVES AND ALL WHO KNEW HER.

PAHLMAN, FRED—In loving memory of our dear son and brother, who departed this life on Feb. 24, 1924.
MOTHER, FATHER, SISTERS AND BROTHERS.

VANEK, CHARLES—In loving memory of my dear husband, father, grandfather, who left us one year ago, Feb. 23.
BARBARA VANEK AND FAMILY.

WEILAND, F. WALTER—Entered into rest on Friday, Feb. 24, 1928:
Dear husband, you are not forgotten
Though on earth you are no more;
Still in memory you are with me
As you always were before.
Sadly missed by
WIFE, PARENTS AND BROTHERS.

WEITRIG, FRED—
You are not forgotten, father dear,
Nor ever shall you be
As long as life and memory last,
I shall remember thee.
THE ZEMMTNER FAMILY. (c)

OPPORTUNITY

One of the largest manufacturers of warm-air furnaces and heating equipment desires the services of one or two wide-awake men to take charge of direct factory branches in Illinois towns. A substantial salary and profit-sharing arrangement. The merchandise is well and favorably known.

Unusual co-operation will be given, intending that the man dominate the heating business in the town in which he is located. The man chosen will be given full charge of the entire branch. He will be able to present a very complete service to the home owner or builder, for a complete heating plant direct from the factory.

This is an exceptional opportunity for a reliable and energetic man. Heating experience is necessary. This would warrant attention of one now engaged in the heating business with limited capital, or an unsatisfactory line, who feels he could do bigger things with the proper backing.

If you can visualize the possibilities and believe you are the man that we want, write us for our general questionnaire and application blank. This blank properly filled out will give us the necessary information about yourself and allow us to become better acquainted. All replies will be held in strict confidence.

Address L. L. S., 337 West Fifth Street, Cincinnati, Ohio. (c)

UNUSUAL OPPORTUNITY

The Peerless Products Company manufactures an automatic merchandiser which is a cash register, show case and salesman combined. These stores are five feet high, three feet long and fourteen inches wide; they contain eight merchandise compartments, in which are placed cigarettes, nationally advertised candy bars, gum, confections, salted peanuts, etc. They are mounted on ball-bearing rollers and represent the last word in beauty and engineering skill; they can be placed in hotel lobbies, filling stations, bus stations, schools, factories, etc. The customer selects articles desired, places money in slot, turns lever and receives purchase with your change. They pay a profit of from 36 to 60 per cent. We defy anyone to show us as legitimate a proposition free from the element of chance that offers such large returns. Write us now regarding the chain operating rights in your territory. To fail to investigate is the passing of an opportunity of a lifetime. Necessary investment $500 up.

The Rich MR. EARLE and His Adventures With Seven Women

How His Restless Search for an Affinity Finally Landed Him in a Breach of Promise Suit.

Charlotte Herman Earle, wife No. 4.

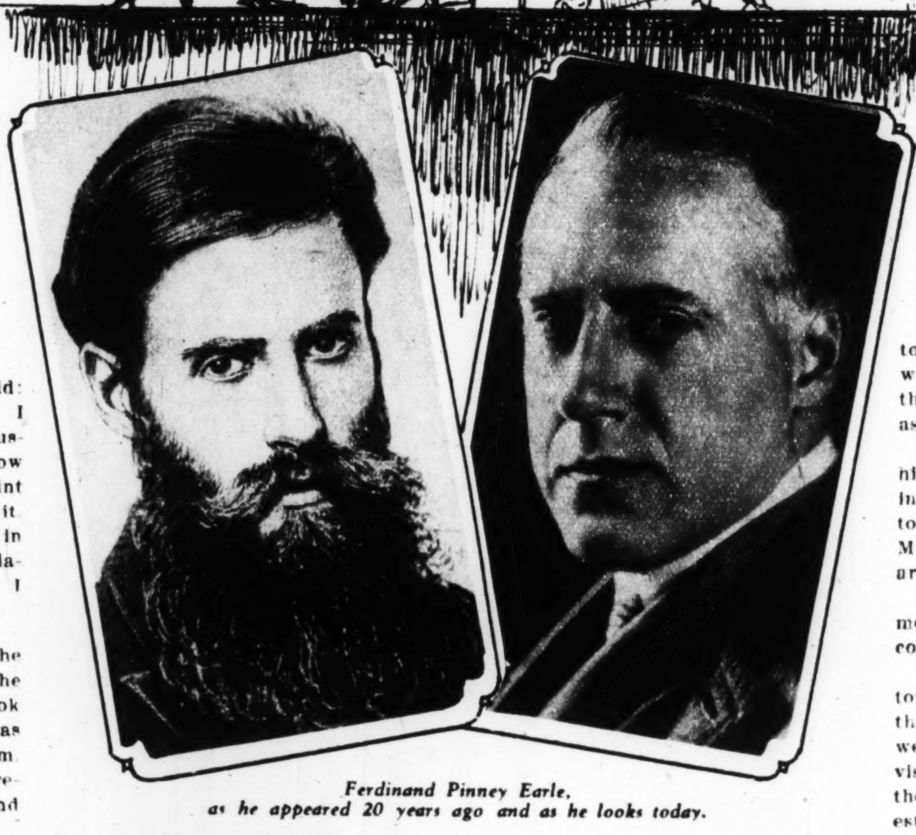
Helen Sidford Earle, wife No. 3.



Ferdinand Pinney Earle, as he appeared 20 years ago and as he looks today.

By A. L. WOOLDRIDGE

Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

LOS ANGELES.

ABOVE everything else, Ferdinand Pinney Earle liked diversity. His more or less checkered career would indicate that. He liked diversity in occupation, for instance. He has been artist, motion-picture director, sociologist and founder of creeds. He liked diversity in places of abode. He has lived periodically in Monroe, N. Y., Paris, London and in other European cities. He likes diversity in wives. He has had five—nearly seven. There would have been seven if an artist's model hadn't suddenly come to the conclusion that she was being hypnotized and if a Spanish beauty had not concluded that her affair was a farce.

The artistic Mr. Earle has spent more than 20 years looking for a soul mate. He it was who, back in 1907, gave to the world a new conception of the word "affinity," and who first suggested the "soul kiss." True, his demeanor and dogmas brought down a torrent of imprecations upon his head. He was threatened with a coat of tar and feathers, pelted with eggs and otherwise fearfully annoyed, but he went on in his philandering way without suffering any ill effects therefrom to his health or bank account. Until he met Dolores Salazar, a Spanish girl, in Los Angeles. Now Dolores wants a considerable chunk of the million-dollar estate Ferdinand's father left him in New York and wants him brought to an accounting for trifling with her sensitive Latin heart. She has appealed to the California courts.

FERDINAND PINNEY EARLE stirred up an awful mess in 1907, when it became known that his frail little wife and 2-year-old son were being sent back to Paris in order that he might marry Julia Kuttner, whom he designated as his true "affinity." The good people of the town of Monroe found that Miss Kuttner, with members of her family, were living in the Earle home; that Mrs. Earle was being superseded by the buxom young woman from the Dutch settlement of Pennsylvania. Mrs. Earle, whose maiden name was Emile Fishbacher, had been a good wife, they knew, and they liked her. The idea of her being brazenly and avowedly pushed from home and shipped to France in order that Earle might wed his "affinity" did not appeal to their sense of fairness and justice. And they arose in their wrath. Town meetings were held, bills warning him to beware were posted, it is said, and a bucket of tar and a bag of feathers stored in a very convenient place.

Ferdinand Pinney Earle was undaunted. On the morning of September 3, 1907, a carriage drew up in front of his residence and presently Mrs. Earle, holding the hand of her baby, walked slowly forth, took her seat in the vehicle and was driven away. The carriage took her into New York City and to the pier at Hoboken. She was trying gamely to smile. As the reporters gathered about her she said:

"I am perfectly amicable to it all. I am going away willingly, so my husband may marry the woman he now loves. I am trying"—this with a faint smile—"to see the funny side of it. I am going direct to my old home in Paris. My father or some other relative no doubt will meet me when I land on the other side."

HER husband brushed into the crowd and went aboard the ocean liner with her to look after the trunks and see that she was comfortably settled in her stateroom. Before the liner left the slip the reporters crowded about her again and she said:

"I accept the sacrificial role in which my husband has placed me. I shall leave him with his freedom and the woman he has chosen for my place. I shall try to teach my son to forget. I hope some day to be able to forget, too. In renunciation there is pain, but also there is happiness. I feel now, the pain. Perhaps I may find the happiness later.

"For Mr. Earle I have no censure, only sorrow. For my successor, the future Mrs. Earle, I have only the most charitable feelings. I give my husband over to her because it is his desire. I leave them both to a fuller realization of what all this means to me, a realization which must come to them when they feel the weight of public opinion."

As Earle was leaving the gangplank a group of husky longshoremen began calling him names. One or two advanced toward him and as he dashed for his carriage the crowd closed in. The driver lashed the horses and managed to break through. The artist's face was deathly white. A moment later the ocean liner slowly slid from the pier.

But the troubles of Earle were hardly started. When he arrived back in Monroe the townspeople were waiting. A rush was made for his carriage, the vehicle overturned, Earle trailed in the mud and lashed with a horsewhip. There were cries for a rope until the Mayor and Chief of Police of the little town came to his rescue.

"What's it all about?" the artist asked. "What have I done?"

Presently the bucket of tar and bag of feathers again were mentioned, but Earle departed for New York. The feeling quieted down. A few days later, however, when he reappeared and started down the street to board a train, an egg sailed through the air and struck him. Then another, followed by a shower. Earle dashed into a vestibule and shook his fist at his attackers.

"Cowards!" he shouted.

Mrs. Earle, at home with her father in Paris, obtained her divorce and Earle married his "affinity," Julia Kuttner, in 1908.

Earle and his soul mate, virtually ostracized and hated by many in the little town of Monroe, found life a harassing problem. Civilized souls must have human companionship and they found little of it there. The artist and his new wife got on each other's nerves, in time, and in the following March Earle's "affinity" left the spacious mansion.

"I realize now, only too well," she said, sorrowfully, "that my marriage was a mistake from the beginning. The conventions must apparently prevail. Now I have made a return to plain horse sense. I never wish to hear of the so-called 'affinity' idea again."

During one of those times when the two were bored by each other's presence, Mrs. Earle said, her husband choked her till she was nearly unconscious, then struck her about the face and neck.

"He went raging through the house with four Great Dane dogs at his heels," she declared, "until I was completely terrorized."

Suit for annulment of their marriage was instituted and, thoroughly disillusioned, the second Mrs. Earle went her way.

In the meantime her artist-husband suddenly decided he had found a "mental mate." This was in the person of Gertrude Buell Dunn, an artist, a model and a horsewoman. He saw her one day in a studio barn being used by Charles Haag, Scandinavian sculptor, at Norwalk, Connecticut. Gertrude was pretty, vivid, rode a horse astride and often in cowboy's costume. She was posing for a piece of statuary for Haag, which was to be known as "Headless Victory."

Earle dropped in one day for a chat. He and Gertrude promptly became interested in each other. They found much to talk about.

"I am attracted by the magnetism of her mind," Earle exclaimed rapturously a few days later, "and she is drawn to me by my mental powers. When we are together we see only the thoughts of each other. Our bodies, as it were, vanish into space."

All this astral dreaming made no hit with Sculptor Haag, who was trying to complete the "Headless Victory," and in a very few days he told Miss Dunn so. He did not want Earle around when he worked.

"Mr. Earle is a gentleman!" the model exploded. "And if he can't come here I won't either!"

Wham went the "Headless Victory." Haag smashed it into bits and the "sitting" was over. Miss Dunn went to Earle and together they devised a plan to bring children from the New York slums to the Earle estate for an outing—something for sweet charity's sake and the good that it would exemplify to an unsympathetic, disinterested world.

IT WAS a great idea and before long a flock of youngsters from New York's East Side arrived. Bedrooms were made over to receive them and the lawn and gardens placed at their disposal for all-day romps. It was a glorious experience. And when townspeople began remarking to Miss Dunn about her rather strange association with Earle and recounting some of his previous experiences with women, she replied:

"The poor man was not to blame. He never before had a mind that could act in harmony with his. He was dying for sympathy, but none could give it."

Miss Dunn's brother, Ballard Dunn, heard of her presence at the Earle home and descended upon it. He talked to her all one day and through the night till 4 o'clock in the morning about the state of affairs. But when he left he declared he could not find that she had done any wrong.

Immediately therafter, however, the "children's home" was closed and Earle and Miss Dunn fled to Europe. There followed a time of dreaming under Latin skies, but soon the "mental mate" was aboard a boat returning to America.

"I am through with Mr. Earle forever," she said. "I believe I must have been hypnotized into believing his theories. If it were not for his peculiarities, which may suggest that he may not be his normal self, I would believe he was a scoundrel or worse."

Just why an "affinity" or a "soul mate" or a "mental mate" couldn't remain that way possibly was perplexing to Mr. Ferdinand Pinney Earle. He could get 'em but he couldn't keep 'em. He married Helen Sidford in London in July, 1911, but that was only a passing event and she obtained a divorce soon thereafter. She did not figure greatly in his life. Earle came home, planned a big clam-bake for the Monroe townspeople but found there still was talk of tar and feathers. Monroe didn't seem to appreciate him, some way. And his idea of finding a real affinity who would stay an affinity wasn't going over big, either.

ALONG in 1916, however, the artist, who had shaved off his flowing black whiskers, decided that at last he had found the most lovely and charming creature in all the world and Charlotte Herman of Rutherford, New Jersey, promptly was annexed as a new wife. He idealized her, painted her in oil, hailed her as a divinity. And then, according to her statement, beat her up. Charlotte expunged him from her life in 1927, via the divorce court.

Press dispatches announced a year ago that Earle had married Denise Loncin in Paris and more recently has been living at the Hotel Foyot, Rue de Tournon, and also receiving mail at the Royal Auto Club, Pall Mall, London. He had been in the limelight very little during recent years in so far as the courts were concerned. He did land in jail once on a charge of kidnaping his son and the escapade cost him $1400 in balm to the boy's mother. But there had been only one divorce suit to face. His artistic soul had roved at will and life possibly seemed to him a poem. That is, it did until he met this little Dolores Salazar, the Spanish beauty, in Southern California. He fell for her like a ton of brick.

"Darling," he wrote in a letter, "one is silenced by such happiness as you gave me last night. One is awed. It would make an atheist pray to a god. It would make a brass monkey walk up a telephone pole."

At least, Miss Salazar has such a letter which she says Earle wrote. She is using it as an exhibit in a $180,000 breach of promise suit filed

All About CECILE SOREL'S Famous "DU BARRY" BED

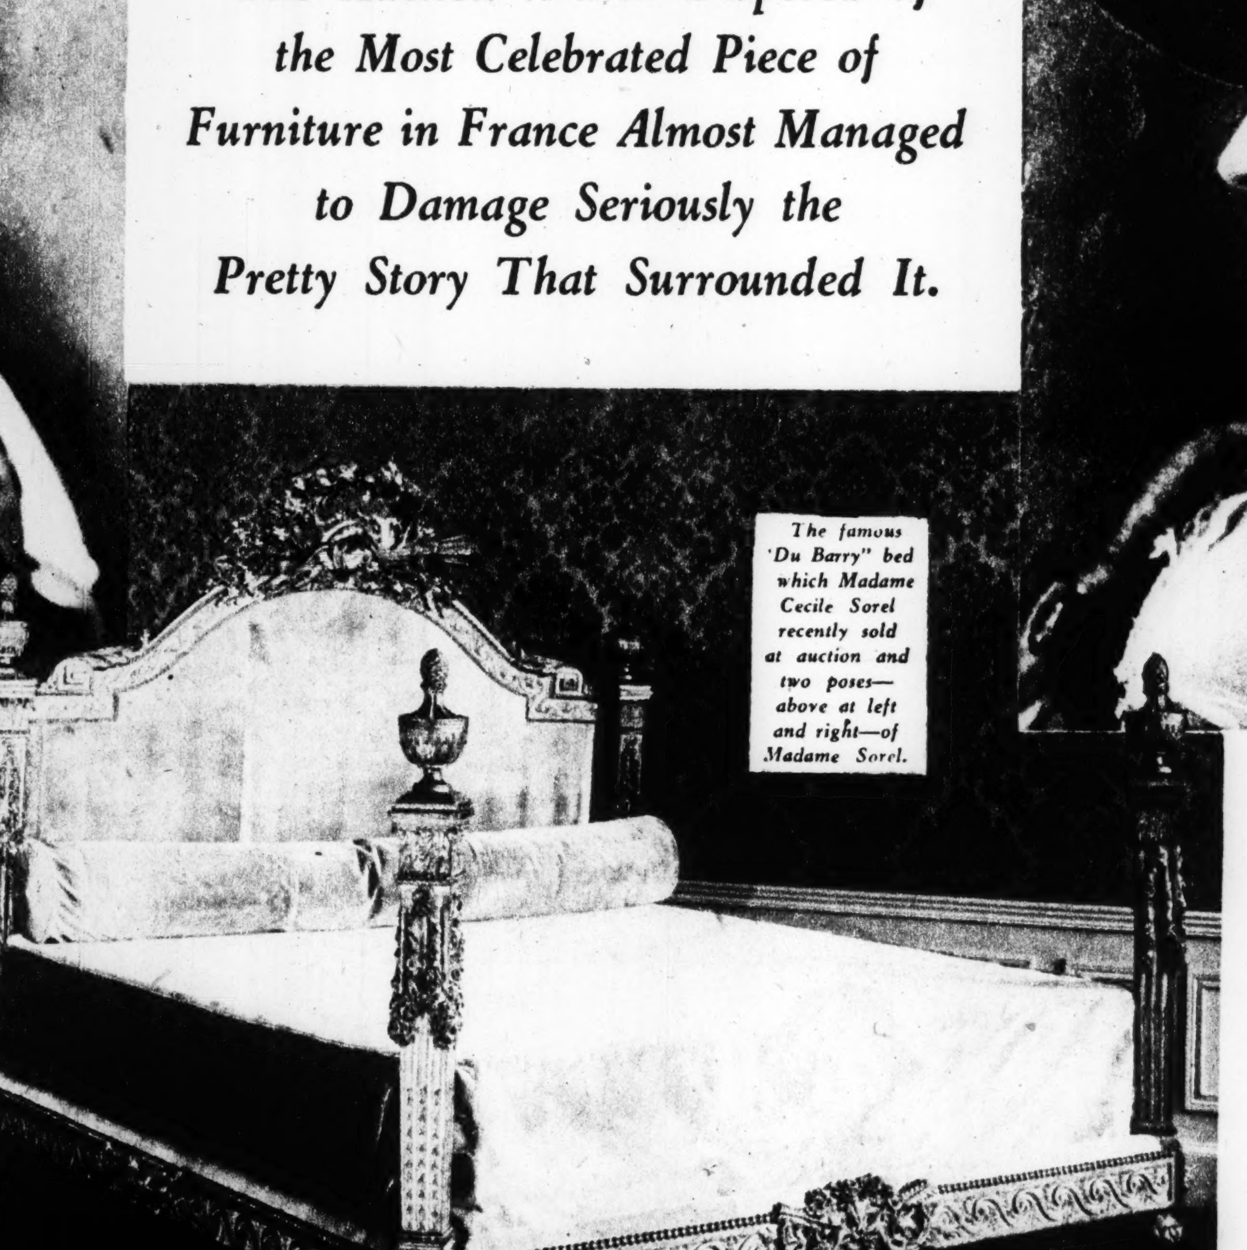
The Auction Which Disposed of the Most Celebrated Piece of Furniture in France Almost Managed to Damage Seriously the Pretty Story That Surrounded It.



The famous 'Du Barry" bed which Madame Cecile Sorel recently sold at auction and two poses—above at left and right—of Madame Sorel.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

PARIS.

CECILE SOREL, famous actress of the Comedie Francaise, caught by the modern turn in furniture, decides to auction off her old pieces.

La Sorel begins the business with a little speech.

"I do not want my friends here," she says, "to feel simply that they are buying fine furniture, but rather that they are getting souvenirs of me."

Madame smiles, bows, retires. And the auction for the furnishings of Sorel, the great Sorel, the beloved of Paris, Sorel the beautiful—the auction is on.

"For this chair, Messieurs, Mesdames, how much? For this . . ."

And then comes the prize of the day, the prize of prizes. Sorel's bed, that magnificently historical piece, the bed of Du Barry, the lady of Louis XV, is put upon the auction block.

Twenty-five thousand francs. Fifty thousand. Sixty. Ninety. One hundred thousand. Up. Up. Up. Going. Going. GONE! For 250,000 francs! For about 10,000 real American dollars! Gone, Messieurs, Mesdames, to an antiquary, who, naturally enough, fain would sell it to some wealthy American.

But—there are whispers, murmurs, doubts. They become open talk, and soon it is no secret. For, so the story goes, Madame's bed was never the resting place of the historic Du Barry.

It is a suspicion that has been smouldering for many years.

Who does not know the fascinating story of how "La Grande Coquette"—the heroine of Sappho and a dozen other vampish roles of the Comedie Francaise—acquired in 1911 a magnificent bed that was supposed to have been the "couch of honor" of Madame du Barry, the Paris shop girl who succeeded Madame de Pompadour as favorite of Louis XV, literally ruled France for six years, and was finally guillotined?

WHAT a clever myth it was on Madame Sorel's—pardon, Madame la Comtesse de Segur's—part! The "Du Barry" bed, which is a truly magnificent thing two yards and 27 inches wide, became the most noted piece of furniture in France, and it would have made her reputation as a great comedienne and stage coquette, if the latter had not been made already. A certain morbid type of tourist, who wanted to pry into the inside history of old France, would pay Cecile's servants huge tips for a peep at the royal couch, and then go out to Versailles to see the delicious little apartment that Madame du Barry occupied directly above the King's apartments, and the secret stairway that led up to it.

One morning about three o'clock, it is said, the most horrible screams suddenly burst from Cecile's apartment on the aristocratic Quai Voltaire.

"Save me! Save me!" she cried as the servants hurried to their mistress' bedroom, believing that she was being murdered. "I am going to be beheaded! I am going to be dragged to that bloody block like Louis XVI and Marie Antoinette! They are getting ready to take me over to the Place de la Revolution! I hear the cart coming now"—and from one of her big front windows she pointed across the Seine to the present Place de la Concorde, where all the nobles were guillotined during the Revolution. When the servants wakened her from the nightmare, Cecile burst into tears and declared that all of Du Barry's life had been crowded into one night-long dream and that the spirit of Louis XV's ill-fated favorite would not give her a moment of peace.

For a popular actress like Cecile, specializing in coquettish roles, it was useful propaganda to sleep in the bed of a King's favorite.

BORN Jeanne Becu, the natural daughter of a poor washerwoman at Vaucouleurs in Lorraine, in 1743, the future Madame du Barry had one of the most rapid rises to fame in the history of French adventuresses. Running away from a convent when a young girl, she got a job at a fashionable dressmaking shop in Paris, where she became known as "The Angel" on account of her blonde beauty.

A ruined nobleman named Count Jean du Barry fell in love with her, and then conceived the scheme of making her Louis XV's favorite in order to re-establish his family fortunes, as he counted on her gratitude. In modern patter, the King fell hard for the young dressmaker when he met her, and was entirely agreeable.

At that epoch, the King's favorite was a respectable and official institution, so to speak. Monarchs married women they did not love for reasons of state, and like Eastern potentates, added one or more extra-legal wives to comfort and console them. In most cases the favorites had far more authority than the wives, and just as extensive establishments. The children of these liaisons were given high titles, as well as big estates.

To be the King's favorite, and become a member of the court, a woman had to have a social position, and generally a very high one. "The Angel" did not even have a birth certificate, but Count Jean soon arranged these trifles.

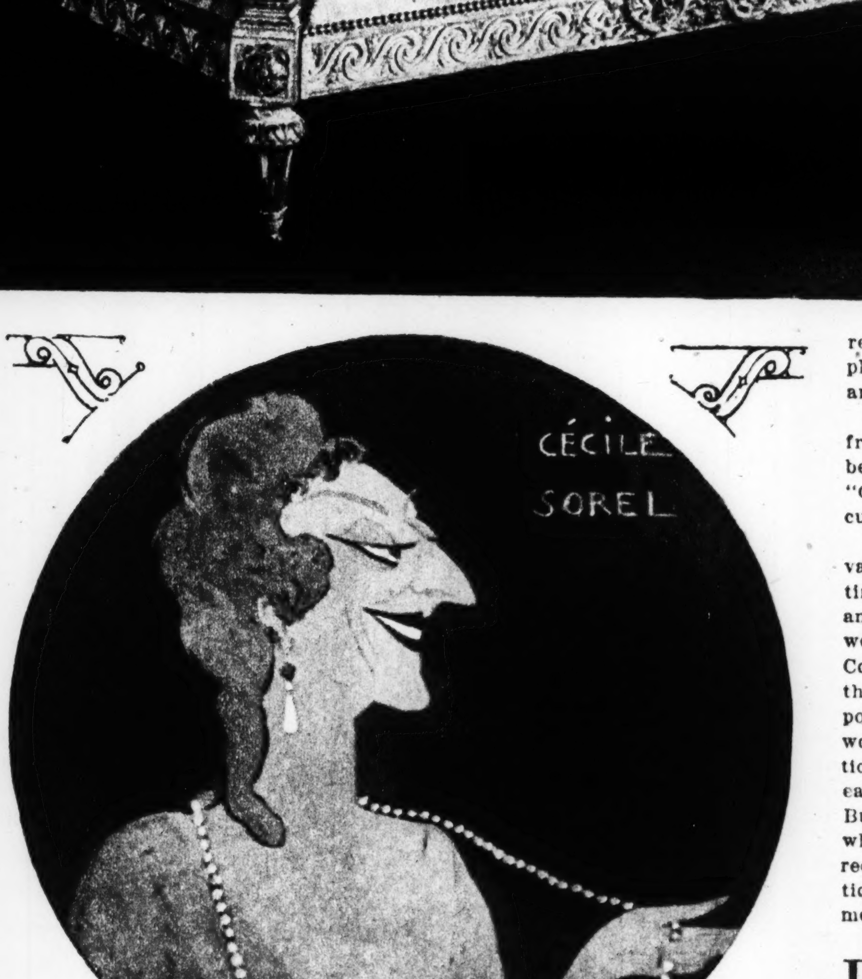
Being unable to marry the young dressmaker, in order to give her a name and a title, as he was already married, Count Jean had his brother, Count William du Barry, a penniless and wifeless officer, come up from Toulouse and be united with her in the bonds of matrimony. In the remarkable marriage contract, which specified that she was to have absolutely free control over her acts and her moneys, she was described as Mademoiselle Jeanne Gomard de Vaubernier, a smart but fanciful name. That was on September 1, 1768, and the same day "The Angel" paid him a large sum for the use of his name and kicked him out of her house, whereupon he returned to his home in Toulouse and was never heard from again. And so at the age of twenty-five, the Countess du Barry took over the job of being the King's favorite.

The ladies of the court disdained her, because of her low extraction, but Du Barry absolutely dominated Louis XV by her wit, charm and beauty until he died six years later. She made and unmade ministers; she dictated policies of state and her check was just as good at the State Treasury as the King's. In these six years she had cost the state about $10,000,000 by her extravagances, this being the equivalent of at least $50,000,000 today.

After the King's death in 1774 she retired to her castle of Louveciennes, where she gave many brilliant fetes for the nobility. In 1793 she went to London to recover some jewels stolen from her castle, and returning in the midst of the revolutionary fury was accused of plotting with the royalist exiles abroad and condemned to death.

She screamed in terror all the way from prison to the guillotine, and just before the big knife fell, cried out, "One minute more, Monsieur le executioner, I beg you."

It is true that some of Cecile's rivals whispered about from time to time that all the stories about the bed and the extraordinary dreams were—well, a bit embellished, but the Grande Coquette is too fascinating a lady, and the majority of French writers too polite, to criticize such a beautiful woman's favorite idol, so the authenticity of the bed has hovered between earth and sky for many a year. But, having been enthralled by what is called modern art, Cecile recently decided to sell all her antique furniture, including the famous bed.



Cartoon of Madame Sorel by an unknown artist named "Bib."

BUT it is a serious business to misrepresent anything at a public auction in France; the sales are under public auspices, and how was Cecile going to authenticate her bed?

Cecile didn't. In fact, she did not even try. For one reason, the bed turned out to be Louis XVI pure style, whereas Du Barry had probably had a Louis XV piece. There is a bare chance that a few Louis XVI bits of furniture were turned out at the end of the Louis XV regime, but that chance is extremely bare.

In the description of the bed in the sale catalogue, where every legitimate selling point of a piece of furniture is always emphasized, there was not the slightest mention of the King's favorite.

The fact that Cecile failed to guarantee it in the sale catalogue as Du Barry's bed forced the critics to break their long silence, and being less chivalrous than their confreres of before the war, they handled the noted couch with considerable skepticism.

"The bed was the star event of the sale," the critic of the grave old "Temps" wrote, for example. "Not because it was vast and magnificent and of pure style; not because the comedienne, with heavy eyelids, had sought slumber in it every night to find repose from the fiction of her roles in the magic of her dreams, but chiefly because she had whispered in our ears:

"'It is the bed of the Du Barry!'

"It was a bold and clever attribution that excited our curiosity. No piece of furniture could be more suggestive than the bed where this favorite of low extraction, who succeeded the dazzling Pompadour, held captive with her frail and delicate grace an unamusable King whom she managed to amuse. Such souvenirs should add an exceptional value to a piece of furniture.

"Madame Sorel will surely give us the proofs of its authenticity in her memoirs sometime, but where was this bed? What became of it when the Du Barry had for her last resting place the plank on which Sanson, the executioner, stretched her, mad with fear? By what good fortune did it come into the possession of the great comedienne, who today is so unfaithful to its memory?"

OTHER skeptical experts went digging into all the state archives of the time of Louis XV, including the bills sent Du Barry by her furnishers, and they found a complete description of the beautiful gilded bed that the King presented to his favorite, but the details did not tally at all with the bed Cecile was selling. There was as much difference between the two beds as between day and night, but in all fairness to Cecile, what man will dare say that a siren who changed her mind about matters of state every day would be satisfied with the same bed for six years? In all probability, the favorite had other "beds of honor," but they likely were all stolen from her castle during the revolution.

In spite of all this polite skepticism, Cecile refused to reveal her proofs of the authenticity of the bed, and it was only after the sale that she began to admit that she herself had some slight doubts.

"I have owned this bed for seventeen years, and I have always believed that it belonged to Madame du Barry," explained the Grande Coquette, but a shadow that passed over her face revealed that she was now haunted by uncertainty.

"Why did I sell my beloved bed? I must explain that after a few years of ownership an old piece of furniture has told you everything about itself; has revealed its most intimate history, and so it loses all interest."

Monsieur Founes, the antiquary who bought the bed, has no illusions about the bed's family tree, either.

"Yes, I understand that Madame Sorel has the written proofs of the bed's authenticity," he smilingly explained, "but she treasures them as a souvenir, and so I have let her keep them. You understand?"

"Yes, I understand," the writer replied with another smile.

A PRINCESS in SPITE of HERSELF

The Farcical Fraud of the Romantic Servant Girl Who Posed Successfully as the Morganatic Wife of the Former German Crown Prince.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

BERLIN.

D EFENDANT, Fraulein Martha Barth!" said the presiding Judge in a dry, matter-of-fact voice, calling the defendant to the witness stand to testify in her own behalf at the recent trial of her celebrated case—the most sensational ever held in the courtroom of the small Thuringian city of Erfurt. "Defendant, stand up. Do you plead guilty?"

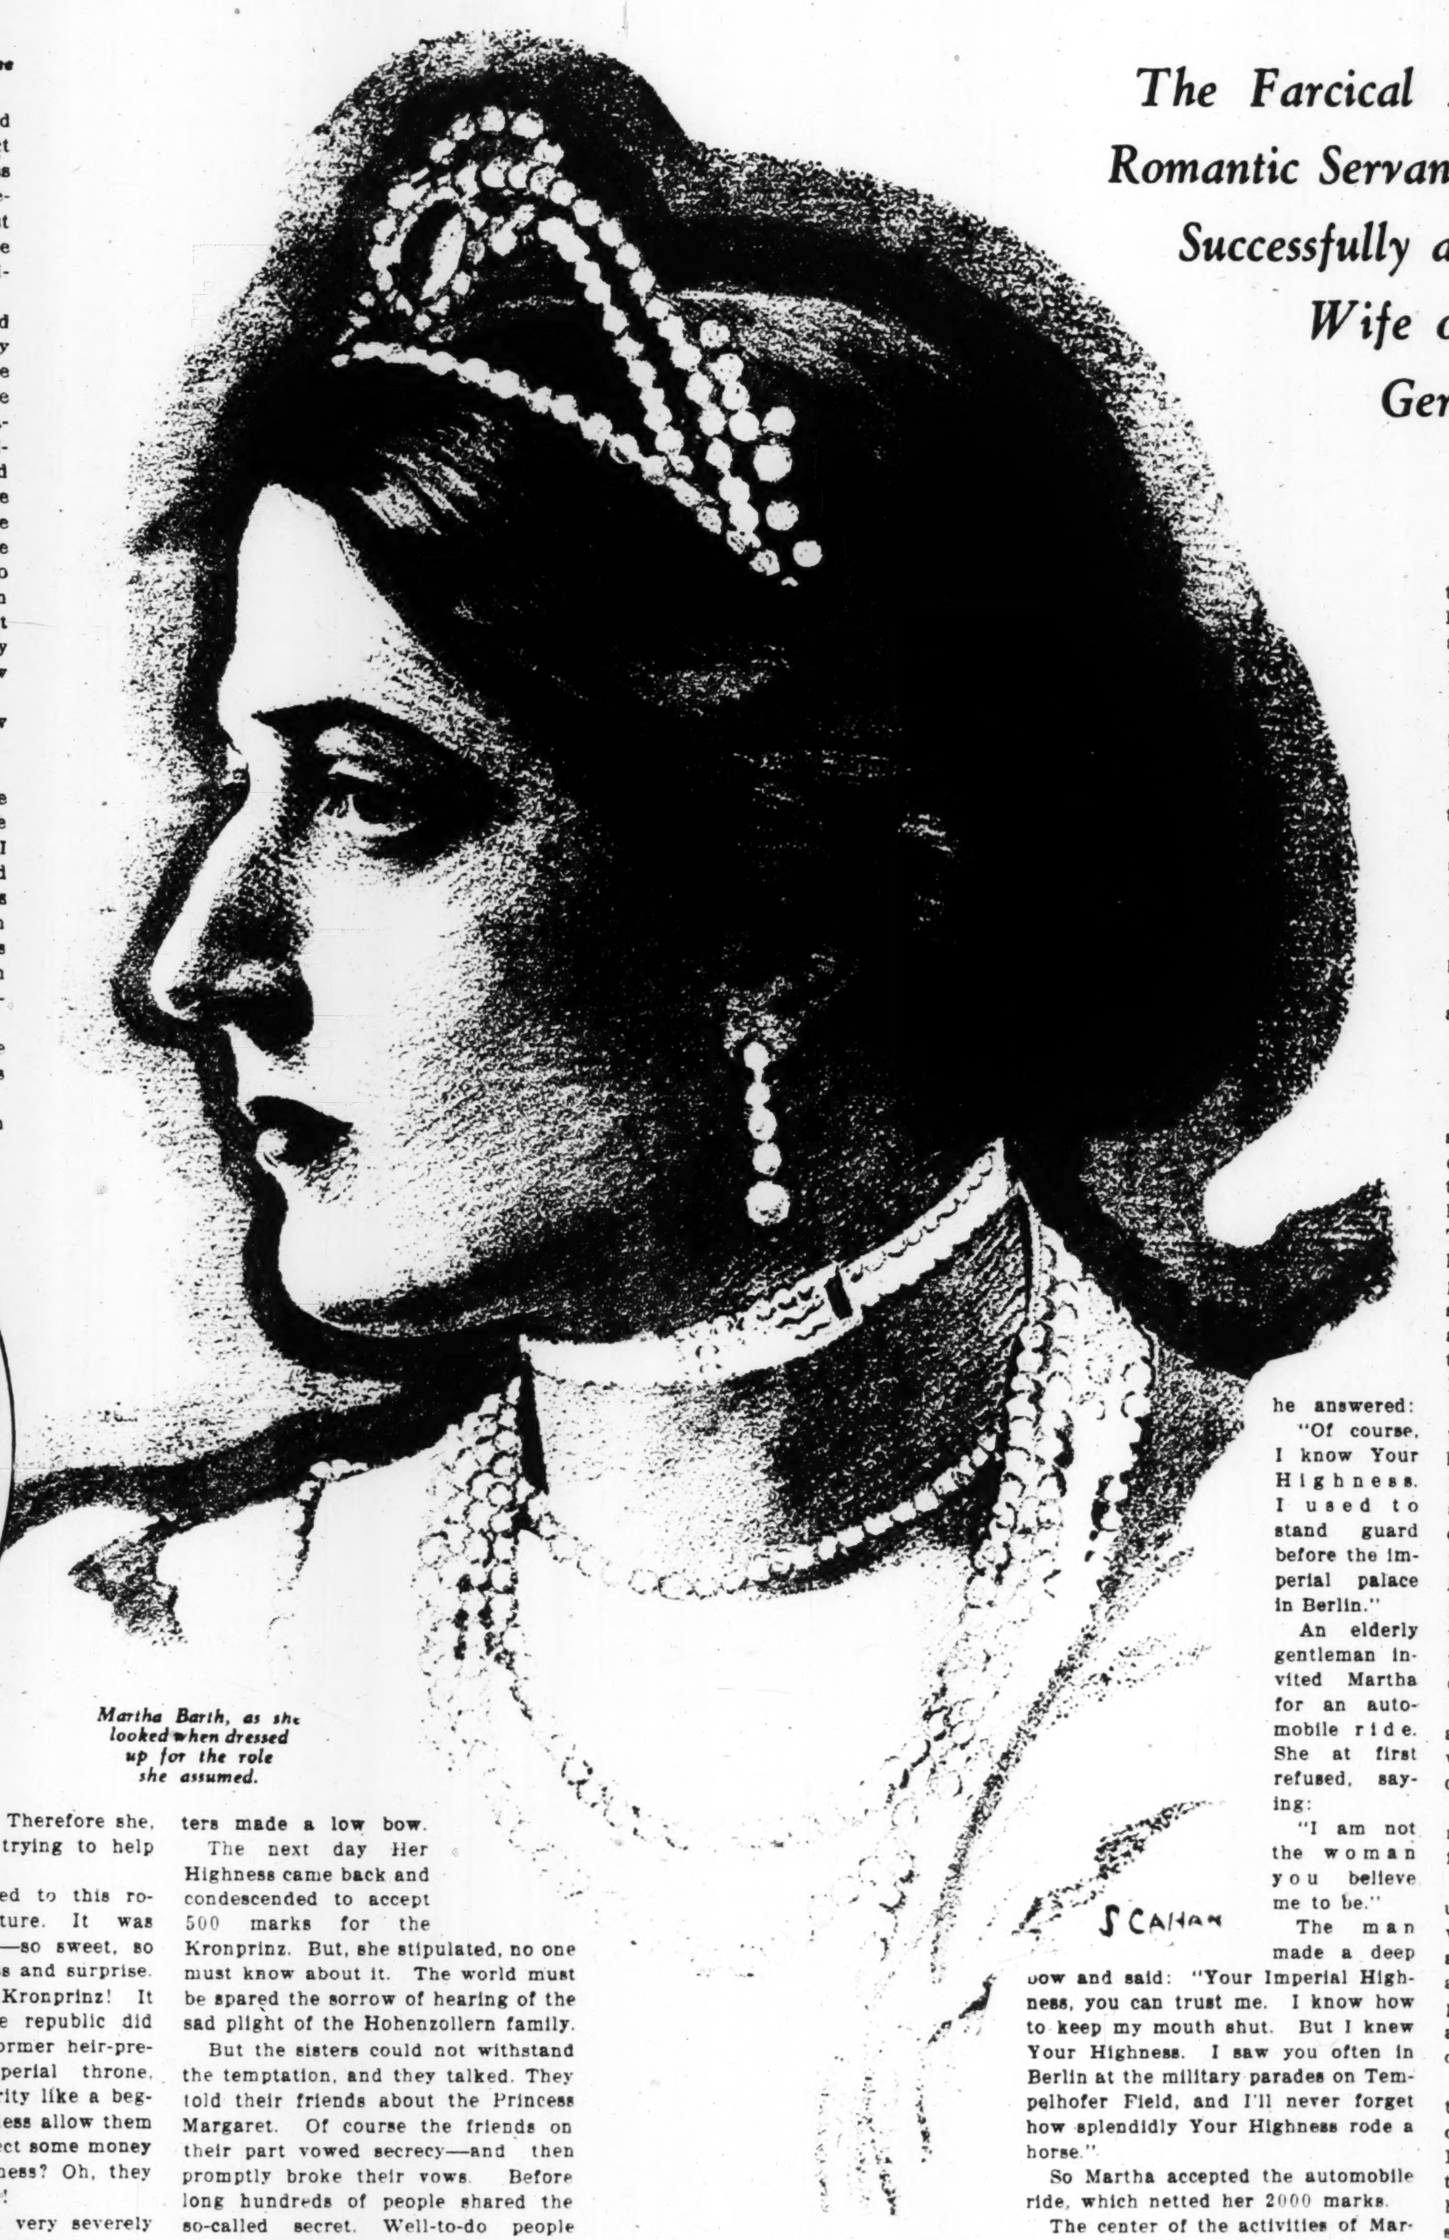
As the defendant rose the spectators could not suppress an amused chuckle. They thronged the courtroom to hear the inside story of one of the most farcical frauds of our time; and the shabby appearance of the 40-year-old defendant seemed to justify their anticipation of mirth. Was it not incredible that this slim, insignificant peasant girl, this ignorant, uneducated milkmaid, should pose as the Princess Margaret and the morganatic wife of the former Kronprinz William, and should fool hundreds of people for over a year? Was it not the grandest joke of the decade that this simple servant girl should be able to coax people into giving her thousands of dollars by telling them she was an impoverished Hohenzollern Princess? What fantastic tricks, what shrewd wiles did Martha Barth use thus to exploit the gullibility of men and women who might have been expected to know better?

"Yes, I am guilty," acknowledged the defendant in a low tone. "But I am only partly guilty."

"Partly?" asked the Judge. "How's that?"

"Well, after once I said I was the Princess Margaret, people came to me and offered me everything: Money, automobile rides, clothes and jewelry. Then I told them the truth—that I was not the Princess. They only smiled, understandingly, and courted me more than ever. I was getting tired of this Princess business, but I had to keep it up for the sake of all the men and women who insisted upon having their unfortunate Princess to care for. They simply love to believe such tales, and I am really sorry for them that they no longer have a poor little Princess whom they could worship and support."

And Martha Barth, the servant-girl Cinderella, related the strange story of how she became the "unfortunate Princess Margaret."



Martha Barth, as she looked when dressed up for the role she assumed.

Martha Barth, in her own person.

Martha Barth came to Erfurt about two years ago. She is an illegitimate daughter of a forester of noble birth, Baron von Preusch-Brandenstein. Her mother is a peasant woman, who lived with her in Erfurt. Formerly they lived in various places in Thuringia and spent 10 years in Berlin, where Martha worked as a servant. Since 1921 Martha has spent two years in prison on three separate convictions—once for forgery and twice for theft. Before coming to Erfurt, both mother and daughter worked on a farm, saved a little money and set out to find a job in town.

They had been but a few days in Erfurt when Martha visited the millinery shop of the Herold sisters. She bought a cheap hat and chatted for about an hour with the two elderly spinsters. They talked about the hard times, about the good old days when Thuringia had a ruling dynasty, and when William of Hohenzollern sat on the throne of the German Empire. The sisters loved the Hohenzollerns and were sorry for them. One of the sisters, Mathilde, even wept when she came to talk about the exiled Kaiser.

THREE days later Frau Barth again appeared in the little store of the Herold sisters. This time she bought gloves. It was late in the evening, when very few customers came into the store. The sisters were more than ready for a chat. Mathilde again mentioned the Kaiser, and Martha remarked—very discreetly—that she was a close relative of the former Emperor. The spinsters wanted to know more, but she refused further confidences.

Next day, however, she again went to the store, and when the sisters pressed her to tell of her relationship with the imperial family she gave them the story, asking the sisters not to tell anybody about it because she was incognito in Erfurt. She was the illegitimate daughter of the Princess Sophie, sister of the Kaiser and Queen of Greece, she told the two sisters. Her father, she added, was the Prince of Asturias. The woman with whom she was living in Erfurt was not her mother but her nurse. Later on she declared she was adopted by the King of Greece and eventually was married to the Crown Prince Boris of Bulgaria. This marriage, however, was annulled. Still, she continued to live in Sofia, where she met the German Kronprinz, who was visiting the Bulgarian capital.

A love match ensued and she came to Berlin with the Kronprinz, who wished to marry her. The Kaiser was furious when he heard about the plan of his son and heir, but the Empress wanted her son to be happy and arranged a secret marriage. It was a morganatic marriage, of course, which had to be annulled later in order to allow the Kronprinz to contract a new marriage for reasons of state. But they still loved each other and met secretly rather often. The poor Kronprinz was now in a veritable mess, Martha told the two women. He had no money and was unable to obtain any. Therefore she, his former wife, was trying to help him.

The spinsters listened to this romantic story with rapture. It was like a movie scenario—so sweet, so full of romance, sadness and surprise. Poor Highness! Poor Kronprinz! It was a shame that the republic did not take care of the former heir-presumptive to the imperial throne, forced to live in obscurity like a beggar. Would Her Highness allow them to help her, and to collect some money for His Imperial Highness? Oh, they would be glad to do it!

But Martha refused very severely and very decidedly. After all, she was still a Hohenzollern. She left the store haughtily, and the two sisters made a low bow.

The next day Her Highness came back and condescended to accept 500 marks for the Kronprinz. But, she stipulated, no one must know about it. The world must be spared the sorrow of hearing of the sad plight of the Hohenzollern family.

But the sisters could not withstand the temptation, and they talked. They told their friends about the Princess Margaret. Of course the friends on their part vowed secrecy—and then promptly broke their vows. Before long hundreds of people shared the so-called secret. Well-to-do people came to Martha and offered financial aid, which was graciously accepted. A gendarme stood at attention as Martha passed in the street, and when she paused for a moment to ask the man why he had saluted her, he answered:

"Of course, I know Your Highness. I used to stand guard before the imperial palace in Berlin."

An elderly gentleman invited Martha for an automobile ride. She at first refused, saying:

"I am not the woman you believe me to be."

The man made a deep bow and said: "Your Imperial Highness, you can trust me. I know how to keep my mouth shut. But I knew Your Highness. I saw you often in Berlin at the military parades on Tempelhofer Field, and I'll never forget how splendidly Your Highness rode a horse."

So Martha accepted the automobile ride, which netted her 2000 marks.

The center of the activities of Martha Barth, however, remained the little store of the Herold sisters. She went there almost every day, telling the sisters intimate stories about the Hohenzollern family, revealing family secrets and recalling childhood memories of all the Princes and Princesses.

On the day when the former Kaiserin died, she showed the spinsters a photograph of the Crown Princess wearing a mourning dress and asked them to duplicate it for her.

"I have the right to be dressed as she is, perhaps more right than she has—I am still the wife of the Crown Prince!" Martha said.

And the two spinsters, fully in sympathy with the wounded pride of Her Highness, pawned two diamond rings and bought her the gown desired.

MARTHA produced letters alleged to have been written to her by the Kronprinz. When she saw what an impression this made on the spinsters, she promised them they themselves would soon receive a letter of thanks from the Kronprinz. Three days later she handed them the letter, in which the Kronprinz expressed his gratitude for the loyal spirit displayed by the Herold sisters, and for their help. He promised in the near future to come personally to Erfurt to pay his regards to them.

Two weeks later Martha came to the Herold sisters and told them that her husband would arrive on the following day. He would like to have a dinner prepared for himself and his entourage of twelve persons. He would also sleep in the house of the Herold sisters, but could not see them personally, because he had to confer with several high personages on matters pertaining to the future of the dynasty.

The sisters duly prepared the meal and received another letter of thanks, which also contained the modest request:

"Please be so kind as to put 300 marks under my pillow, but be careful lest my wife should notice it."

The 300 marks were taken from under the pillow but deep mystery veiled these twelve persons who, with an undoubtedly wholesome appetite, ate the sumptuous Thuringian dinner prepared by the two sisters, as well as the Imperial Highness who slept on the premises.

Martha Barth received a small fortune in marks, clothes, jewelry and objects of art from the friends of the Herold sisters. She repaid them by attempting to dress up to the role she had assumed. From time to time she would disappear from Erfurt, telling her admirers that she had to go to Berlin to see her husband, the Kronprinz. On her return she reported that she had given everything she had to "William."

IN THE meantime the Herold sisters parted with all their savings and Martha became so well known in the city of Erfurt that she felt exposure to be imminent. She wrote from Berlin to the Herold sisters, telling them that in a few days everything would be straightened out and that the money which they had expended for the Kronprinz would be returned to them in full. The two sisters, overjoyed showed the letter to a lawyer who promptly communicated with the police and told the amiable spinsters that they had been fooled.

Two weeks later Martha Barth, alias Princess Margaret of Prussia, morganatic wife of Kronprinz William and illegitimate daughter of the Queen of Greece, was arrested in Berlin in the cow stable of the former imperial castle Bellevue, where she worked as a servant girl. To the last she remained faithful to the imperial dynasty!

The Court sentenced Martha to two years in prison.

"It is a very light sentence," said the Judge, "but the Court accepted the defense of the defendant that she was almost forced to keep up her role as a Princess because nobody was willing to believe her when she confessed that she was not a Princess. These people insisted upon being deceived, and the defendant gave them what they wanted."

A 200-Mile Funeral Journey Through Arctic Desolation

EDMONTON, Alberta.

IN HIS wilderness hut on the shore of Great Slave Lake, Henri La Rocque sits alone with his grief. It is 50 below; the frost pops and crackles in his cabin walls, the husky dogs moan and whimper and quarrel in their snow-covered shelter. The aurora blazes almost overhead. On every side is frozen desolation, an Arctic winter at its worst.

Henri La Rocque mourns, but his mourning is tempered by the satisfaction of having kept his promise to the dead. The body of his wife, buried at last with the rites of her church, is sleeping in consecrated ground at Fort Resolution. It was her dying wish that this should be. But it was accomplished only after her husband had battled an Arctic trail for 24 bitter, devastating days, hauling the frozen corpse 200 miles on a dog sled. It was a harrowing mission, but Henri La Rocque fought his fight alone and won.

Henri La Rocque is an Indian, interpreter to the Royal Canadian Mounted police at the isolated post of Fort Reliance, on the eastern arm of Great Slave Lake. In his cabin of pine logs there he lived, with his wife and two small children. Since last winter the health of his wife had been failing, presumably as the result of a frost-bitten lung. Then with the coming of cold weather this year she became desperately ill. Her malady was recognized as tuberculosis, but it was then too late to get her out of the wilderness to a hospital. Winter had already set in and she was too weak to stand the rigors of the trail. There was no medical attention to be obtained within hundreds of miles. There was nothing to do but make her last days as comfortable as possible and wait for death.

LANGUISHING in the hut while a roaring fire of pine knots struggled to keep the winter at bay, the Indian woman resigned herself to her fate. There was but one thing she had to ask. She had been brought up in the Catholic faith, but the lonely little post of Fort Reliance had neither priest nor cemetery. When she was dead, would her husband see that she was buried in the little Catholic cemetery at Fort Resolution? Henri promised, and she died content.

It is a tradition of the Royal Canadian Mounted that "a promise made is a debt unpaid" until the promise is kept. Henri was true to that tradition. He did not hesitate. But it was an appalling task that he faced. Fort Resolution was 200 frozen, weary miles away, and there were the two little ones to be taken care of while his promise was being carried out.

He soon determined to take the children to the convent at Fort Resolution and place them in the care of the sisters. But to haul them on the same sled with their dead mother was unthinkable. Some other plan had to be devised. So this is what Henri La Rocque did:

Leaving the children in the care of a trapper, he started first with the body of his wife. Strapping it on a dog sled, he headed westward. For three days he trudged behind his charge. Three nights he camped and sat beside the corpse. He dared not leave it for a moment—there were the hungry dogs and the marauding wild animals. At the end of three days' march he reached the deserted fish station at the mouth of Driftpile River. There, high on the fish racks, where the split fish are hung to cure in the sun when the summer season is on, he tied the frozen corpse. Then he turned the dogs in their tracks and headed east again.

There were three more weary days on the trail with an empty sled and then the stoic Indian set out with a new cargo. This time the sled bore the two children, snugly wrapped in blankets and furs, and provisions for an eight days' march to Fort Resolution. Eight days' travel by dog sled through a temperature of 50 below zero! Eight nights of camping on a fog-bound trail of snow that follows the shore of Great Slave Lake! Only the children of the North, hardiest of a hardy breed, could have survived a trip like that.

BUT Henri La Rocque's children weathered the rigorous march. After three days they passed the mouth of Driftpile River and saw the body of their mother hanging stiff and stark on the high fish racks. Five days more and they reached Fort Resolution and the shelter of the convent. Their journey was over, but Henri La Rocque's was far from finished.

With one day's rest he turned his face eastward and fought his way back—a five days' journey—to the gruesome fish racks. Once more he strapped the corpse on the sled and headed for Fort Resolution on the final lap of his sorrowful trip. Again for five days he traveled with death. Again he sat in vigil at night protecting the body from the fangs of dogs and wolves. At last it was over. Fort Resolution was reached and Henri La Rocque's wife was laid to rest in the bosom of her church. The Indian had carried out his pledge.

The First Penguin Ever Hatched in America

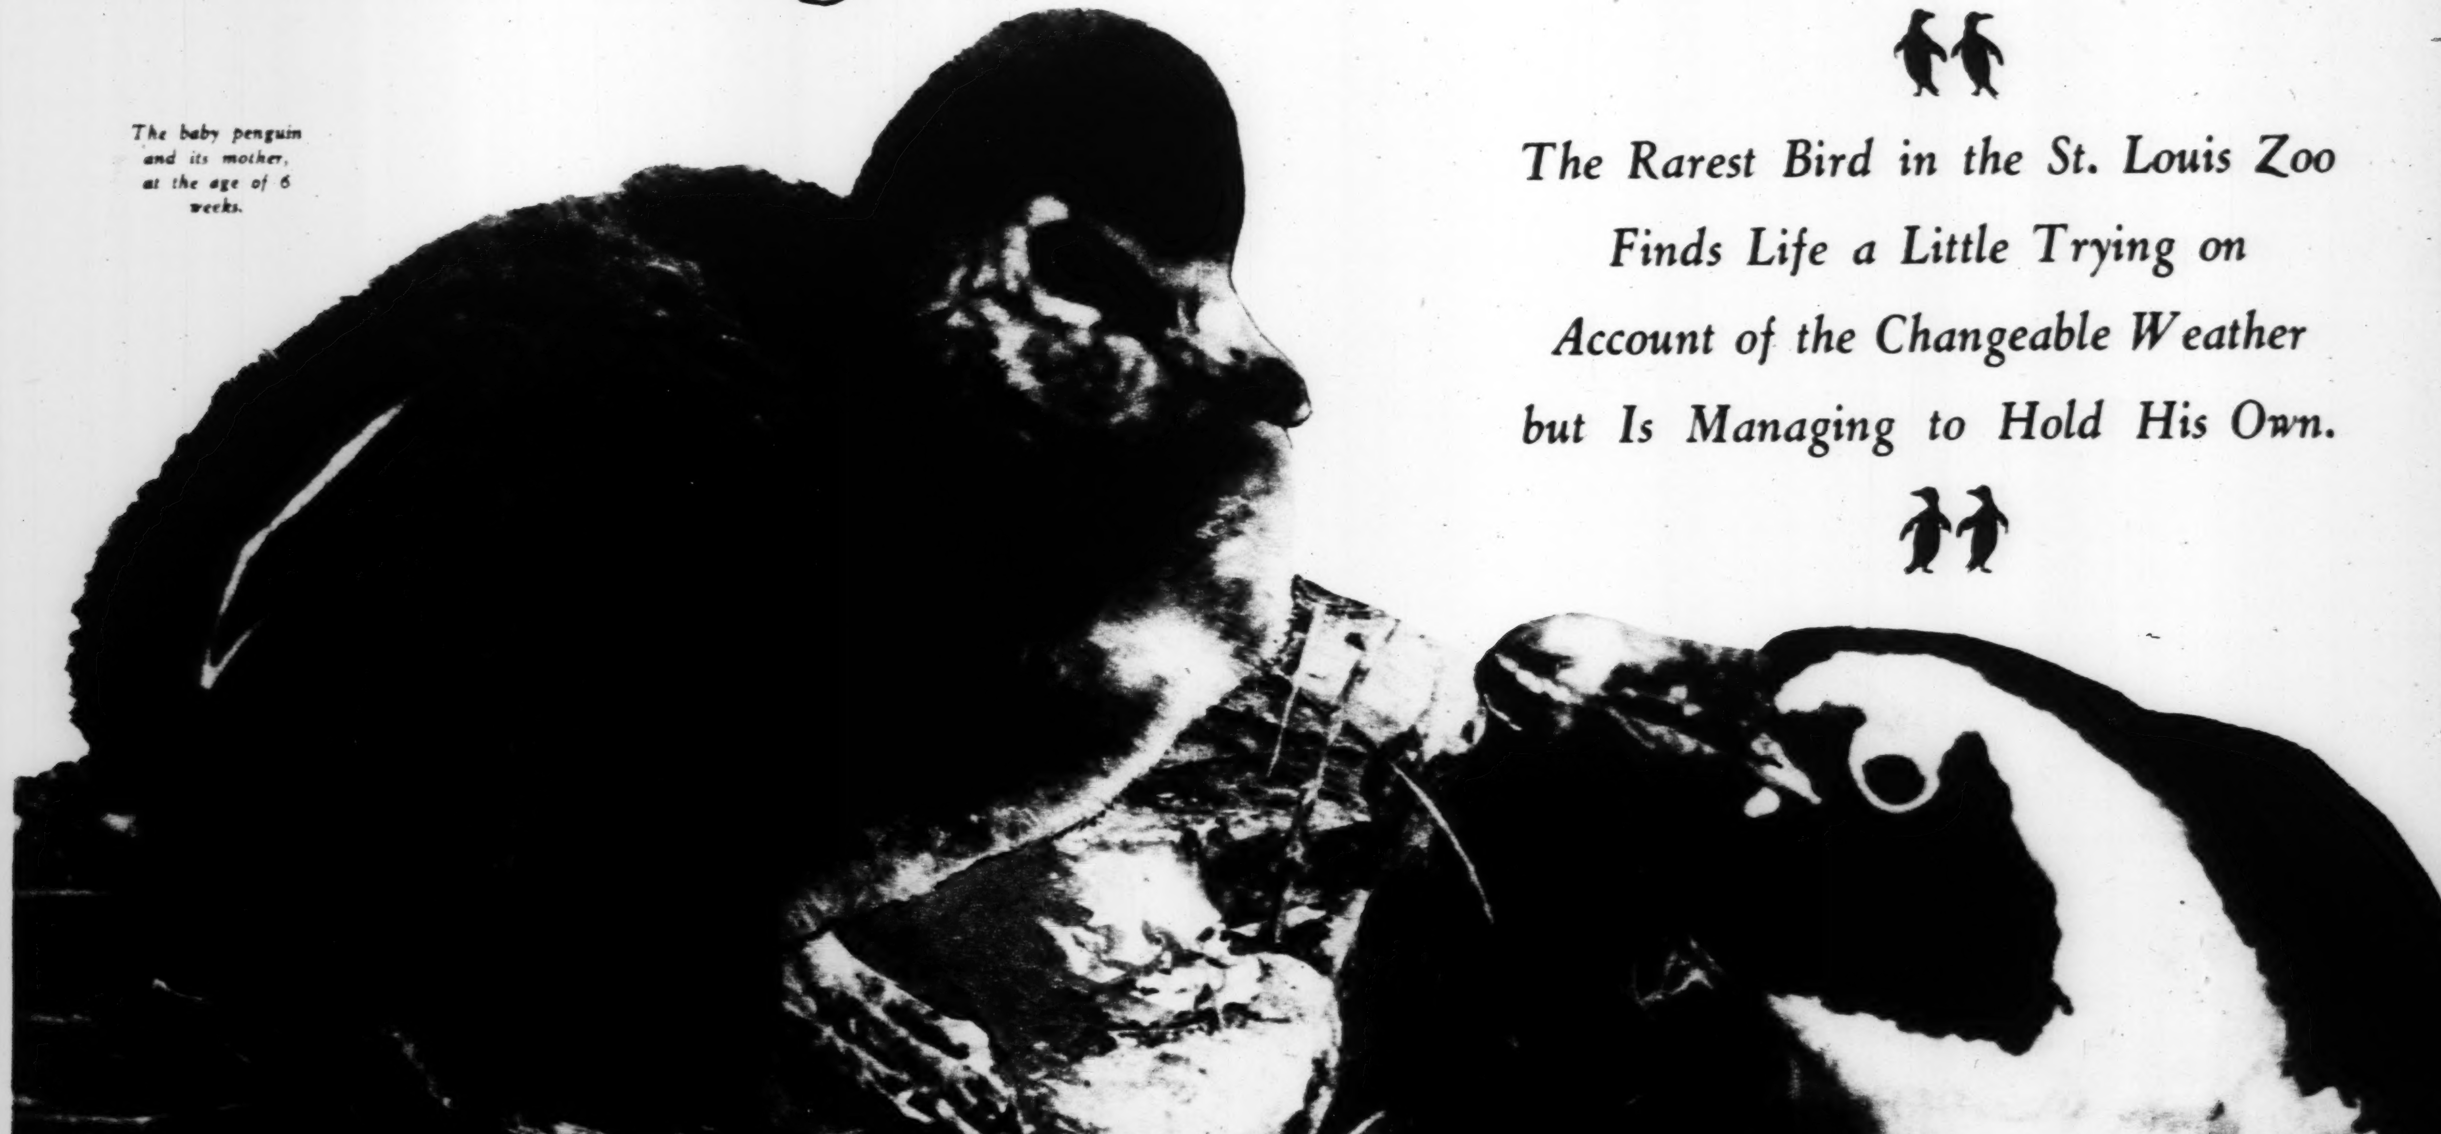
The Rarest Bird in the St. Louis Zoo Finds Life a Little Trying on Account of the Changeable Weather but Is Managing to Hold His Own.



The baby penguin and its mother, at the age of 6 weeks.

By GUY FORSHEY

of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine Staff

IT'S a fuzzy, downy, awkward bird with a curious, woolly topknot. When it isn't hiding in the nest, which is seldom, it is waddling about the pen looking helpless and considerably embarrassed. Dirty gray of color, something like an adolescent gosling, only more so, it asserts no claim to beauty. It isn't even attractive enough to provoke deprecatory cackles from the more vain and prepossessing inmates of the neighboring bird house. But for all its lack of looks it is the most celebrated character in Peacock Valley, if not in the entire Forest Park Zoo. It is the first baby penguin hatched in the United States, and, so far as Director George P. Vierheller's records go, the first one ever seen in this country. It's a bona fide rare bird and the prize exhibit of the Anatole France section of St. Louis' municipal menagerie.

The offspring of a pioneer family of settlers in this country, and a very old Southern family at that, this first American-born penguin seems destined to become one of the aristocrats of Peacock Valley, providing it escapes the rats and doesn't freeze to death. It's of good old Antarctic stock and the scion of a dignified and pompous race. It has a loud braying voice something like that of a jackass and should go far in penguin religious and political endeavor. To be entirely candid, it seems a trifle dumb, but penguins, with all their dignity, are at best a stupid lot, easily taken in. Consider what happened when St. Mael visited Penguin Island.

THIS zoo youngster may escape being baptized and turned into a man, but there are other hazards almost as formidable. Not the least of these is the cold. Nature intended penguins to live in the remote southern seas among the icebergs of Antarctica, but never fitted them for battle with a St. Louis winter. And the penguins are not alone in this sad plight. Polar bears, sea elephants, musk oxen and all other natives of the frigid zones which cannot be taken indoors shiver and shake in the penetrating damp and ever-changing temperature of a Missouri February. On their home icebergs they weather a climate of 50 below zero without discomfort, yet they come to St. Louis and lose their teeth on 10 above.

The oppressive, sultry heat of summer taxes their endurance just as much in the other direction. The heat of last summer was largely responsible for the death of nine of the zoo's 27 penguins in their first season here.

What the new baby of the flock will do next summer is something else to worry about, but for the present he (the pronoun isn't intended to establish the sex of the newcomer) has his hands full with freezes and thaws. Like a great many other innocent young, he has to suffer because his parents wouldn't change their customs and traditions to suit new conditions of life. He had no business being here at this season of the year at all. It was a parental blunder. But penguins are like that. They seem almost human. Down on the South Georgia and Falkland Islands, around Cape Horn, where they flourish best, they lay their eggs in late spring or early summer. But spring down there comes in November and summer in January and February. When they got up here, north of the equator, they insisted on following their old South Polar calendar instead of the seasonal conditions they found. If they survive long enough they will probably keep on doing that for four or five years, because old customs are always trusted more than the testimony of one's own eyes. Eventually, perhaps, some astute and revolutionary penguin will be seized with the inspiration that spring here comes in April and that eggs should be laid accordingly. He may venture to suggest that such a course might be pursued with profit. One shudders to think what will happen then to this luckless radical. He will be the outcast of the flock. Penguin conformists will rally with righteous indignation to combat this dangerous policy. Legislation may be enacted to prevent him from teaching his insidious doctrines.

Adult penguins looking eager about something—probably an impending fish.

Having had but little experience with penguins and their obstinacies, Director Vierheller and his assistants were mildly astonished last November to find the flock launching into its laying season with the approach of winter. In the course of a week or so four or five eggs were being coddled and guarded by would-be mother birds. These eggs represented the season's output of three or four birds, as each fowl lays only one, or sometimes two, eggs a year. The birds were hovering over them on the bare ground, for penguins build no nests. In their native haunts they lay their eggs on the rocks and hold them on their broad web feet to keep them from becoming chilled. The male and female birds alternate at this nursery duty until the young is hatched, and that means after five or six weeks' sitting.

The penguin pen is in the bottom of the valley, midway between the elephant house and the primate house. A stream fed from artificial sources tumbles through the inclosure and courses on its way down to the sea lion tank below. On the downstream, or west, end of the pen the stream flows under a concrete bridge and through a woven wire netting. The birds are able to swim back under the bridge, which for a time comprised their only shelter. As cold weather came on, however, boxes were installed with nests of hay, and to these the birds repaired with their eggs.

ON DECEMBER 10, attendants keeping a close watch on the nests noted unusual belligerence in one of the mother birds and found her guarding a fluffy little creature that resembled an ugly duckling. A day or two later a second one appeared. Three of the eggs failed to hatch. One of the little penguins died of exposure in a short time, but the first one, an unusually hardy youngster, has weathered the rigorous climate so far and has become justly famous as the first infant of its kind in America. Lavish is the care and affection showered upon it by the parent birds. They feed it and one sits constantly on guard in front of the nest. Any intruder immediately runs afoul of a sturdy and threatening beak.

This highly developed maternal instinct is said by explorers to constitute one of the tragedies of the penguin kind in their native islands. H. G. Wells elaborates upon it in his novel, "The Undying Fire," evoking from the lips of Mr. Huss the following comment:

"YOU will have seen pictures and photographs of penguins. . . . They express a quaint and jolly gravity and aldermanic contentment. But to me now the mere thought of a penguin raises a vision of distress. I will tell you. . . . One of my old boys came to me a year or so ago on his return from the South Polar expedition; he told me the true story of these birds. Their lives, he said—he was speaking more particularly of the king penguin—are tormented by a monstrously exaggerated maternal instinct, an instinct shared by both sexes, which is a necessary condition of survival in the crowded rookeries of that frozen environment. And that instinct makes life one long torment for them. There is always a great smashing of eggs there through various causes; there is an excessive mortality among the chicks; they slip down crevasses, they freeze to death, and so forth, three-quarters of a year's brood perish, and without this extravagant passion the species would become extinct. So that every bird is afflicted with a desire and anxiety to brood upon and protect a chick. But each couple produces no more than one egg a year; eggs get broken, they roll away into the water, there is always a shortage, and every penguin that has an egg has to guard it jealously, and each one that has not an egg is impelled to steal or capture one. Some in their distress will mother pebbles or scraps of ice, some fortunate in possession will sit for days without leaving the nest, in spite of the gnawings of the intense Antarctic hunger. To leave a nest for a moment is to tempt a robber, and the intensity of the emotions aroused is

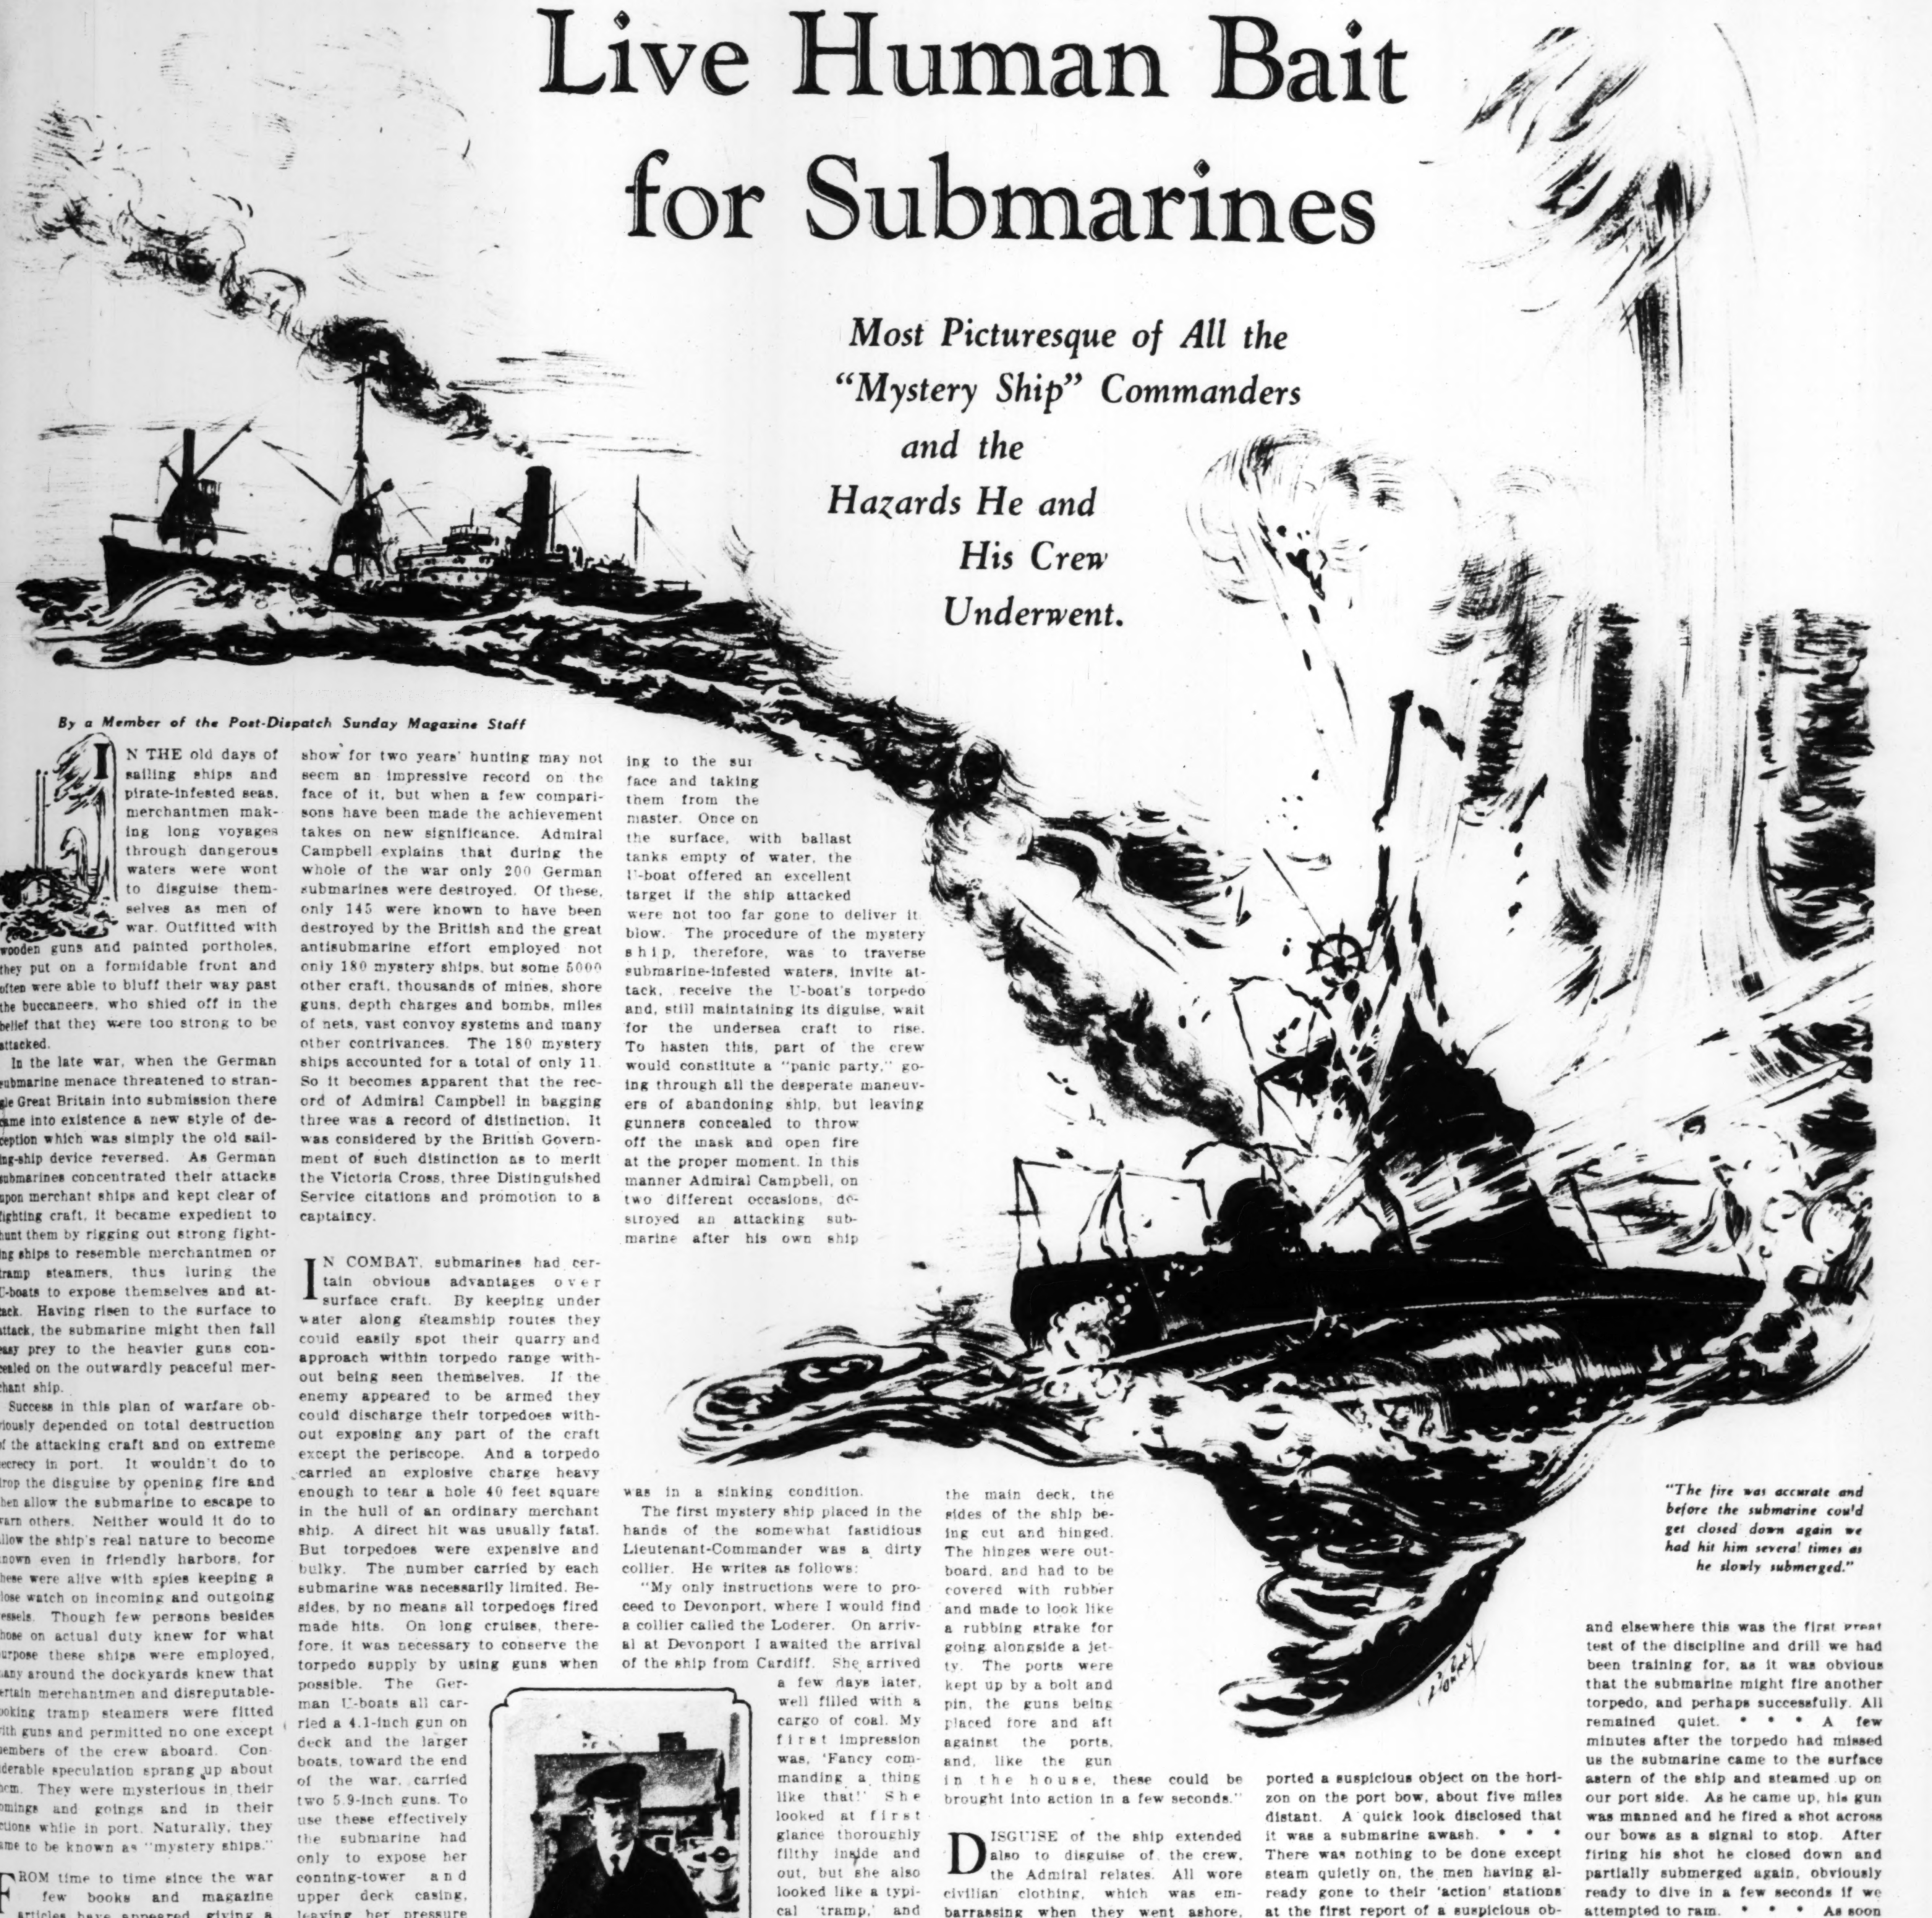
Live Human Bait for Submarines

Most Picturesque of All the "Mystery Ship" Commanders and the Hazards He and His Crew Underwent.



"The fire was accurate and before the submarine could get closed down again we had hit him several times as he slowly submerged."

By a Member of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine Staff

IN THE old days of sailing ships and pirate-infested seas, merchantmen making long voyages through dangerous waters were wont to disguise themselves as men of war. Outfitted with wooden guns and painted portholes, they put on a formidable front and often were able to bluff their way past the buccaneers, who shied off in the belief that they were too strong to be attacked.

In the late war, when the German submarine menace threatened to strangle Great Britain into submission there came into existence a new style of deception which was simply the old sailing-ship device reversed. As German submarines concentrated their attacks upon merchant ships and kept clear of fighting craft, it became expedient to hunt them by rigging out strong fighting ships to resemble merchantmen or tramp steamers, thus luring the U-boats to expose themselves and attack. Having risen to the surface to attack, the submarine might then fall easy prey to the heavier guns concealed on the outwardly peaceful merchant ship.

Success in this plan of warfare obviously depended on total destruction of the attacking craft and on extreme secrecy in port. It wouldn't do to drop the disguise by opening fire and then allow the submarine to escape to warn others. Neither would it do to allow the ship's real nature to become known even in friendly harbors, for these were alive with spies keeping a close watch on incoming and outgoing vessels. Though few persons besides those on actual duty knew for what purpose these ships were employed, many around the dockyards knew that certain merchantmen and disreputable-looking tramp steamers were fitted with guns and permitted no one except members of the crew aboard. Considerable speculation sprang up about them. They were mysterious in their comings and goings and in their actions while in port. Naturally, they came to be known as "mystery ships."

FROM time to time since the war few books and magazine articles have appeared, giving a general description of mystery ships and their operations. But now comes for the first time a real story of life on board these vessels and of actual encounters with submarines—a story by a British naval officer, who was in this engaging but hazardous service for nearly two years. The book, "My Mystery Ships," by Rear Admiral Gordon Campbell, V. C., D. S. O., has just appeared from the presses of Hodder & Stoughton, Limited, of London. It forms an absorbing and thrilling narrative.

On voyage after voyage Admiral Campbell—then Lieutenant-Commander Campbell—and his crew constituted "live human bait" for the monsters of the deep. They courted death. In every surreptitious manner possible they invited attack, knowing they could scarcely hope to accomplish anything until the submarine had already torpedoed them or opened gun fire. Usually they went into battle after their ship had stopped a torpedo and was partially disabled. During their two years' service they destroyed three submarines, victory coming in two instances after a desperate fight. To obtain these destructions they themselves gave three ships—one beached, one put into dry dock and one sunk. But their destruction of three U-boats was worth infinitely more than the price paid. Indeed, the sinking of a submarine was worth almost any price.

A total bag of three submarines to show for two years' hunting may not seem an impressive record on the face of it, but when a few comparisons have been made the achievement takes on new significance. Admiral Campbell explains that during the whole of the war only 200 German submarines were destroyed. Of these, only 145 were known to have been destroyed by the British and the great antisubmarine effort employed not only 180 mystery ships, but some 5000 other craft, thousands of mines, shore guns, depth charges and bombs, miles of nets, vast convoy systems and many other contrivances. The 180 mystery ships accounted for a total of only 11. So it becomes apparent that the record of Admiral Campbell in bagging three was a record of distinction. It was considered by the British Government of such distinction as to merit the Victoria Cross, three Distinguished Service citations and promotion to a captaincy.

IN COMBAT, submarines had certain obvious advantages over surface craft. By keeping under water along steamship routes they could easily spot their quarry and approach within torpedo range without being seen themselves. If the enemy appeared to be armed they could discharge their torpedoes without exposing any part of the craft except the periscope. And a torpedo carried an explosive charge heavy enough to tear a hole 40 feet square in the hull of an ordinary merchant ship. A direct hit was usually fatal. But torpedoes were expensive and bulky. The number carried by each submarine was necessarily limited. Besides, by no means all torpedoes fired made hits. On long cruises, therefore, it was necessary to conserve the torpedo supply by using guns when possible. The German U-boats all carried a 4.1-inch gun on deck and the larger boats, toward the end of the war, carried two 5.9-inch guns. To use these effectively the submarine had only to expose her conning-tower and upper deck casing, leaving her pressure hull, the most vulnerable part, concealed. If the periscope—a slender target at best—were hit it was no great matter, because all submarines had another in reserve. Even hits on the conning-tower were not fatal, as a water-tight door at the bottom of the tower could be closed and the submarine remain water-tight. Moreover, if the submarine was to be hit at all by gunfire it had to be hit with the first round or two or it would dive and get away.

Gordon Campbell, V. C., D. S. O. and now a Rear Admiral.

But the submarines were handicapped by disadvantages, too. Their speed under water was slow. And they could not cruise under water indefinitely, as many suppose, because when submerged they had to rely on their storage batteries for power and on their reserve tanks for oxygen. Another consideration, too, was that submarine commanders had to give accounts of their raids on their return home and furnish proof of vessels sunk. The best proof was the ship's papers, and these could be obtained only by coming to the surface and taking them from the master. Once on the surface, with ballast tanks empty of water, the U-boat offered an excellent target if the ship attacked were not too far gone to deliver it blow. The procedure of the mystery ship, therefore, was to traverse submarine-infested waters, invite attack, receive the U-boat's torpedo and, still maintaining its diguise, wait for the undersea craft to rise. To hasten this, part of the crew would constitute a "panic party," going through all the desperate maneuvers of abandoning ship, but leaving gunners concealed to throw off the mask and open fire at the proper moment. In this manner Admiral Campbell, on two different occasions, destroyed an attacking submarine after his own ship was in a sinking condition.

The first mystery ship placed in the hands of the somewhat fastidious Lieutenant-Commander was a dirty collier. He writes as follows:

"My only instructions were to proceed to Devonport, where I would find a collier called the Loderer. On arrival at Devonport I awaited the arrival of the ship from Cardiff. She arrived a few days later, well filled with a cargo of coal. My first impression was, 'Fancy commanding a thing like that!' She looked at first glance thoroughly filthy inside and out, but she also looked like a typical 'tramp,' and the more I thought of what our game was to be the more I got to like her and feel that she would be an excellent ship for the job.

"The ship was the ordinary type of tramp steamer of 3200 tons, 325 feet long, and a beam of 45 feet. * * * She was a very old ship in every way, and her maximum speed was barely 8 knots. * * * The largest gun, a 12-pounder, 18 cwt, was placed right aft in a specially-constructed house, which represented a steering-engine house. A small steam pipe was led aft from the real steering engine, which was amidships, and taken over the stern. This, with steam continually puffing out, added to the belief that the house contained an engine and not a gun. The three sides of the house were all hinged half way down, and only the back, or foremost end, and roof were fixtures. * * *

"The other two guns, 12-pounders, 12 cwt., were placed on each side of the main deck, the sides of the ship being cut and hinged. The hinges were outboard, and had to be covered with rubber and made to look like a rubbing strake for going alongside a jetty. The ports were kept up by a bolt and pin, the guns being placed fore and aft against the ports, and, like the gun in the house, these could be brought into action in a few seconds."

DISGUISE of the ship extended also to disguise of the crew, the Admiral relates. All wore civilian clothing, which was embarrassing when they went ashore, as "the men complained the girls wouldn't walk with them because they were in civies." Even the commander was subjected to embarrassment at times when the gobs failed to salute and otherwise exhibited lack of respect. It appears, however, he was amply repaid sometimes by the lowly one's discomfiture upon discovering his mistake. To the officer, that was the funniest of spectacles. There could be no saluting on board. He had to appear on even terms with his men and all had to appear as ruffians of the sea, lounging about on the well deck, smoking and spitting. It was only after an attack, when they went into action, that they could reveal themselves as trained seamen. How they deported themselves on these occasions is described by Admiral Campbell in his account of the first submarine encounter:

"After a few weeks of trying to secure a meeting with the enemy, we got news of a submarine coming down the West Irish coast, and, guessing that he would probably try to sight one of the lights at the southwest corner before starting on his career of destruction in the channel or Bay of Biscay, we set our course accordingly for the next two days. * * * Daylight on March 22, 1916, found us steering up the west coast at 8 knots * * * keeping at just the extreme submarine visibility from the coast.

"At 6:40 a. m. the port lookout reported a suspicious object on the horizon on the port bow, about five miles distant. A quick look disclosed that it was a submarine awash. * * * There was nothing to be done except steam quietly on, the men having already gone to their 'action' stations at the first report of a suspicious object. The submarine, on his part, would naturally expect that he had sighted us (a fairly big object with smoke) before we had seen him; so if we wished to be attacked no attempt must be made to escape—in fact, we had to pretend we hadn't seen him. This was a fairly easy matter for the next 20 minutes, though it was rather a novel sensation to us all when we realized that practically for certain in a short time we would be attacked by an invisible enemy and perhaps blown sky-high, without the chance of a shot in reply. * * *

"SO, WITH the guns loaded, their crews concealed beside them, the man on the bridge watching for the next move of the enemy, and all the time the disinterested crew of this tramp lounging about, chatting and smoking, we waited, wondering whether we would be attacked by gun or torpedo. The wait may not have been very long by the clock, but it was terribly long to those on board. The answer came at 7 o'clock when the track of a torpedo was seen approaching, which we made no attempt to avoid. * * * The bubbles of the track passed under the forecastle, which meant that the torpedo had just missed us ahead. We therefore maintained our course, as a tramp steamer could not be expected to know how a torpedo track looked. * *

"To the men concealed at the guns and elsewhere this was the first great test of the discipline and drill we had been training for, as it was obvious that the submarine might fire another torpedo, and perhaps successfully. All remained quiet. * * * A few minutes after the torpedo had missed us the submarine came to the surface astern of the ship and steamed up on our port side. As he came up, his gun was manned and he fired a shot across our bows as a signal to stop. After firing his shot he closed down and partially submerged again, obviously ready to dive in a few seconds if we attempted to ram. * * * As soon as the shot fell the engines were stopped, steam was blown off and the panic party got busy. * * * A great scrambling for the boats took place, which apparently satisfied the submarine as to our bona fides, for he came right on the surface again and closed towards the ship. * * *

"HE WAS now about 800 yards off, showing full length, and although the range was a bit greater than I wished, the time had come to open fire before he might touch off our magazines. I therefore blew my whistle. At this signal the White Ensign flew at the masthead, the wheelhouse and side ports came down with a clatter, the hen coop collapsed; and in a matter of seconds three 12-pounder guns, the Maxim and three rifles were firing as fast as they could. * * * The fire was accurate, and before the submarine could get closed down again we had hit him several times as he slowly submerged. In all, 21 rounds were fired from the three 12-pounders, one gun getting off 13 rounds. The Maxim and rifles wasted no time in getting off some 200 rounds at the personnel on the deck of the submarine who were manning the gun, but now rapidly sought shelter inside the submarine.

"As soon as he had submerged and there was nothing more to fire at, we steamed at full speed to the spot

The TROUBLE WITH WOMEN

By AARON DAVIS

THE head porter came into the doorway of the hotel lounge and nodded.

"I've put your bag in the car," he said.

"Will I be late in Paris because I'm so late in starting?"

"I don't know. Shall I ask the driver?"

"It wouldn't do any good."

The trees back of the Albert Monument were the green of peas that are cooked with soda to make them that light color. A policeman was telling a child not to put on her roller skates until she got in the park. He was pretending to be awfully cross.

The porter held the door of the car open. I gave him 10 shillings because he had got me whisky when the bars were closed. There was a girl in the car and nobody else. She tried to look as though she didn't notice me getting in. She had nice teeth and a black felt hat. Some of her hair came out from under the side of her hat, and it was red. I'd always heard that red-headed women were passionate. I wondered if she was. I'd only known the color formally.

She looked out her side of the car and I looked out mine. We passed St. Martin's-in-the-Fields. There probably were fields there once. Her gloves were good. I wondered if she was the kind of girl who keeps her eyes open when you kiss her. I like that kind. She saw me looking at her and smiled. Not eager but just pleasant.

"Are you Buster Alden's younger brother?" she said.

"Where'd you know Buster?"

"In Paris. He said you were going to fly over. I saw the initials on your bag, and you look something like him."

"How is he? I haven't seen him in six years."

"He's fat. He's awfully proud of you."

I knew why Buster was proud, so there wasn't any use in faking.

"You mean on account of the books?"

"Yes, 'High Dawn' especially. I read it too. You don't look as though you had it in you."

I liked her for that.

"As a matter of fact, I haven't got it in me."

"How do you mean?"

"I shouldn't have said that. It sounds too cryptic."

"Why wouldn't I understand?" She looked a bit sore.

"You would, but the explanation would sound like a lot of blah-blah."

She didn't say anything for a minute, and then she said:

"I'm scared stiff."

"About flying, you mean?"

"Yes. Aren't you?"

"Terribly."

I COULD see the driver in front dig under his coat for his handkerchief and lean over his wheel to wipe the sweat from his face so we wouldn't see him. That bird would die if he had to spend a day in August in the New York place where I do my work. It wasn't more than 65, and he was hot!

"I wonder why we do it if we're scared," she said.

"That's what makes us do it." It sounded like the imitation of a Lonsdale drawing-room strong but clever man. It would be footless to apologize now.

"I wish I hadn't said that; I didn't mean it."

"I know what you mean," she said. "I do it myself. Those smart-aleck things come out so easily."

After that everything was better. She evidently felt it, too, for she went back to that other question.

"How do you mean you haven't got it in you? You wrote the book."

"Yes, I know. But it might sound like a lot of blah-blah."

"Go ahead. I'm a simple girl and easily entertained."

"It's not so very long," I said. "I was awfully lonesome for Buster when he went to live in France. I was with him all the time at home. You know what he's like. He's never superior about his difference, either. And when I began to write I just sort of asked myself what Buster would say and do when put in a situation, and then I wrote that down. That's all there was to it."

She understood it all right, but the corners of her mouth began to quiver, and I didn't like that.

"Why do you make your mouth go like that? Are you making fun of me?"

"Far from it."

There seemed nothing to say to that.

"He has a lot of charm," she said, "a lot of it; but he had no business to just quit a job where he had proved that he could do so much good, and bury himself on a backwater French farm to rot away what might have been an immensely useful life."

She made me sick. They all make me sick trying to run his life. I felt the same way, so that's the reason they made me so sick, I guess.

"Can't you see that's none of your business or my business? If he can be happy doing it, that's up to him. Let him alone."

"He hasn't seemed awfully happy to me," she said.

The field at Croydon looked like smooth, green satin when they spread it out on the counter under those true-color lights. All around it were white hangars with little men working on the fronts of planes. At least they seemed little because the field was so big. A lot of planes were placed perfectly evenly in front of the open doors, as though they were going to have an inspection. One man had spilled gasoline over himself and was getting out of his shirt in a hurry before it blistered his skin.

We stopped at a small building that was the office of the French line I had booked on. There was a cement terrace in front, with wicker tables and chairs where you could get something to eat. A man with an exaggerated beret came out the door and smiled.

"You people have got the machine to yourselves today."

The Government must subsidize the service, for he was quite pleasant about it.

The red-headed girl asked me if I had any brandy.

"My friends told me to take some in case I got wee-waw. I didn't, and the sight of this scared me."

I went across the cement terrace and had them draw the cork in the bar, and put the bottle in my coat, and we walked out to the little ladder that leads up the side of the plane. The idea of three more hours alone with her was not so bad. She was a peach.

THERE were rattan chairs screwed to the floor. Twelve of them. We took the front two, right behind the glass. It was like going under gas; everything happened while you were getting set for it to happen.

Even when we got in the air it was like riding a truck over the big Greenwich detour on the Boston post road. I'd always thought that flying would give you the slick feeling that gulls seem to have on early, quiet summer mornings when they lay up in the sun looking down for tinker mackerel.

The girl went white and held out her hand. I had a cup, but she took it from the bottle. Then I took a drink. I could feel it take hold at once, for I hadn't been drinking very much the last week. It was restaurant brandy, all right.

The English fields were divided by a sort of golden-colored stone walls and thick hedges; over in France they don't waste even the width of a hedge. It was beautiful to see it from up there.

Just as we came in sight of the channel the plane began to mount. There was a lot of heavy clouds ahead, and the pilot was aiming to get over them. Then we ran into them. It must have been like that the day before Genesis. Nothing to compare anything by.

Then we came out of the clouds; banked way over—the fields sliding by the window instead of under the floor. I was scared stiff for a moment.

Her face was awfully close. She didn't look scared. Then I kissed her. Her hair seemed bright and shiny up close like that. Some of it was across my face. Her eyes were open and indistinct, except in the center. It was like looking at a dark, deep color through a lighter color, with light coming in from the sides.

"Golly, Danny," she said. "I shouldn't have let you do that." She had got my name from Buster, I guess.

"Let me? You had nothing to do with it!" Toujours la politesse! That's me.

"Don't be silly. I knew we were going to click as soon as you got in the car."

I liked her for that. Most of them refuse to go 50-50 if they can pass the buck. She was a straight shooter.

It was up to me to say something, but I couldn't think of anything pat. There are plenty of second-hand lines you can spring in a fix like that, but using them is taking an awful chance. So I kissed her again.

MY AUNT ESTHER, the Christianest woman I know, told me once that during the very minute she was joining the church she couldn't think of anything but how funny the bloodhounds looked in their red blankets in the "Uncle Tom's Cabin" parade on Elm street the year before. A couple of thousand feet up in the air, I was kissing this red-head and thinking about the night Buster was due from college for Thanksgiving after making the All American. The train was late. They wouldn't let me sit up for him. I waked before daylight with something heavy on my feet. I thought it was Nebbie, the cat. It was a football, a nose-guard and shinguards. It was pitch dark in the hall. I went and stood outside Buster's door.

"Is that you, sweet old kid?" he said. "Better get your clothes on. It's cold." Anybody else would have said: "Go back to bed. You'll catch your death"——

She leaned her head back. Her eyes had that lucid underlight that Sorolla paints into his seawater, especially the one in the Metropolitan in which the boys are swimming under the stern of the rowboat.

"What's on your mind?" she said.

"NOTHING but you." Those are the lies that make you feel cheap. When you absolutely click with a person, it's funny the way she can tell when you're thinking about something else when you ought to be thinking about her. All the alibis and explanations in the world don't help then. They know.

"Danny."

"Yes."

"I'm a fool."

"You're a sweet thing."

The first thing we saw was the Eiffel Tower. After that, everything came on quickly. The coming down was the best part. For a minute you have what you imagine the gulls must feel.

We taxied to a standstill in front of the custom house. From way down the field I had seen Buster. He had a stock and wore a blue shirt. France certainly had got him.

They put the ladder against the side, and I scrunched down to get out the little door. Buster stood below me. His grin was just as crooked as ever.

"Jump, kid," he said. "I'll catch you." He had his arms out, the same as when he used to make me jump off the bathhouse roof. I darned near jumped, too.

Helen came down the ladder. It's funny how the possibility of possession alters things. She seemed more of a peach than ever. I wanted to get laughing drunk with her; I wanted to sit on the benches of Chartres or Notre Dame and hold her hand and see whether the current of ecstasy which a cathedral can set loose would flow between us; I wanted to take her away to the races in my silk hat and new cutaway, to hear other men say, "Hot mamma!" The red-head had a flair for freeing the wishes that all of us secretly approve for ourselves.

"Hello, Buster," she said.

"Hello," said Buster. I knew at once why he didn't use her name.

A man and his wife, named Parton, were there to meet her. He looked and acted like one of those men who had married money, but Buster told me it was the other way: She worked in a hat shop when he married her. I drove with Buster in a hired car. It was an antique from the A. E. F. sales and rattled like the devil.

"The movie people cabled me an offer of $12,500 for 'High Dawn.' "

"No!" said Buster. He had that nice surprised interest that makes his mouth look so comically like a setter pup's when the music hurts its ears. "You certainly are hitting the high spots, old Danny."

"They're going to call it 'Mountain Honey.' "

He took his hand off the wheel and pushed it flat against my face, instead of using words to show how pleased he was.

"WHAT do you think of Helen Grant?" He had been holding in the question until I got over my big news.

I told him she was a peach; I didn't tell him about the rest. I felt damned worried. And I'd never held out anything on him before. It cooled down the glow of reunion and made me feel sick to hear him hesitate when he used her name.

"Do you want to marry her, Buster?"

"Don't I just!"

"Go to it, then. She's a peach."

"She won't have me."

"The hell she won't."

"Absolutely not," he said. He laughed, not bitter. "I've asked her enough. She says that if I'll go back to my job in New York instead of fooling around on a farm here, she might feel differently."

"The hell with her." It was hard to say it, but I wanted him back terribly. "Why don't you come back, Buster? We could have slick times. Tilney Martin came to the boat and told me to tell you that he'd make you a rich man in two years if you'd come back. Tilney's going big. He said that was just in case you didn't want to go back to your own job, where you were going so big. Come on back, Buster."

He winked as though we shared a secret, which is always exciting with a man like Buster.

"Not a chance. I like it here. It's peaceful and calm. You'll see when you get down to the farm. It's swell; I like it."

"You lie like the devil!" That made us both laugh.

We passed a bakery with four-foot loaves laid out so the flies could get at them easier. There was a white light over everything, and nobody seemed alive. All tight, I guess, and indoors.

"Bread and young onions and cheese and red wine make the best lunch in the world."

"Camembert?"

"You bet. I've got 18,000 bottles of stuff in the cellar. Red and white, and some brandy. The brandy's too old, they tell me."

"Don't be silly."

"Fat chance! Stir it up with orange juice, and it makes a swell aperitif." He puffed out his cheeks and let the word "aperitif" sort of explode as though he was razzing the whole language.

WE STAYED at the Streetons' apartment. They were in New Orleans. Buster said everybody knew he was hard up and went out of their way to be nice to him. My room was complete, with yellow damask and silver furniture, and a black rug. Buster made me drink a split of champagne before breakfast to see how a frog noble feels all the time. It was terrible. Monsieur Herbert took us to the Jockey Club for the slickest lunch I ever ate. He nearly broke a trace when Buster told him that none of the members looked bowlegged from horseback riding.

Buster had bought a truck for farm work, and we were going to drive it down through the Loire Valley to his place. I was going to write in the daytime while he was in the fields, and then we could have the evenings together. It was all wonderful, except that I kept thinking about Helen Grant. Not so good. Buster did, too, I suppose. We didn't say anything about her, though.

The day before we shoved off I had a note from her. She was staying at a town called Beaugency. We'd probably spend the first night of our truck journey there, and would I come to see her. There were a lot of things she wanted to explain.

"Like hell!" I said. I knew I would, if I got the chance, though. I didn't tell Buster. It made me ashamed to have what he wanted so much.

The truck had ash bows over the body to support a canvas protection in case of rain. The weather was fine, so we had the canvas down. Buster had loaded in some old furniture to carry to his place, so I took an armchair and slung it up by ropes between two of the ash bows. It rode like an expensive baby carriage. After lunch, Buster wouldn't let me drive.

"I want to drive," I said.

"You hush and get up in your chair."

"I want to drive."

He put a bottle of claret between me and the right-hand slats of the arm, and another bottle to the left.

"Can't I drive?"

"If you feel yourself getting conscious, just work on these bottles."

It was the best ride I ever had. Men stopped working in the fields and called "Attention!" to each other as we went by. I'd salute with a bottle and they'd present arms with a hoe and laugh. Everybody had a good time. Kids fetched the old people out of the houses to observe us as we went through villages. A darned good-looking girl on a bicycle came out of a side street. I got down from the chair and bowed. She took both hands off the handlebars to wave and fell off the wheel. I never saw people so quick to catch an idea. They were wonderful. We sang everything we knew, but always finished up with "Mary Ann McCarthy went a-digging after clams."

ABOUT 6:30 we pulled into Beaugency. All the French villages seem to have that white light in the later afternoon. No matter how old the buildings, their silhouettes seem sharp and eager at that time. The dinner was terrible. Buster drank a lot of brandy and turned in early.

I sat in the cafe with half a dozen of the town people. One man had a stiff leg and a beard that made him look like Rhadames in "Aida." I asked the landlady to invite them to have a drink with the rich American. That was the way I felt. No one said a thing. She urged them again. Not a sound. I figured I'd made an awful rip in international courtesy and felt cheap about it. Then I snapped to. I gave her a hundred-franc note so they could all see it, and they ordered quick enough then. A traveler for a wool house made a speech; the chief of police made a speech and the man with the stiff leg put his hand on my head and said something about Lafayette. I didn't get a quarter of it, but we had a swell time.

At 9 o'clock the chief of police took me to the address Helen had given.

An old man with a shawl showed me into the drawing room. The liquor had made me poetic. Helen was dressed in black. Her hair looked like an oriflamme on the tip of a black lance. Of course, it didn't really.

"Do you want to sit in here or go out in the garden?" she asked.

"Don't be silly." So we went out in the garden and sat on a bench beside a lead cupid whose wings never could have lifted him.

"I hope you'll be nice to me, for I'm going to hurt your feelings," she said.

Not too good a beginning for an evening. You could see she'd practiced it a lot and it came hard.

"I've been in love with Buster for almost a year now, Danny."

"That's a swell reason for letting me kiss you! Because I look a little like him?"

SHE looked rather hurt. A woman loves to explain a complex situation. I was sorry for spoiling her big scene.

"My dear girl, people have been doing nice things for me ever since I was that high because I happen to look a little like Buster."

"Don't you see, Danny dear, if I married him now we'd be sunk forever? You can't reform a man after you marry him." Her sincerity made her shiver. She was a peach, all right. "He's got all the ability in the world. Did you know he can write marvelous stuff?"

"Can't he though? He was so darned busy with his real job that he never really worked at it, though."

"It's a shame not to make him do the really fine things he can do," she said. "There are so many millions of people who can run a little farm. I won't let him think I'll marry him while he's wasting his life this way."

"But if this makes him happy, what about it? That's the main idea. Go ahead and marry him."

"He's not happy. He's not happy. I know he's not happy."

There wasn't much to say to that.

"Oh, and Danny, when I saw you get into the car in London, and you looked so much like him, and I was so terribly lonesome for him—well, I just let myself go and pretended it was him." She became sort of savage. "I never let him kiss me. I can kiss you without being afraid of myself, you know." Right on the point of the jaw, that one. Smacko!

I had a good idea all of a sudden. I'd had it back in New York when people were saying mean things about Buster being through, having shot his wad, couldn't come back, and all that sort of thing; but this was a new slant to it.

"Look here, Helen, you promise me you'll never say a word to a soul about it—not to Buster especially—and I'll tell you something. Buster's been working on a book for some time. I've read what he's done, and it's a knockout. He won't put his name to it, because it's too personal. It tells why he shut himself off from his own people and came to live here."

She was cheered up and eager. "Is it really good?"

"GOOD? It's a knockout. And, believe me, I can smell quality a mile off."

"Oh, Danny, that makes me happy! Wouldn't you like something to drink? I've got some American cigarettes in the house."

I love women when they reach that stage of contentment when they have to give you something.

"I promise. I won't say a word. I feel so sort of exalted that I could almost kiss you."

"Go to it," I said. "It's a swell idea. That's the reason I came here."

She did, at that. But it was too Chautauqua-like to save the evening.

"You sit tight," I said. "And when the book comes out, if he doesn't ask you, you ask him."

"Why won't he go back? Tell me that much, at least."

"You wait for the book. I can't tell you."

You bet I couldn't. I'd have given $12,500 to know that myself.

Thursday noon we reached Buster's place. There was a river behind the house, with trimmed poplars to hold the bank. The house was whitewashed stone and the rooms nice and sunny.

I was hot to get on with the new book. It seemed to me that in Buster's situation lay the theme for a story. I'd publish it anonymously and then start the rumor that it was done by Buster. Gossip like that, once under way, can't be killed. The more he denied it, the firmer his friends would grip the thought that he had done it. They all wanted to believe achievement of him anyway. I've made enough money for my publishers to keep them absolutely quiet. It would redeem his reputation with a lot of people who said he was through.

Right from the start the book was a flop. I'd get the typewriter all oiled up, and then I'd go to the window and see Buster across the garden putting up a new wire on the chicken run, and everything would be all off. Sometimes it would come, but it was flat, with none of the flicker and sharp lights that were part of Buster. It was terrible stuff.

Buster had one letter from Helen. I saw it on the table in the hall. He didn't mention it, so I couldn't, very well. Of course, I never told him I'd seen her in Beaugency.

He evidently knew I was having hard sledding with the book, for he took to turning in early, and that gave me time to work at night, for I certainly wasn't doing much in the daytime, what with following him around.

"Lay off it, Danny," he said. "Just loaf here and get all set for it when you go back. Take it easy."

"The hell with that!" It made me mad that I couldn't turn out the kind of stuff I wanted when I was living under the same roof and getting back that closeness with him that was the best thing I ever had. Talk about being through! I figured I was through, all right.

EIGHT weeks after we arrived, it was Buster's birthday. He was shy with that nice hesitation that powerful men have when they try to say something personal.

"I had a letter from Helen some time ago. She asked me if I wouldn't write a book telling why I quit my job in New York and came to live here."

"Yeh?"

"She said I could publish it anonymously, and no one need ever know that I wrote it, except her. She said if I'd write she wouldn't mind my farming it here."

He pounced out a big chord on the piano and sang: "Boom-boom-boom!" the way they do in the Carnegie Hall studios. The dog got up and made his mouth all ready to let go, but then decided not to.

"It's a good idea," I said.

"You wouldn't mind? You wouldn't feel I was stealing your stuff?"

I gave him the old army razz—that one that sounds like tearing a sheet. Poor Helen, she had it bad! She couldn't follow instructions worth a darn. I saw that Buster and I were finished. Imagine my going to visit my brother when his wife had been the slickest petting I'd ever had. A nice, cozy household with her saying: "Oh, Danny, do take some more lemon pie." And me saying: "It's the best lemon pie I ever tasted." Two thousand feet in the air, and her eyes like Sorolla's sea water! Not a chance.

That's what he'd been doing at night instead of reading in his room! The job was done; he let me have the manuscript. I read the first lines while he was putting the dog out. I heard him stop on the stairs. I thought he was coming back, but he went on up after a minute. I could hardly breathe while he hesitated. I knew I'd lost something when he kept on.

I finished reading at 4:30 in the morning. The thing rang like a bell. The story marched straight ahead and never let you down. It was Grade A, Pasteurized all the way. I cried once.

It was Buster and me. I never knew how much I had lived under his shadow at home. He had, though. He'd seen me completely dominated, unable to do anything for myself while I followed him around. So he got out of the country. As a matter of fact, I did start to do stuff on my own after he'd been away two years. I never figured it was his sacrifice—I thought it was my growth.

I PUT the empty jeraboam on the manuscript and went upstairs. The hall was dark. I stopped outside Buster's door. Not a sound. His bed creaked.

"Is that you, sweet old kid?" he said. "Better get your clothes on. It's cold."

There was some light in his room. The east window was pretty bright. The room smelled of corduroy and plug tobacco.

"That book'll go a hundred thousand, Buster. It's wonderful."

He grinned and blew his nose on a red bandana handkerchief. Then he put his feet out of bed and felt around for his slippers that we always called "Mauretania" and "Lusitania."

"That's the trouble with women, Danny. Things will never be the same with us again."

"After—after you're married, you mean?"

"You bet."

"I guess you're right. Look at the sun. It's going to be hot."

"You're hootin' it is. Let's go and make coffee before the cook gets up and puts chicory in it."

"Slicko! It's been swell weather the past week, hasn't it?"

"Swell. Bring the cigarettes, will you? It's swell out there with the sun coming up. We'll carry our coffee out in the garden. Have you ever eaten figs with the dew on them?"

Mr. Earle's Adventures With Seven Women against him in Los Angeles.

Then Miss Salazar says she has evidence to show that her artist-lover induced her to go to Mexico and go through a marriage ceremony, under representations that the wedding would be valid. He agreed, she said, to place $15,000 to her credit in a Los Angeles bank along about January 1, 1927, which, she maintains, he didn't do, but instead took her to France and Mexico, where they lived as man and wife. While they were living there, she says, Earle began to grow indifferent toward her and one day he shaved her head in an effort to humiliate and embarrass her.

AND pretty soon he just up and left her and married Denise Loncin, a maid of France. For all of which, Dolores demands $30,000 for breach of agreement under which Earle was to deposit $15,000 to her credit in the bank; $50,000 for alleged breach of promise to marry; $50,000 for alleged betrayal and $50,000 as punitive damages—items which add up to $180,000. Furthermore, a Los Angeles Judge has given permission for notice of the suit to be served on Earle "by publication."

And as he is said to have extensive property holdings in New York, a judgment for $180,000 might readily be executed.

How does he get away with it?

"Fascination and sophistication," says Dolores Salazar.

And then, shaking the mop of thick, soft, curly, brown hair back from her forehead, she told about the man who, according to her complaint, won her love and then left her stranded in Paris.

"He was so clever. He said such wonderful things. I was only a child, really, when I met him. I had never had—what do you call it?—a 'boy friend.' My parents were very strict. And so, when I met Mr. Earle I was—what do you say?—overwhelmed.

"Oh, yes, Mr. Earle was fascinating," she finished, with a sigh. But the next moment she spoke up sharply:

"I hate men. I hate all men, except my lawyer, Mr. Marchetti, and Ambassador Herrick in Paris. If it hadn't been for him—Mr. Herrick—I should have died.

"I had been terribly ill, and I was nearly crazy, anyway. It was when I was in Paris with Mr. Earle. He used to beat me, and once he took me to the top of Eiffel Tower and threatened to push me off. I think he loved to see me suffer.

"So at last I ran away and went to the American Embassy. There, Mr. Herrick had me sent to a hospital and provided me with everything—just everything! I had a private room and flowers every day, and magazines every week. And when, after eight weeks—that was in 1927—I was better, he bought my ticket and sent me back to America. * * *

"But I was talking about Mr. Earle—and his fatal charm," she said, interrupting herself with a smile, a smile with more than a little bitterness in it.

"YOU see, it wasn't always what Mr. Earle said and did—but how. He had—what is it you say?—a way with him! Yes, a decided way with him.

"He seemed to know everything. That wasn't so unusual. But he sort of—sort of assumed—that I knew everything, too.

"It was flattering, do you see? I loved it, I loved him to be such a man of the world, and adored his caring for me and acting as though I were brilliant and sophisticated like himself. Even when he was brutal to me.

"But now, it is finished. I shall hate all men the rest of my life. Except," she repeated, "Ambassador Herrick and Mr. Marchetti."

So now, it may be, Mr. Ferdinand Pinney Earle has reached a fork in the roadway. Some court will decide.

Live Human Bait for Submarines

where he had gone down, for at the moment there was nothing actually to show whether he had been destroyed or not, although we knew we had hit him, as he had closed his conning-tower before diving. Two depth charges were therefore dropped, and almost simultaneously the submarine, that had obviously been trying to rise, came up nearly perpendicular, touching our bottom as it did so. We were still steaming ahead when the submarine passed down our side a few yards off, and it could now be seen that in addition to the periscope having been shot off there was a big rent in the bows. Our after gun was leaving nothing to chance and put a few more rounds in at point-blank range. A couple more depth charges were released, and the surface of the sea became covered with oil and small pieces of wood—but there was no living soul. * * * This boat, it was ascertained afterwards, was the U-68."

AFTER the U-68 engagement, Campbell was promoted to the rank of Commander and awarded the Distinguished Service Order. The D. S. Medal and Cross was awarded also to five other officers and men.

The cruise continued around the west coast of Ireland, and it was not long until another submarine was encountered. On April 13 a U-boat was sighted on the surface off the Orkney Islands. It fired on the British ship. Some of the British gunners, hearing the report, thought their own ship had fired and brought their guns into action too soon. Two hits and an explosion were observed, but the distance was too great and the air too misty for accurate shooting. The boat submerged and no further trace was seen.

Later they pursued a submarine mine layer, which fired a torpedo at them, but could not be lured to the surface. Fearing their disguise was known, they converted the old collier into a "timber ship" and set out again. They made a trip across the Atlantic to the Bermudas, without noticeable result. Then in February, 1917, they encountered and sank the U-83. This time, however, the torpedo struck them and blew a great hole in the hull of the Loderer. It was virtually disabled when, after 25 minutes of waiting and frantic scrambling by the panic party, the submarine finally was lured to the surface at close range and shot to pieces. When the fight was over the mystery ship had to call for help. It was towed in and beached. It was this engagement which won for Campbell the Victoria Cross.

From March until June, 1917, they hunted U-boats in the ship Pargust, and on June 7 found their prey. They found it when they stopped a torpedo that tore a 40-foot hole in the Pargust's side. Again they scrambled in panic to lure the enemy to destruction, and the enemy came. It was 50 yards away when the guns opened fire at point-blank range.

"After a few shots," Admiral Campbell writes, "an explosion took place in the submarine and she fell over and sank about 300 yards from the ship. The last seen of her was the sharp end of her bow with someone clinging to it. From time of opening fire until the time she sank was four minutes, 38 rounds having been fired during this time."

THE last action took place on August 8, four days after Campbell and his crew had sailed in a third ship, the Dunraven. In this clash, the stern of the ship was blown out and the craft unmercifully shelled. The Dunraven was never able to lure the submarine into a suitable position and, being disabled herself, could not maneuver against the enemy. Once an attempt was made to torpedo the submarine, but the projectile failed to explode and it gave the disguise away. Another torpedo from the enemy and the Dunraven was doomed. She signaled for help and was answered by the destroyer, Christopher. There was just time to get the crew aboard the rescuer when the Dunraven went down with colors flying. It was the last mystery ship to fall to the command of Admiral Campbell. Shortly afterward the crew was paid off.

The First Penguin Ever Hatched in America

shown by the fact that they fight to the death over a stolen egg. You see that these pictures of apparently comical birds are really pictures of poor, dim-minded creatures worried and strained to the very limit of their powers. That is what their lives have always been."

THERE are other characteristics of penguins which increase the difficulty of survival. And this has been particularly true since the invasion of their domain by man. One of the handicaps is the awkwardness with which they handle themselves on land. Another is their complete lack of fear. As everybody knows, the penguin cannot fly. Its wings are very rudimentary as instruments of flight, but make excellent oars and are used as such in the water. On land, the bird stands erect as a soldier on parade and when it walks it waddles about more clumsily than the circus fat lady. It can scarcely run at all, even if disposed to do so, and it is seldom disposed. Explorers declare that a man may walk into a flock of penguins and kill them right and left with a stick, or, if less murderously inclined, may have to kick them out of the way in order to walk himself. Owing to this ease of capture, penguins in late years have been slaughtered in wholesale numbers for the small quantity of oil contained in their bodies. Their feathers, which are so fuzzy as to resemble fur, have not found commercial use, and their flesh is wholly unfit for food. This unfitness of the flesh is due to the bird's diet, which is exclusively of fish.

In pursuit of its prey in the water the penguin appears at best advantage. If it is awkward on land, it is more than compensated for this deficiency by its incredible dexterity in the water. It is the most expert of all swimming and diving birds. Using its wings as flippers, it can swim with amazing speed under water, capture its prey, swallow it without rising to the surface, and dart off again after another fish.

Feeding the penguins is one of Director Vierheller's most delicate problems. They will eat only fish, and the fish must be whole, so they can be swallowed in penguin fashion, head first. The birds don't want their prey cut in pieces, and they would prefer to have it alive. But this, of course, is impossible, as only cold storage fish can be obtained. It comes from Lake Superior, in daily shipments in summer and in carload lots in winter. The zoo is a big customer of the fish markets. Not only the penguins, but other aquatic birds as well as the sea lions, sea elephants, polar bears and alligators eat little else. During January these birds and animals consumed 7761 pounds of fish. Each penguin requires only about two six- or eight-inch herrings a day, but the 2200-pound male sea elephant requires 75 pounds a day and the female 40 or 50 pounds.

Another item of diet of the penguins is shrimp, but the penguins don't know about this. They won't eat shrimp as such, but Director Vierheller uses deception and puts over a fast one by having the shrimp sewed up within the herring. The shrimp, he explains, is necessary because of its iodine content. Birds brought to inland waters from the sea often die for want of iodine, which, in their natural haunts, they obtain from sea water.

Other troubles of inland zoos are also traceable to their remoteness from the sea. There is the difficulty of obtaining fish in perfect condition when it has to be hauled half-way across the continent in freight cars. A tainted fish can often do more damage in a zoo than a loose tiger. Penguins, especially, are susceptible to ptomaine poisoning and digestive disturbances. They are also susceptible to many of the diseases to which human beings are subject and may contract these in some cases from the visiting public. Having been adapted by nature to live in a region free from civilization's diseases, they have not developed the immunity acquired by domestic birds and, unless great care is exercised, quickly succumb in the germ-laden atmosphere of cities.

THE zoo obtained its penguins from the Hagenbeck menageries of Hamburg, Germany, last May. They were birds just brought from the Antarctic by a Hagenbeck expedition. Four of the 27 were king penguins which, next to the emperor penguins, are the largest of the race. They were fine specimens, three feet tall when standing erect. Of the 27, nine died last summer and four of these were the king penguins. Post-mortem examinations showed that at least two of the big birds were victims of tuberculosis.

Setting aside the new baby, there are still 18 in the flock, and, except for two in the Bronx Zoo, these are the only penguins in America. They appear to be pretty hardy specimens. On seeing them dive after the fish thrown into their icy pond, the observer would conclude that they are about the healthiest creatures alive, but that isn't always an indication of health, for penguins can dive when they can't walk. Anyway, one can never be too sure about birds so traditionally fragile. There is the harrowing recollection of that unfortunate flock which ran afoul of St. Mael.

Doctor Sends New Truss on Trial

No Money Down Required; No Cash Deposit; No C. O. D.

Having invented a rupture appliance with no leg straps, no elastic belt, no cruel spring bands, no hard gouging pads, an unusual offer is now being made by the Hernia Specialist. Dr. Andrew Kaiser, 228M Koch Building, 2906 Main Street, Kansas City, Mo. Without a cent in advance, no cash deposit, no C. O. D., he will send his appliance for 30 days' trial. Hundreds of people, many with double rupture of long standing, have declared it brought them quick improvement and freedom from the hampering and discomfort of previous truss wearing. If ruptured, and wanting quick relief and improvement, make this test. If entirely pleased and satisfied after the 30 days' trial, pay its small price and keep the appliance. Otherwise, simply return it and owe nothing. Accept this offer by writing today. The coupon below will do.

In the Dumbwaiter.

GRICK MITT FROM NOSSEESUS DE FLORIST.

FOURTH FLOOR—Ohoo, nize baby itt opp all de cheeckens croquatts, so momma'll gonna tell you a Grick mitt from Nosseesus wot he fell witt heemsalf in luff.

Nosseesus was a Grick yoot from mittillogical tendencizz wot de momma was a neempf wot de poppa was a satire witt horns witt hoofs witt a perr pents from a goat-skeen matirrill wot dey hall leeved in a tree und de rallatiffs was by dem sprites witt peexizz witt helfes witt gnomes witt hall odder tsimilar sutts from woodlend ferrizz! (Nize baby take anodder spoon cheeckens croquatts.)

So instat Nosseesus should hedmiring de boids odder de trizz odder de flowers odder de byootiful Grick maitens—so instat dot wain critchure wot he was, so he hedmired honly heemself wot he set by a pull wodder on de hedge und he gazed a whole time by heemsalf on de himage in de pull wot hall de rast from de boyiss made heem smot-crecks from a "Whoops Modjie" nature!

POT II

So wan day Nosseesus was seeting ocurding like usual gacing by de himage in de pull whan he fal hall from a sodden witt heemsalf in luff wot he sad to heemsalf he sad so:

"Oh you gudgeous critchure you!"

So he gafe heemsalf a henswer so:

"You rilly teenk so?? Wal I like you too!!!"

So den he sad: "Ha ha—Wal dot soitinly makes it anonymous kirro!!! Ha ha!! Hozz obbot stapping hout some time?"

So he sad: "Cull me opp foist!"

So he hesked: "Whan?"

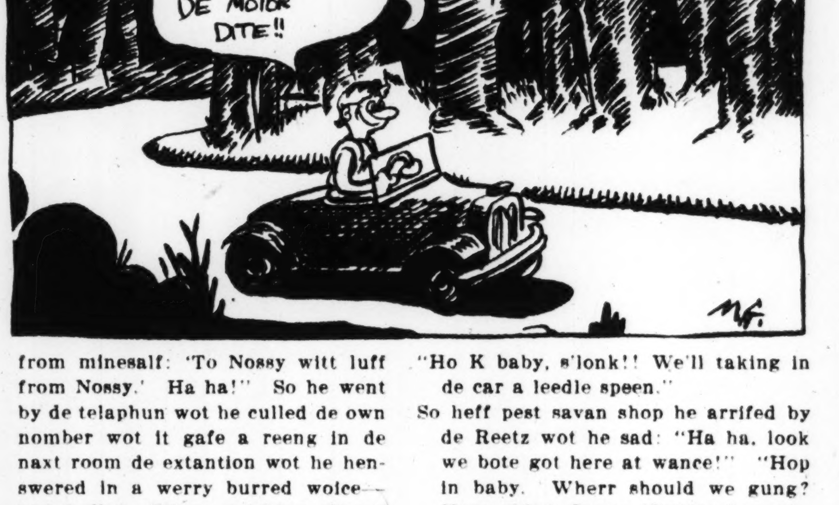
So he henswered werry coyly: "Ho, sometime."

So he sad: "Tomorrow maybe? You'll be hin?"

So he sad to heemsalf tizzingly: "I dun't know. Geeve a try." Wot he got opp wot he ren away queeck in de woots—

So de naxt monnink he got opp bright witt hoily wot he pooled queeck from a daisy de patals hout wot he sad:

"I luff me—— I luff me not—— I luff me—— Oh! Gooty Gooty!!! I luff me. Oh I hope I cull mysalf opp today!! I tink foist I'll sand me a huttogrephed phuttograph from minesalf: 'To Nossy witt luff from Nossy.' Ha ha!" So he went by de telaphun wot he culled de own nomber wot it gafe a reeng in de naxt room de extantion wot he henswered in a werry burred woice—"Oh hollo! Whooz spicking plizze"—(Of cuss he rilly deedn't mant it, he was rilly hall agrog from excitement).



WHY, I DO BILLIVE DE MOTOR DITE!!
M.G.

So he sad: "Hollo kirro!! Hozz obbot me dropping hover tonight? Mitt me by de Reetz heff pest savan shop."

"Ho K baby, s'lonk!! We'll taking in de car a leedle speen."

So heff pest savan shop he arrifed by de Reetz wot he sad: "Ha ha, look we bote got here at wance!" "Hop in baby. Wherr should we gung? Hozz obbot Coney Highland maybe witt a treep in de Tonnel from Luff. Is not? Sharrop you rotten ting you!! Ho K——we'll jost gung for a speen gradually."

So he went for a speen wot he wukked home wot he deedn't was spicking to heemsalf, witt de rad mocks on de faze yat from fife feengers, so he arrifed by de tree so he sad to heemsalf:

"Somebody hesked you to following me??"

So he gafe a henswer: "Ha ha!! Look in a tree you leeve!! Ha ha, some domp!! Mitt me by de Reetz!! Whoopa! Und he gats yat high hat."

So he sad: "Hm, leff you wolgar ting you. Of cuss we got to leeving here bing wot mine fodder is in powlitics in de neighborhood. Goot nite!"

"Und I'll wouldn't gonna seeing you agan."

"Wall if I tutt you rilly kerred!!"

"Of cuss I kerr—— Dunt we are chiltehoot switthots?"

"Do you teenk you could supputing me in de menner to wheech I hev been accostumed?"

"Wal one could leeve chipper ez two—ha ha! Dot's a hot one." "Bot you'll hev to see mine fodder"——

"I sinn heem alrady kirro, bot I steel luff you! ha ha!! Irrigodless, I hesk heem!"

POT TREE

So he went by de fodder wot he sad to heem so:

"Hollo pop—I'm in luff witt you son. He's by me de crim in de cuffy witt de spleet-pizz in de zoop! Witt de chizz in de spagatty, witt de keeck in de Scotch, witt de kriss in de pents. Hozz obbot it, hold topper?"

So de fodder gafe heem a rispounce so:

"Und by me he's de pain in de nack witt de creck in de plate witt de buld spot in de herr witt de shine in de sitt from de trozzers witt de ceender in de heye, witt de tummaine in de hoyster! Goot by plizze und take heem away in de bast from helt!"

So Nosseesus was seeting by de pull wot he was poundering hall sutts from luff deetizz he should seenging to de himage so it aruzz in bitwinn de rast from de Grick Gotts hall sutts gowseep from dees kind gungs on wot dey hed it a messmitting wot was hissued a hedict he should ewolwe into a flower.

So Nosseesus bicame a flower by de site from de pull und for hever hefter he made whoopee on de Main Stam.

THE ANTIQUE CRAZE

It Reaches Its Zenith in the Kalbapfelshovenstick.

Ellis Parker Butler.

NOBODY knows where this antique craze is going to end. I can remember—or I think I can—when a woman who paid $60 for six old Chippendale chairs when she could have got six brand-new varnished oak chairs for $48 was considered an eccentric lady. We did not go as far as to say she was crazy enough to be locked up, but it was generally agreed that she was queer. Today an eminent banker measuring 64 inches around the abdomen will pay $12,000 for those same old second-hand chairs and his picture will be published in the collectors' magazines.

It has got so nowadays that any man who has enough meat on his bones to cast a shadow has to walk around a chair in his friend's house eight times before he is sure he dare sit down on it. And then he dare only sit timidly on the front edge, like a poor relation about to ask for the loan of $10 till next Tuesday.

I am a member of a small club in Flushing and we meet every three weeks at the home of one or another member, and when 13 or 14 of us arrive for a meeting the first few minutes sound like a pine woodshed collapsing into a nest of laths. Then the maid comes in with a rake and scrapes out the legs and arms and backs of the antique chairs, and we all sit on the sofas or the floor and the meeting gets down to business.

Half the women who are trying to reduce are doing it because they won't be invited anywhere unless they are so skinny they can sit on antique chairs that are pasted together with library paste.

You go to a friend's house and he says: "Here is one of my treasures—this is a genuine Billupp chair, circa 1720; don't sit on it. And here's my Piffelton sideboard; I picked it up at the Wiffis sale for only $4567; don't pull out that drawer or the whole front of the thing will fall over and bust this genuine South Hoboken kraut jug."

THESE fellows fill their homes so full of old horse-liniment bottles and gin flasks and kerosene lamps that used to be good enough for the hired girl's room if she was half-witted, that a full-sized man has to draw in his stomach and walk pigeon-toed unless he wants to do $6000 worth of damage.

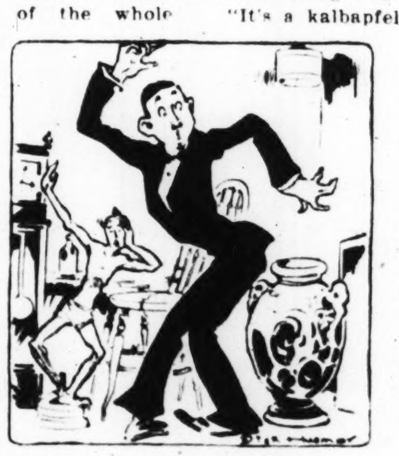
They ask you to stand in awe before a lithograph of some horses that look like brown camels racing with sleighs in absorbent cotton snow, with the landscape plotted in in colors as soft and pretty as a slide-trombone solo. These are pictures the antique lovers go crazy over, but when they were first produced no kind-hearted man would hang them in the stable for fear of giving even a self-educated cow a pain.

"A genuine Currier and Ives!" they murmur with awe. "Slightly stained, but otherwise in good condition."

The next thing I expect to see framed is a genuine porous plaster, circa 1870.

"A genuine Miffle and Pitz," the proud owner will tell me. "A little out of repair because some dear old grandpa wore it over his kidneys six or eight weeks, but otherwise a fine specimen, don't you think?"

Since he asks me, I will admit that the artists who colored the business side of a porous plaster knew more about art and got a better result than all the lithographers of the whole laundry-blue and Paris-green period.



A man must walk carefully not to do any damage.

As long as this antique thing was satisfied to splurge in decrepit chairs and weary sideboards, a man could bear to visit a collector friend once in a while. A man could pretend to admire some of that sort of junk without feeling he was more of a liar than an ordinary blue-sky salesman, but since the craze has slopped over into "Early American" stuff, I feel sort of hopeless. Anything that looks old or smells old is now "rare" and precious, and you are expected to gawp at it until your eyes stick out.

"And look at this, please," your friend says, with mighty poorly controlled excitement. "Here's something you don't see everywhere. I got this at the Gimmick sale; had to bid it up to $765, but it is worth it. I'd have gone to $1000. Just look at its patina, will you? Feel its texture. Pretty fine, what?"

"Yes, but what is it? It looks like a length of broom handle to me—like a piece of sawed-off broom handle, with a string tied through one end."

"It's a kalbapfelshovenstick. Early Dutch, probably Battenkill rather than Kinderhook, because the lower end was finished with a saw rather than an ax. Being chopped off with an ax was a peculiarity of the Kinderhook kalbapfelshovenstick. This one being sawed off with a wood saw makes it almost positively Battenkill."

"Yes, but what is it?"

"And then look at the string loop. Ed Binch, the expert, says that is positively a piece of wurstenstringen, the genuine article, the sort of wurststringen that was used in the Battenkill neighborhood to tie the ends of liverwursts about 1660. Oh, this is an authentic piece, all right! And I'm a mighty lucky boy—there are mighty few Kalbapfelshovensticks in any collections. The Metropolitan Museum hasn't one."

"Yes, but what is it?"

"That's where this one will go, probably; I'll leave it in my will to the Metropolitan Museum. Did you notice the delicate patina and"——

"Yes, but what is it?"

"And the way the knot is tied in the string? Did you notice these marks on it—as if a dog had been chewing it? I am willing to wager any amount that this is the only kalbapfelpushenstick"——

"You said kalbapfelshovenstick before; now you say kalbapfelpushenstick. Why don't you make up your mind and stick to it?"

"IT'S all the same. On the west side of the Hudson they used the word shoven and on the east side they used the word pushen. But, as I was saying, I'll wager this is the only kalbapfelshovenstick in America that shows marks of a dog's teeth. That adds to the interest, doesn't it? You can imagine the vrow holding the calf around the neck, and maybe little Antjie and little Diedrich sitting on its rump as it lies on the grass, and meijnheer himself coming with the kalbapfelshovenstick in his hand, and the family hund capering and barking and suddenly grasping the kalb"——

"For cat's sake, don't say that gosh-awful word again! I've asked you 47 times what this blessed broom handle contraption is. Can't you answer a simple question?"

"Why, it's an Early Dutch Battenkill-style kalbapfel"——

"Be careful! I've only got so much patience and I'm getting mighty badly exasperated, man! Can't you tell me what this broomstick was used for in those dear, dead days before bathtubs, or don't you know?"

"But I've been telling you all the time," he says resentfully. "It is a kalb-apfel-shoven-stick. A 'calf-apple-shoving-stick,' if you don't know anything at all about Early Dutch American nomenclature. When a calf swallowed an apple and the apple stuck in its windpipe they used this stick to push the apple on down into the calf. And this is one of the very rare Battenkill wood-sawed—Wait, did I call your attention to the patina? Don't go—did I show you the bloom on the wurststringen? Here"——

That's what a man has to stand if his friends collect antiques.

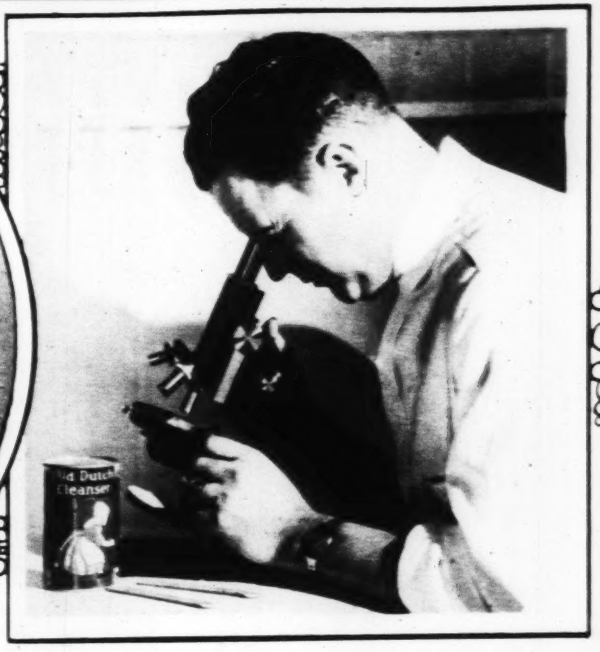
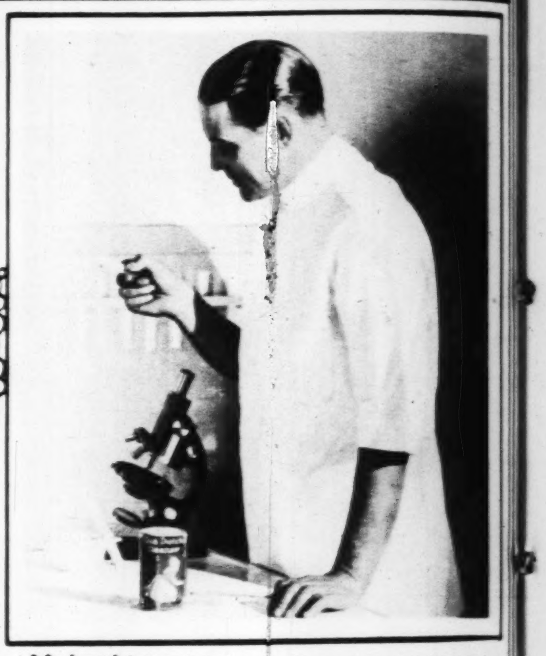
Scientific examination proves that surfaces cleaned with Old Dutch are wholesomely hygienically clean. Old Dutch takes up all visible dirt and by a process similar to "adsorption" removes dangerous invisible impurities which are often a menace to health.



To the eye Old Dutch looks like a fine powder but the microscope shows that it really consists of flat, flaky particles. These tiny particles remove all uncleanliness without scratching.



Make this test. It proves the safety of Old Dutch. Put a little between two pieces of glass, rub them together. You won't feel or hear the scratching of hard, gritty particles. It doesn't scratch.

Old Dutch safeguards your family with Healthful Cleanliness and protects porcelain and enamel

Old Dutch is a natural cleanser. Everywhere you use it, things are made bright, clean and hygienic. It is the safest, surest way to safeguard your home with Healthful Cleanliness.

Cleaning the tub and wash bowl with Old Dutch each time they are used assures Healthful Cleanliness because it removes the health-endangering dirt and invisible impurities.

It is a recognized fact that perfect cleanliness is essential to the preservation of health. For that very reason the tub and the washbowl should be cleaned with Old Dutch Cleanser after each using. This is an important protection that should never be neglected because Old Dutch removes all impurities and safeguards health against their ever-menacing influence.

The high standard of cleanliness which Old Dutch has definitely established meets the most exacting requirements of hygiene, good health and good housekeeping.

Old Dutch Cleanser is safe because it cleans without injury to the surface. Contains no harsh, scratchy grit, acid or caustic—doesn't harm the hands.

Old Dutch is efficient because it cleans thoroughly, quickly, easily and economically. Its flaky, flat-shaped particles possess natural detergent qualities and wipe away the dirt with a smooth, clean sweep.

Old Dutch assures Healthful Cleanliness because it takes away the invisible impurities, as well as the visible dirt, water rings, stains and discolorations.

The distinctive quality and character of Old Dutch make it perfect for snow-white and gaily colored porcelain and enamel; tile, painted walls, woodwork and nickel. Old Dutch protects their beauty and keeps them shining with Healthful Cleanliness. Old Dutch is economical—a little goes a long way.

He, Only 35; She, But 32

Yet . . . Both Losing the One Thing Every Human Being Wants the Most to Keep

A Discovery That Touches One of the Great Problems of Modern Life — Fading Vitality

IT is the most precious thing in life; yet day by day you feel it slipping away. According to world scientists, the stress of modern life is imposing the penalty of Fading Vitality, even in the early thirties, on virtually thousands today.

Now in answer to the question, "Can Youth Be Preserved?"—science brings an interesting answer from Switzerland, where great success has been achieved in this field. Most cases of fading vitality are now believed to be correctable. And the method used has now been brought to this country.

What Is Done

37 years ago a young Swiss scientist formed the theory that fading vitality could be resupplied, if only a food concentrate could be found which could replenish the body with those vital elements it is constantly losing.

After years of research he succeeded in developing a way of combining these vital elements together in a single preparation. A preparation, later called Ovaltine, which acts directly on vitality by feeding the wasted tissues of the body, and fostering normal activity of every bodily function.

The first great tests of Ovaltine were made in famous Swiss Sanitaria. It was given to convalescents who failed to respond to ordinary treatment—extreme cases of faded vitality and nervous exhaustion. It was also tested in numerous clinics, for treating nervous, underweight, debilitated children.

Success was immediate and results far reaching. So great that world prominence was given this discovery during the World War; being adopted by Base Hospitals and the Red Cross as the restorative ration for nerve-shattered, physically depleted soldiers.

Today the use of Ovaltine has spread to such a degree that it is being prescribed the world over. Not only for convalescents, but for the millions of people suffering from probably the most common complaint of busy modern life—Fading Vitality.

The 4 Signs Of Fading Vitality

According To World Scientists

1 Fatigue. Frequent fatigue periods now definitely traced by scientists to Functional Deficiency, not always the result of "overwork" as so many people believe.

2 Sleepless Nights. A drain that not only weakens, but withholds the Great Rejuvenator, sleep, from rebuilding you. Corrected this way, utterly without drugs.

3 "Nerves." Like fatigue—and largely an outgrowth of fatigue—thus charged by many scientists to impaired Functional Activity. Yields quickly to this method.

4 Listlessness. Lack of energy—lack of power to achieve and accomplish. Another form of, or result of, fatigue.

These are both the cause of failing vitality, because of the constant drain on the system they entail; and also the result, because they find their most fertile field of growth in the sub-vital body.

How It Acts

This preparation contains in concentrated form virtually EVERY VITAL element necessary to life. It is utterly free of all drugs. Is a food-drink that is taken in milk—at breakfast, one cup; before bed, one cup. That is all. It fortifies in the morning with tremendous energy elements. It induces sleep and replenishes vital tissues during sleep.

Results make themselves felt within a very short time. So quickly, in fact, that the use of this method has spread over 54 different nations during the last few years. New to America, over 20,000 doctors are advising it. It rehabilitates, revitalizes.

Why this penetrating foam

CLEANS WHERE TOOTHBRUSH CANNOT REACH

In a dramatic way science now proves what millions of people know—that Colgate's cleans teeth better.

A scientist recently made an important experiment with toothpastes.

He measured their power to penetrate the thousands of tiny crevices which are found in normal, healthy teeth and gums.

He found that some dentifrices merely scrub the outer surfaces of the teeth. Others go partly down into the larger crevices.

*Then he discovered that Colgate's has a higher penetrating power than any of the leading dentifrices on the market today.

This is the secret of Colgate's remarkable ability to clean—it gets down deep into the hard-to-clean places where the toothbrush cannot reach; where ordinary toothpastes do not go.

Colgate's penetrating power is due to the fact that it contains the world's greatest cleansing agent.

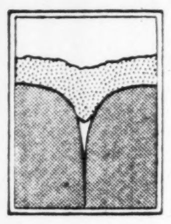
When brushed, this cleansing agent instantly bursts into a sparkling, snow-white foam that surges over teeth and gums. This foam possesses a remarkable property (low "surface-tension") which enables it to go deep down into the tiny tooth crevices where decay may start. There, it dislodges clinging food particles and mucin, sweeping away these impurities in a detergent wave.

In this foam is carried a fine chalk powder—a polishing agent prescribed by dentists—which polishes the enamel safely, brilliantly

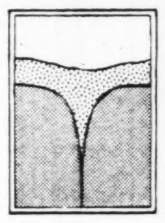
Thus Colgate's cleans and beautifies; purifies and refreshes the entire mouth restoring natural loveliness of teeth and gums.

If you have never used Colgate's, please try it. Mail the coupon below for a generous free tube.

How Colgate's cleans where toothbrush cannot reach*



Greatly magnified picture of tiny tooth crevice. Note how ordinary, sluggish toothpaste (having high "surface-tension") fails to penetrate down where decay may start.



This diagram shows how Colgate's active foam (having low "surface-tension") penetrates deep down into the crevice, cleansing it completely where the toothbrush cannot reach.

1 You try it first on a single lock of your hair to see what it does. Thus have no fear of results.

2 Then simply comb this water-like liquid through your hair. Clean ... safe. Takes only 7 or 8 minutes.

3 Arrange hair and watch color gradually creep back. Restoration will be perfect and complete.

Gray Hair?

then they are wondering how old you are

Here's safe way to end it—Test Free

AT last a way to end gray hair is found that specialists and doctors vouch is absolutely safe. A way that removes the faded streaks and brings back original shade to the grayest parts; that makes the hair live looking and lustrous, youthful and gleaming; that does not make the hair difficult to wave—that is not noticeable as are crude dyes.

Many Broadway stars will risk no other way—likewise 3,000,000 women.

The simplest way—also safest

Hair fades and turns gray when natural color pigment is lacking. So science by a scientific laboratory method supplies a liquid containing certain necessary elements that take its place — hence gives natural shade. The formula is called Mary T. Goldman's Hair Color Restorer after its woman discoverer.

Simply dampen a comb in this amazing liquid—clear and colorless as water—then run it through the hair. That's all. In 10 minutes you are through.

Touch only certain parts or the entire head. You can almost see the natural color creep back, so quickly does it do its work. Streaks disappear . . . gray vanishes. If auburn, your hair reverts to auburn. If black, black it will be.

No need now for crude, messy dyes judged dangerous to hair. They are noticed by your friends. This way defies detection. Nothing to wash off.

Send coupon for free test. Thus take no chances. Which is the safe thing to do.

Or go to your nearest drug store and get a bottle. A few cents' worth is sufficient to restore your hair completely. If not delighted, your money will be returned.

A Good Digestion

means a good complexion

CALUMET CHOCOLATE CAKE

3-4 cup shortening	1-8 level teaspoon salt
1 1-4 cups sugar	2 1-2 cups sifted flour
2 1-2 level teaspoons Calumet Baking Powder	3-4 cup milk
	4 eggs

Cream shortening, add sugar, then add well beaten egg yolks. Mix and sift dry ingredients and add alternately with milk to first mixture. One-half teaspoon of vanilla may be added. Fold in beaten egg whites. Pour into greased tins and bake in a moderate oven (325°-350° F.) thirty minutes.

CHOCOLATE FROSTING

3 1-2 squares unsweetened chocolate	5 tablespoons milk
2 cups powdered sugar	Yolks of 2 eggs

1 teaspoon vanilla

Melt chocolate over hot water, add one-half the sugar, and milk, add remaining sugar, and yolk of egg, then cook in double boiler until it thickens, stirring constantly at first, that the mixture may be perfectly smooth. Cool slightly, flavor and spread.

LESS THAN 1¢ PER BAKING

Calumet is economical because one spoonful equals two of many other brands. It goes farther — lasts longer — the last spoonful is as good as the first.

The lovely charm of a good complexion is priceless. And the statement that beauty is only skin deep is erroneous — for the smooth, natural beauty of a velvet skin comes from within — it is nature's own gift to those who eat properly balanced foods — foods that are easily digested.

Foods that are properly leavened with

CALUMET
THE WORLD'S GREATEST

are always raised high and light which means perfect digestion. The double leavening action of Calumet does this. One leavening unit begins to work when the dough is mixed — the other waits for the heat of the oven, then both units work together.

Bakings made with CALUMET supply the proper nourishment for the body — they tempt the appetite with their purity and delicious flavor.

For over a third of a century this greatest of all leaveners has been winning the favor of America's housewives — and today it is the preference wherever bakings are made and enjoyed.

The whites of more than 6,500,000 eggs are used in the manufacture of Calumet, the World's Greatest Baking Powder, each year, and over 1½ billion pounds of flour are leavened with it.

WELL-AT LAST-THIS GAME WILL BE A HELP TO ME-
OH! DO YOU REALLY THINK I SHOULD STUDY SINGING?
BY ALL MEANS-YOU NEED A LOT OF LESSONS-YOU HAVE NO IDEA HOW NICE THAT LAST SONG SOUNDED
OH! I'M SO GLAD YOU THINK I HAVE TALENT-
YOU SHOULD STUDY EVERY DAY FOR AT LEAST SIX MONTHS-
WITH WHOM DO YOU THINK I SHOULD STUDY?
OH-YOU SHOULD STUDY IN EUROPE-NO ONE HERE COULD HANDLE SUCH A DELICATE VOICE-GO ABROAD AND GO ALONE SO YOU CAN GET RIGHT INTO THE ART-
BY GOLLY-I MUST MEET THAT GUY WHEN HE COMES OUT OF THE HOUSE-
PROFESSOR-I'M-MR-JIGGS-HOW CAN I THANK YOU FER GITTIN' MY WIFE TO GO TO EUROPE TO SING?
NOT AT ALL, SIR-IT IS A DELIGHT-
ATTA BOY!
I DID IT TO PLEASE EVERY ONE IN THE NEIGHBOR-HOOD-I CAN IMAGINE HOW YOU MUST HAVE SUFFERED-

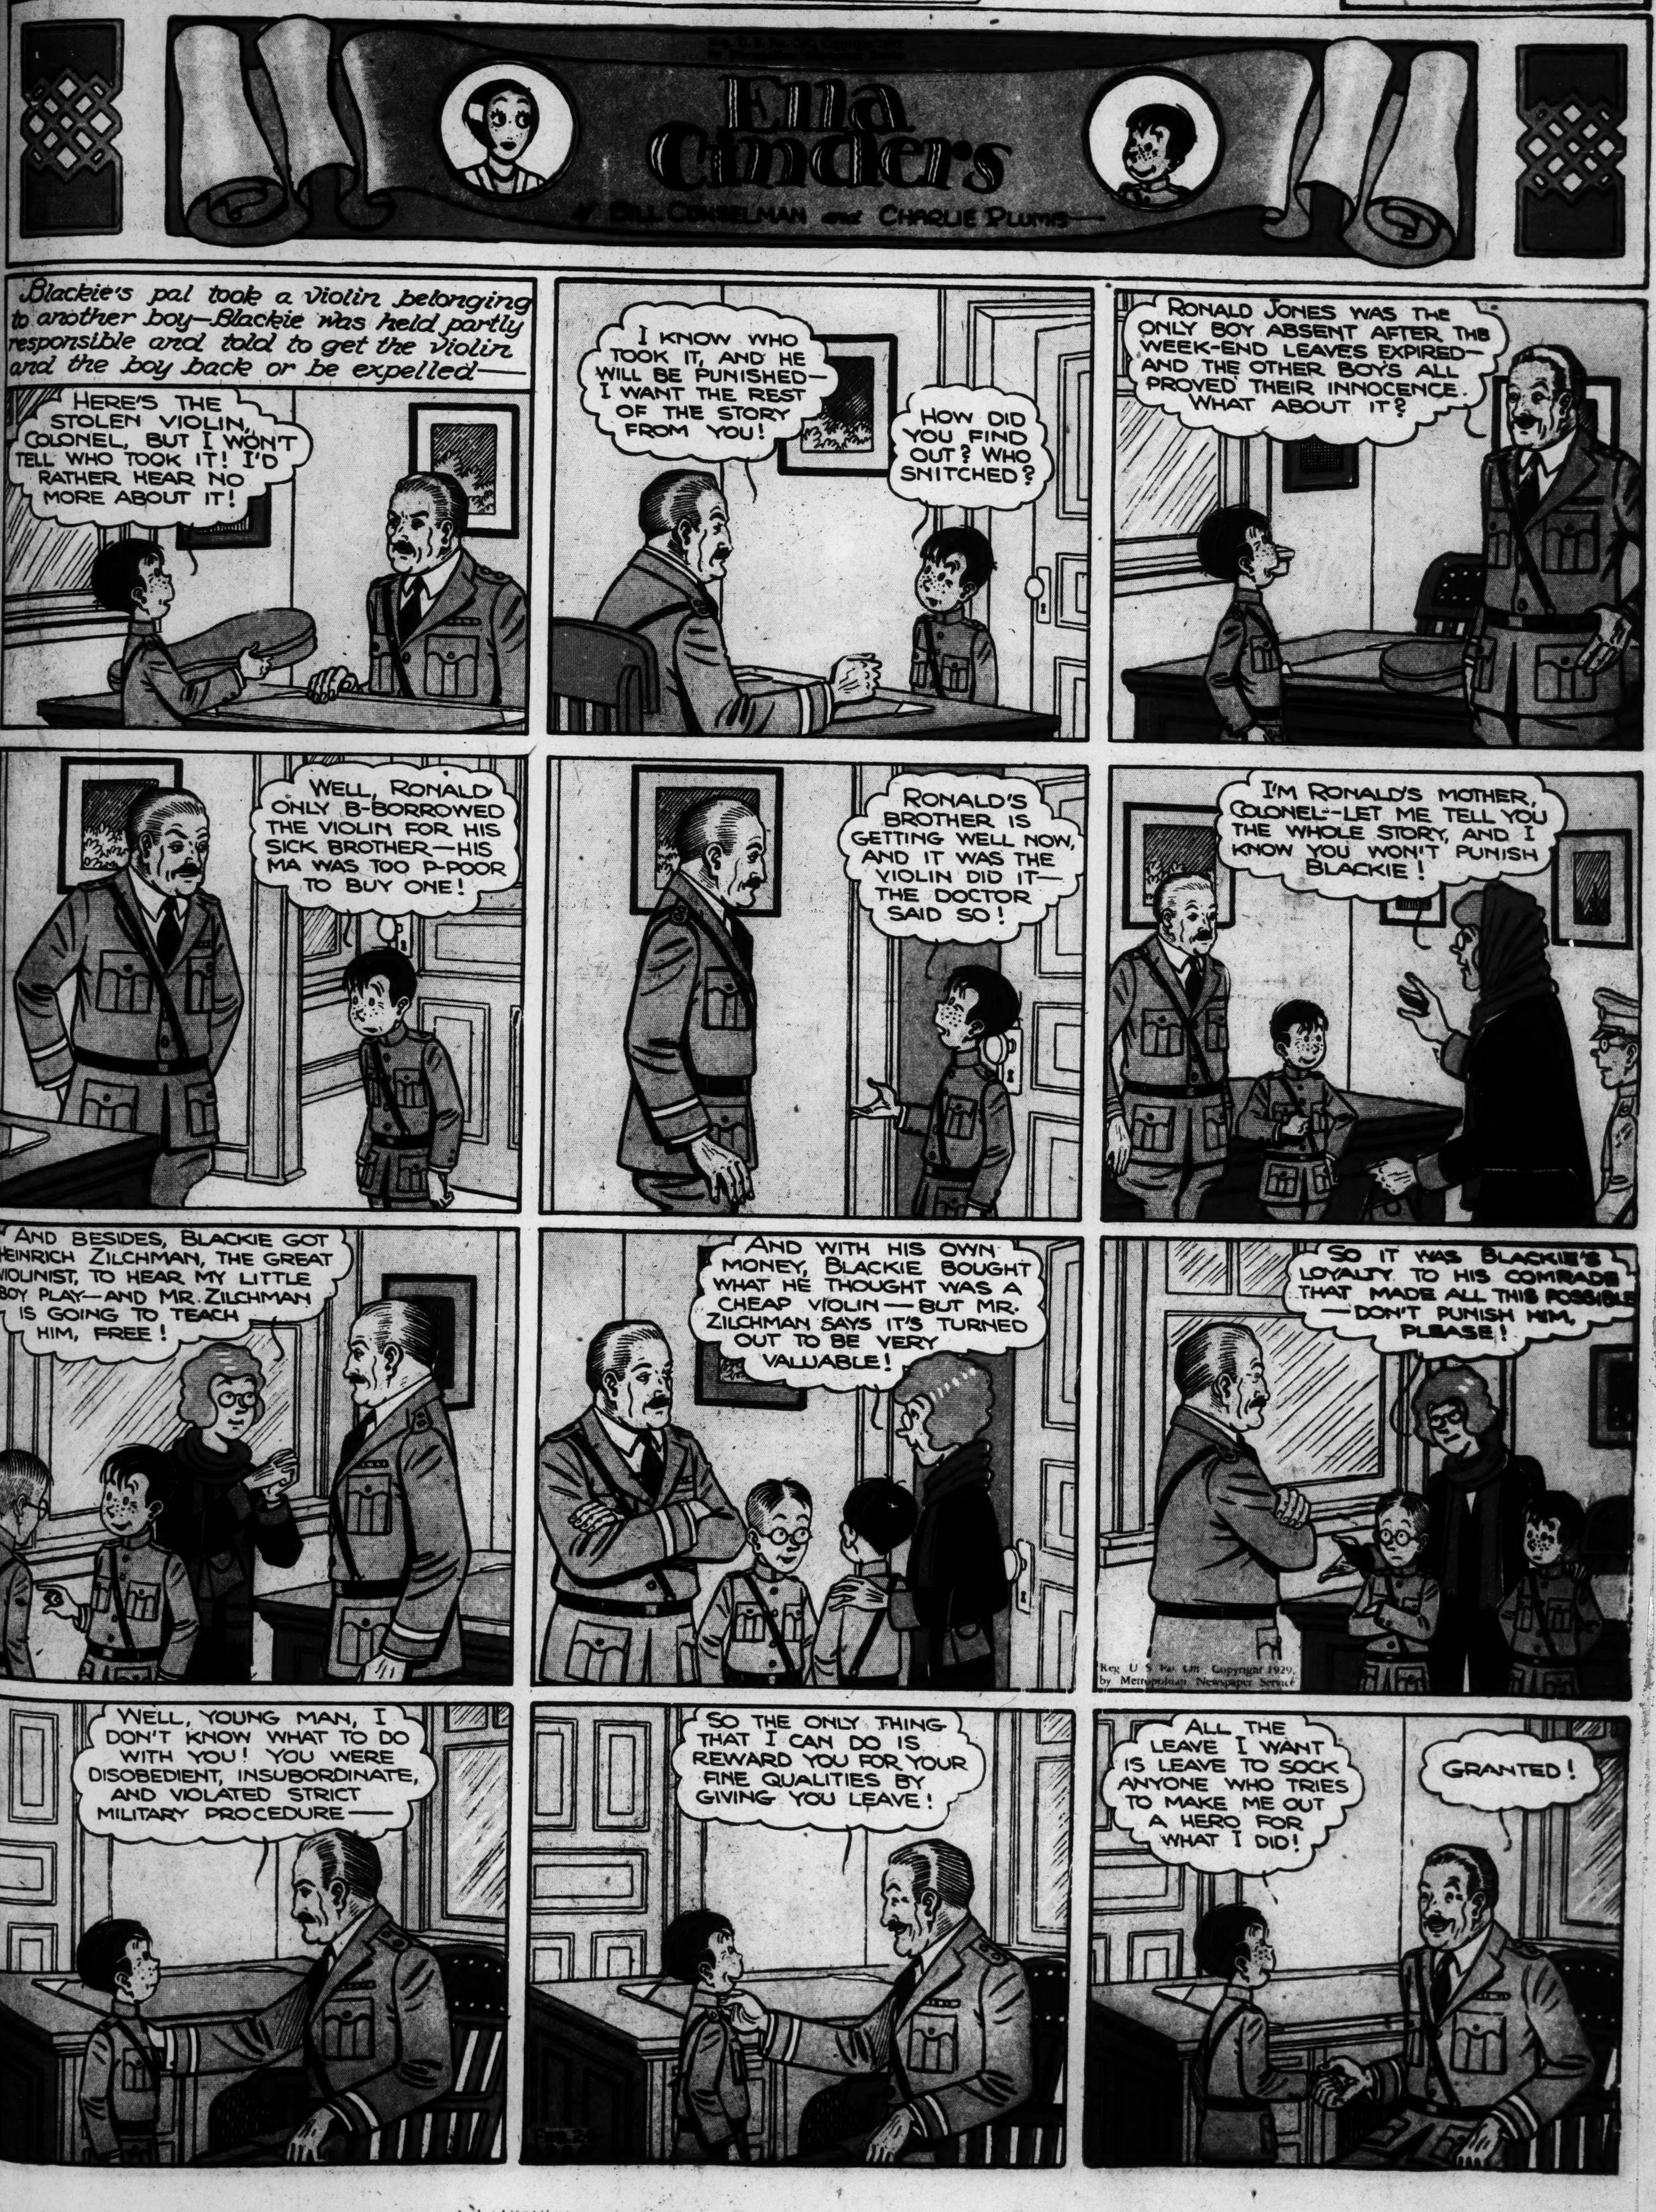
ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH

ST. LOUIS, MO., FEBRUARY 24, 1929

SECOND SECTION



Ella Cinders

by BILL CONSELMAN and CHARLIE PLUMB

Blackie's pal took a violin belonging to another boy—Blackie was held partly responsible and told to get the violin and the boy back or be expelled—
HERE'S THE STOLEN VIOLIN, COLONEL, BUT I WON'T TELL WHO TOOK IT! I'D RATHER HEAR NO MORE ABOUT IT!
I KNOW WHO TOOK IT, AND HE WILL BE PUNISHED—I WANT THE REST OF THE STORY FROM YOU!
HOW DID YOU FIND OUT? WHO SNITCHED?
RONALD JONES WAS THE ONLY BOY ABSENT AFTER THE WEEK-END LEAVES EXPIRED—AND THE OTHER BOYS ALL PROVED THEIR INNOCENCE. WHAT ABOUT IT?
WELL, RONALD ONLY B-BORROWED THE VIOLIN FOR HIS SICK BROTHER—HIS MA WAS TOO P-POOR TO BUY ONE!
RONALD'S BROTHER IS GETTING WELL NOW, AND IT WAS THE VIOLIN DID IT—THE DOCTOR SAID SO!
I'M RONALD'S MOTHER, COLONEL--LET ME TELL YOU THE WHOLE STORY, AND I KNOW YOU WON'T PUNISH BLACKIE!
AND BESIDES, BLACKIE GOT HEINRICH ZILCHMAN, THE GREAT VIOLINIST, TO HEAR MY LITTLE BOY PLAY—AND MR. ZILCHMAN IS GOING TO TEACH HIM, FREE!
AND WITH HIS OWN MONEY, BLACKIE BOUGHT WHAT HE THOUGHT WAS A CHEAP VIOLIN—BUT MR. ZILCHMAN SAYS IT'S TURNED OUT TO BE VERY VALUABLE!
SO IT WAS BLACKIE'S LOYALTY TO HIS COMRADE THAT MADE ALL THIS POSSIBLE—DON'T PUNISH HIM, PLEASE!
WELL, YOUNG MAN, I DON'T KNOW WHAT TO DO WITH YOU! YOU WERE DISOBEDIENT, INSUBORDINATE, AND VIOLATED STRICT MILITARY PROCEDURE——
SO THE ONLY THING THAT I CAN DO IS REWARD YOU FOR YOUR FINE QUALITIES BY GIVING YOU LEAVE!
FEB. 24
ALL THE LEAVE I WANT IS LEAVE TO SOCK ANYONE WHO TRIES TO MAKE ME OUT A HERO FOR WHAT I DID!
GRANTED!
